EATON WAS DOSED WITH MUCH ARSENIC

Harvard Expert Testifies It Was Administered Just Before Death.

FOUND IN STOMACH

Evidence Introduced That Mrs. Eaton Called Husband Insane.

PEMBROKE, Mass., Oct. 20.—District Attorney Parker put in to-day the strongest evidence he is known to have in support of the contention that Mrs. Jennie May Eaton murdered her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph C. Eaton, by giving him arsenic.

Dr. William F. Whitney of the Harvard medical school testified that he found 11.2 grains of undissolved arsenic in the Admiral's stomach and small amounts in other organs, the total discovered being 18.67 grains. In his opinion, the poison was in two doses, one within two hours of the first seizure on Thursday evening and the other from two to six hours before the Admiral's death early on Saturday morning, March 8. No symptoms of acrobatism were discovered.

Mrs. Annie Driscoll of Rockland, who worked for three months at the Eaton house in 1912, testified that Mrs. Eaton told her the Admiral was insane and that he flirted with other women. When in Washington Mrs. Eaton wrote to her to keep a woman living across the street away from her husband.

M. S. Shurtleff, a fish dealer, testified that when calling at the Eaton home in Weymouth, Mrs. Eaton told him that the Admiral was insane and showed him a lock on the pantry which, she said, she had put there so that the Admiral could not poison the food. Frequently Mrs. Eaton told Shurtleff of attempts her husband had made to poison her.

Harry Cates, who used to visit Mrs. Eaton's daughter June, told of being warned by the mother that the Admiral was not right because of liquor, that he was "dangerous" and a dabbler in poisons, and that she had said she wished he was dead. Cates said he carried a pistol whenever he went to see June and was always careful not to let the Admiral get behind him.

Charles Hill, who lives diagonally across the street from the Eatons, testified that on Thursday afternoon when, according to testimony of Mrs. Harrison, the Admiral was very ill, the latter came to his house and appeared as well as ever. He said that Mrs. Eaton had said that she had consulted a physician about the Admiral's mental condition and that the doctor had remarked to her that if "any one is hoghouse it is you."

Mrs. Eaton seemed gravely interested when the physicians testified regarding arsenic, but several times when other witnesses were on the stand she laughed outright.

TROOP TRAIN WRECK KILLED 17.

Six of Injured May Die—Investigators Start for Scene.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 20.—The toll of death from yesterday's troop train wreck at Bucatunna, Miss., to-night stands at seventeen, with half a dozen more dying in local hospitals.

Passengers and others arriving from the scene of the catastrophe insist that there are more bodies under the ruins, but this is denied by railroad officials.

It is thought earlier estimates of loss of life may have been exaggerated on account of the fact that many of the victims were cut to pieces and in several instances one body was counted twice.

President Finley of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad to-night issued an official statement saying the wreck was due to the front wheels of the tender jumping the track.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—An investigation of the troop train wreck on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad will be made by the Interstate Commerce Commission at once. Inspectors O. S. Reynolds and B. S. Johnson left Nashville, Tenn., for the scene early to-day.

CANDIDATE DIES SUDDENLY.

Assemblyman Finnigan Is Stricken at Family Dinner.

Assemblyman James H. Finnigan, Democratic candidate for Alderman in the fifty-fourth Aldermanic district, Brooklyn, died suddenly yesterday of acute indigestion at his home, 183 Skillman avenue, Williamsburg. He was stricken as he was dining with his family. He had been campaigning hard and day and it is believed he overtaxed his strength.

Mr. Finnigan was born in the old Seventh ward, New York city, in 1853. He moved to Williamsburg seven years later. He served as an Alderman in 1908, 1909, 1910 and 1911. He was elected to the Assembly last year and was a member of the Assembly committees on Commerce and Navigation, Canals, Privileges and Elections and Old Soldiers' Homes.

He leaves a widow and seven children.

TELLS OF FRIEDMANN CURE.

Rochester Woman Took the Treatment in Berlin.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Mrs. William E. Schichler of 455 Child street has returned to Rochester from Berlin, where she took the Friedmann treatment for tuberculosis of the lungs. She declares she has been completely cured. Her three children, who also were afflicted with tuberculosis, went with her. They are cured also.

Before she went abroad Mrs. Schichler was examined by Drs. Edward Hoffman and S. Baker of Rochester and physicians of the health bureau, who said she had pulmonary tuberculosis.

Since her return she has been examined by Dr. J. W. Enright, who says there is not a trace of tuberculosis to be found.

MYSTERY IN WOMAN'S ASHES.

Urn From Crematory Found Floating in Ocean Near Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 20.—The police are investigating the finding yesterday of an airtight box supposed to contain the ashes of Mrs. Irene Haffa, 75 years old. It was found floating in the ocean.

The box, besides the ashes, contained a card stating that Mrs. Haffa's body was cremated on October 14 last at the crematory of the Charlton Hills Cemetery Company, Germantown, a part of Philadelphia.

The mystery of who such a box should be floating a mile off shore is complicated by the fact that Mrs. Irene Haffa died in Philadelphia October 8, 1909, and was buried in a Philadelphia cemetery.

The police are investigating a report that a son of the dead woman, who lives in Philadelphia, took the ashes out in a rowboat Saturday and threw the box in the ocean.

Express Companies File Answers.

ALBANY, Oct. 20.—The United States and Wells Fargo express companies filed to-day with the Up-State Public Service Commission their answers to the order issued on October 2, which directed an investigation of the rates charged by all the express companies operating in this State. Shippers alleged that the rates were unjust and unreasonably prejudicial.

SPEEDWAY GREETS ITS FOUNDER

Nathan Straus Drives His Gray Trotter Denver a Fast Half.

The cordial reception accorded Nathan Straus upon his appearance on the Speedway last Sunday following a long absence was not due alone to the delight of Mr. Straus's friends in seeing him again enjoying good health, but was in part at least a tribute to the man who did much to make the Speedway possible.

Probably most people think of Mr. Straus only as the philanthropist, great merchant, political leader of independent views and patron of the Nathan Straus milk stations that have done such great service in cutting down the infant mortality rate. But up on the Speedway, where the horse comes first, it was as a horseman that Mr. Straus was welcomed back.

In the old days upper Seventh avenue was the place where quick stepping trotters tried out their paces. This led to the old Fleetwood track, where many a close race was decided. The growth of the city caused the abandonment of the Seventh avenue drive and Mr. Straus inaugurated a movement for a Speedway.

When he was a member of the Park Board Mr. Straus found supporters for his plans in Paul Dana and Samuel McMillan, his fellow members. Soon afterward ground was broken at 155th street and three years later Mr. Straus had the pleasure of seeing his long cherished idea realized.

Mr. Straus has owned and driven many famous horses. The first fast horse he owned was Majolica, a trotter. It was with this horse making his first start in a race that Mr. Straus drove a mile in 2.17 at the Fleetwood track and this time is said to be still a record mark for a green trotter.

When Mr. Straus made his reappearance at the Speedway he was behind his famous gray trotter Denver. That he has lost none of his skill was shown when he drove Denver an exhibition half in 1.03 without a pacemaker.

ETCHINGS WHILE YOU WAIT.

Novel Exhibition of the Process Interests Lookers On.

An art exhibition of a novel character is being held in the print room of the Brown-Robertson Company, 707 Fifth avenue. There are on the walls some etchings by American etchers, headed by the dean of the craft, Joseph Pennell, and in the centre of the room a young man makes a practical demonstration of the processes of the art.

On Saturday last spectators leaned upon the railings to watch the etcher preparing the ink, rubbing it upon the copper plate with soft rags, smoothing it off with a grimy thumb and finally rolling off an excellent impression upon the most paper. The young man exhibited also a waxed plate upon which he said it was the easiest thing in the world to draw with the etcher's needle, easier even than ordinary drawing with a crayon, for the wax made almost no resistance to the needle. It certainly seemed to be so and those looking on had all the satisfaction of admiring the moist new print.
