FINANCIAL NEWS AND COMMENT

Rapid and Sharp Advance by Stocks in the Late Dealings.

POSITION STILL STRONG

Reasons for the Fresh Upturn Not Necessarily Altogether Political.

A highly interesting burst of strength characterized the last hour of yesterday's stock market. Until well in the afternoon dealings had been desultory and prices had moved irregularly in the same fashion of fitful firmness which they had exhibited since the beginning of last week. Then the market proceeded to harden all around, and in the last half hour buying became broad with quoted values rising more buoyantly perhaps than at any time since recovery started in December.

In the main prices were carried to the previous high figures of the month, but new records were made in some conspicuous directions, notably by Southern Pacific. Final quotations disclosed a large array of very substantial net gains ranging upward of a point, and the average of the list attained a new high level. The movement had good leadership, prominent issues in the advance being Amalgamated Copper, Louisville and Nashville, Northern Pacific, Reading, Union Pacific, United States Steel and even New York Central. Trading in the last hour was almost half of the day's total.

As Wall Street talk this week has been so largely concerned with the nature of President Wilson's forthcoming message or address to Congress it was perhaps natural that the fresh turn of the stock market to rising strength should be related in conjecture to anticipations of the Administration policy respecting trust legislation and the rest of the political programme as it may be defined in the President's utterances. Washington advices teemed with forecasts of the President's communication, and most of the forecasts lent themselves to an optimistic construction. However, it remains to be seen to what extent the political prospect is one of soft words for general business to be followed by conservative legislative enactment and to what extent the rampant radicalism of Congress will be limited and restrained by moderate measures which receive exclusive Administration favor.

It may be a more reasonable inference, in keeping with some of the immediate and recent manifestations of the stock market, corresponding with the dispositions and desires of the business community, that quoted values merely made a further response to indications that trade, industry and finance turned a bad corner last year and were reflecting constructive intentions to make the best possible use of political as well as other factors.

Very likely the last hour demonstration in stocks yesterday was speculatively initiated, but it disclosed a scarcity of offerings and prices rose with remarkable ease and unanimity.

Public buying has persistently, although very slowly, increased in the past fortnight, and it seemed to be indicated that stocks, whether sold for the decline or for the realization of profits on long commitments, had been well absorbed, so that the market retained an excellent technical position. There were signs both of short covering and of hasty repurchasing of securities which had been parted with on the theory that a material reaction would probably furnish early opportunities for advantageous replacement.

Foreign advices were on the whole encouraging. Europe displayed no particular sensitiveness to the default on Mexican debt and despatches from the other side noted that the financial situation abroad would be helped by our gold exports, which are expected to aggregate a substantial total. Whatever helps the European situation will react favorably here.

Domestic news apart from matters already referred to was not much of a Wall Street influence. Weekly reviews of the iron and steel trade reported both that estimates of the dimensions of depression in basic industry had been overdone and that accounts of the improvement which had taken place in steel lines since the turn of the year were exaggerated. Nevertheless the fact of improvement, however slight, was clear.

Call money renewed at 2¼ per cent. Foreign exchange held around 4.8675 for demand sterling. Increasing investment inquiry was reported and the market for short time notes continued to improve, Missouri Pacific notes being especially strong.
