OWEN BANKING BILL STRIKES A NEW SNAG

Measure Reopened for Probable Amendment to Avoid Currency Contraction.

IN TRANSFER OF MONEY

Western Bankers Force Reconsideration—Republican Bill Ready by Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—After having completed the currency bill and submitted it to the President and to the Hitchcock wing of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee Chairman Owen and his five Democratic colleagues reassembled to-day and reopened the bill.

They will probably try to amend it to avoid a contraction of the currency in localities due to the transfer of money from present reserve centres to the regional reserve banks.

Senators from the West and middle West have been hearing many complaints as to disastrous results that may follow the transfer of funds from reserve cities where they are now held to the regional reserve centres under the new law.

A. J. Frame, president of the Waukesha National Bank and an active member in the American Bankers Association, warned the committee when he appeared in Washington as a witness that this transfer of funds would result in a currency stringency in many localities and probably require the local banks to call loans extensively, thereby contracting credit.

Stirred Up the Bankers.

Since his appearance before the committee Mr. Frame has been travelling in Wisconsin making addresses to bankers and pointing out to them just how much money would be transferred from the banks in Wisconsin to the regional reserve centre, Chicago, under the proposed plan.

His complaint has been taken up by the bankers of other States and the Administration Senators in the committee were almost in a panic to-day over this feature of their bill. They will try to work out a plan to extend the time for transferring reserves to the regional banks and permit the transfer to be made gradually to avoid contraction.

Chairman Owen was directed by his Democratic colleagues at a meeting in Senator Hollis's rooms to prepare figures and have them ready at a meeting to be held to-morrow showing just what effect will folow the transfer of funds.

Senator Hitchcock and the five Republican members of the committee were in session morning and afternoon. They have advised the Democratic members of the committee that they probably will have their bill ready by Thursday.

There was a disposition on all hands to hasten currency legislation. Talk was renewed about trying to adjourn Congress next Saturday until the regular session in December.

A report was brought to the Capitol to-day that President Wilson had said to one of his Senatorial callers that he would not object to an adjournment Saturday if the currency bill had been reported.

Senator Shafroth of Colorado, one of the stanch Administration Senators, expressed the opinion that Congress would adjourn Saturday, and Chairman Owen declared that he saw no reason why the extra session should not end on that day.

Kern Has a Different View.

Senator Kern, the majority leader, took a different view. He did not believe there would be an adjournment and Senator James of Kentucky, who was at the White House in the morning, expressed the opinion that there would be no adjournment and that the two sessions would merge.

It was evident there was much difference of opinion among the Democrats as to the wisdom of adjourning. The question of mileage for the members will enter into the matter.

If the extra session adjourns, leaving a week or two of vacation before the regular session convenes, it will be possible to put through an allowance to each Senator and Representative for mileage from his home in Washington.

In the cases of the far Western Senators this is quite an item. While it is true that many of them will not leave Washington in the vacation period they are eager to get the mileage, which will be paid to them whether they return home or not.

The Senate adjourned to-day until Thursday. Senator Ashurst of Arizona complained and threatened to make some opposition when the motion was offered. He said the Senate should stay in session continuously and goad the Banking and Currency Committee into prompt action on the bill.

Senator Newlands addressed the Senate on his new currency plan, which involved a central bank and a regional reserve association for each State in the Union.

There was renewed agitation for a Democratic caucus to take up and consider the bill that the six Democratic members of the banking committee have agreed on. Late in the afternoon it looked as if the dominant sentiment on the Democratic side of the Senate was opposed to the caucus.

GLASS TO TALK ON CURRENCY.

Chairman of House Committee Will Give First Trask Lecture.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 17.—Announcement was made here to-night that Carter Glass, chairman of the House Committee on Currency and Banking, will deliver the first lecture of the present year under the Spencer Trask Foundation on Thursday night. The Representative will explain the attitude that the present Administration is taking on the currency bill.

At a later date the bankers' ideas on the bill will be discussed by Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York.

Alfred Noyes, the English poet, will deliver the second of the Trask lectures on December 10.

ANTHRACITE INQUIRY STARTS.

Railroad Men Testify Before Commissioner Marble.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—Inquiry into freight rates on anthracite coal was opened to-day in the Bellevue-Stratford before John H. Marble of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The investigation, undertaken by the commission upon its own initiative, will extend to every branch of the coal carrying business.

The cost of moving an empty car from tide water to the collieries will be established and then the cost of moving that same car loaded back to tide water.

Much of the testimony is technical. The next session will be held to-morrow morning.

Troubles experienced in supplying enough empty cars to collieries were described by William Sweeney, assistant superintendent of the Lehigh and Susquehanna division of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. Insistent demands for empty cars, he said, are enough to drive a man crazy.

"One yardmaster really did go crazy last summer," he said.

70 YEARS WORK FOR THE POOR.

R. Fulton Cutting Tells of Society's Doings and Plans.

The New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor celebrated its seventieth birthday last night in the United Charities Building, 105 East Twenty-second street, with a series of addresses which reviewed its work and plans. The addresses were followed by moving pictures depicting the association's rehabilitation work. Thirty persons were elected to the board of managers.

R. Fulton Cutting, president of the association, described the social conditions here in 1843, just before the formation of the association. "There were at this time between thirty and forty relief agencies," he said, "but despite their solicitude for the poor the streets were filled with beggars and the homes of the benevolent were besieged with importunate appeals.

Mr. Cutting reviewed the early endeavors to remedy these conditions and described the city's present needs. "It is true," he said, "that the problems of poverty so hopefully assailed in the transcendental optimism of early youth have not been chased away. The breadwinner wasting with tuberculosis and his despairing family, the young girls debilitated by the long hours of the factory and shop, the aged, the homeless man discouraged by inability to find employment and the helpless sick cannot wait for the millennial organization of society, and we exist to make their suffering tolerable and to beget hope in their breasts."

"If at any time this association has appeared to be standing still," said John A. Kingsbury, general director of the association, "we believe it has been pausing only to look at facts as they exist and to determine a new direction."

Bailey B. Burritt, director of the department of social welfare, told about some of the results obtained by the new bureau of social welfare, which is supported by the gift of $650,000 made last spring by Mrs. Elizabeth Milbank Anderson. He said that the bureau of food supply would open on next Thursday a store for the distribution of food supplies and is now studying the sanitary aspects of the retail distribution of food.

ROADS' GROSS GROWS, BUT NET IS SMALLER

Two Systems Report the Biggest Business in Their History.

The biggest business in its history was done by the Baltimore and Ohio in the year ended June 30 last, says President Willard in the annual report. The gross receipts, including outside operations, were $103,329,992, an increase of $9,289,398.

Despite the big increase in gross earnings, however, net income was reduced from the previous year through increased costs. Earnings available for the 6 per cent. dividend on the common stock were $10,979,359, against $11,542,000 the year before, or 7.21 per cent. earned, against 7.58 per cent. previously. The surplus carried to general profit and loss account was $1,858,284, against $2,421,927 in the previous year.

Some of the increased costs shown by President Willard are an increase of $9,070,100 in rail operations, increases in rents, interest charges and hire of equipment, amounting to $939,449, and increase of taxes amounting to $177,410. Expenditures for maintenance of way and structures increased $2,654,135 and for maintenance of equipment $1,671,676.

Summing up the operations of the road since July 1, 1909, and the relation of earnings to expenditures for additions and betterments President Willard shows that expenditures for additions and betterments were $42,002,908 and for equipment $41,512,207, a total of $83,515,116.

Though these expenditures were justified, as shown in the ability of the road to increase its tranload about 44 per cent., the benefit of the expenditures has not shown in increased earnings by reason of the vastly increased costs of operations necessitated by higher wages and exacting legislative and public demands.

The spring floods in the middle West bore heavily against the Baltimore and Ohio and appear as a large factor in reducing its net earnings for the year. The loss of traffic is estimated at $1,500,000 and the estimate of the expenditure to overcome the physical damage done by the floods is approximately $3,000,000. Charges for permanent replacement work still to be done may aggregate $1,500,000.

The annual report of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad Company, including the Evansville and Indianapolis Railroad Company, for the year ended June 30, 1913, says that the $16,111,570 gross revenues were the largest in the company's history. Net operating revenues, however, show a falling off of $985,457 and the decrease in the balance transferred to profit and loss amounts to $1,046,879.

Total operating revenues for the year were $16,111,570, as compared with $15,125,785 for last year, while the net operating revenue was $3,330,304, against $4,315,761. Operating expenses increased from $10,899,751 in 1912 to $12,884,668 in 1913. The operating income was $2,718,549, as compared with $3,889,168 the year previous, and the total income was $3,803,447, against $4,718,361.

After the payment of total charges there was available for dividends $449,366, as compared with $1,057,799 last year, a decrease of $1,507,165. In dividend disbursements $492,567 was paid, against $952,853 in 1912. The credit balance on June 30, 1912, was $2,248,895, while that on June 30, 1913, was $949,899, a decrease of $1,298,996.

No remarks are made by the receivers of the company, all the general remarks being made by W. J. Jackson, the president, who does not say anything concerning the future of the property or the probable duration of the receivership.

MRS. PANKHURST RETURNS.

Will Consult As to Comstock's Doings and Sail November 26.

Mrs. Pankhurst returned to New York yesterday, looking much stronger after her Western trip, "to consult with reformers who are determined that Mr. Comstock shall not interfere with the publication of such books as 'Plain Truths About a Great Evil,'" she explained.

"The book and the Suffragette sold all through the West without objection," she said, "and our supply was often sold out. In Boston the antis tried to have the sale forbidden, with the result that everything we had in the way of propaganda was sold out before the meeting began. Tremont Temple was so crowded that the ticket sellers found the receipts were several hundred dollars ahead of the hall's selling capacity. The captain of the Harvard football team sent a peremptory note to his college mate, Witted Bynner, who was presiding over the meeting, that he must be admitted. I don't know whether that meant that he would use football tactics, but a place was found for him. All of my meetings have been crowded.

"I have heard that the British Government is talking of conciliation with the Constitutional suffragists. But we shall accept nothing but the vote. We must have it to enact laws to get rid of this double standard of morals. We have talked long enough about fallen women. Now it is time to look after the fallen men.

"We must raise the status of women. They are too cheap now. And that is what having the vote will do.

"I shall sail on the Majestic on the 26th and shall hold a series of meetings, beginning with one in London, to fill our war chest for next year. Yes, I am taking back a substantial sum."
