TEACHERS' PENSIONS REMEDY PROPOSED

Chamberlain Bruere Suggests That Some of Them Be Put Back to Work.

BLAME FIXED IN REPORT

Public school teachers retired since 1912 on pensions which they supposed would be paid for the rest of their lives and who are still able to do the least exacting work will have to go back to the classroom if one of the suggestions made by Chamberlain Bruere in a report made public yesterday is adopted.

The fact that the teachers' retirement fund is bankrupt and Comptroller Prendergast's charge that the methods of the Board of Education were to blame were printed several days ago. Now Mr. Bruere in behalf of the city's pension commission, of which he is vice-chairman and secretary, tells how the fund was wrecked and suggests three alternative ways in which payments can be continued until a new permanent programme is adopted, which cannot be until the Legislature meets. These are Mr. Bruere's three remedies:

"1. A pro rata reduction in the existing pensions, which we estimate will amount to about 42 per cent. for the remaining five monthly payrolls for this year.

"2. Restoration to active service of the least exacting character of teachers who have been retired since 1912 and who are still able to render service.

"3. Voluntary contribution by teachers of such additional sums as are sufficient to provide for its maintenance until the end of the year, which contributions might in part be refunded by the city in the event of the establishment of the new fund during the course of the coming year. It is estimated that an additional contribution of 2 per cent. of salaries during the remaining four months of the year would be all that is necesary."

"The foregoing alternatives," says Mr. Bruere, "all assume that no more refunds for excused absences will be made during the present year."

Summary of Situation.

This is Mr. Bruere's summary of the situation:

"Under the present plan the city will have to contribute to meet its obligations for the existing pension lists and the prospective pensioners now on the teaching force alone more than $110,000,000 in the period of about sixty years.

"The city has contributed to the pension fund to December 31, 1914, $8,510,280.94; the teachers' contributions have aggregated $2,222,624.98.

"The fund has from the beginning been destined to insolvency by reason of its plan, financing and method of administration. The practice of paying absence salary deductions into the fund and then later withdrawing refunds for excused absences has created financial instability and promoted speculative management of the whole retirement problem—a problem calling for the most careful and conscientious stewardship.

"Since 1910 an annual deficit has occurred in the fund and the present crisis has been deferred only by deferring the payment of refunds for absence deductions, thus merely putting into the future the insolvency which was apparent four years ago. In this year 1915, despite the critical condition of the fund, refunds in the amount of $160,658.73 were made. It would not have been unprecedented for the board to have withheld making these refunds, thus carrying the fund practically through the year. But such postponement would merely have put off the present crisis for a few months at best.

No Available Resources.

"There is now no available resource from which the prospective deficit of $203,026.48 for 1915 can be met unless the Comptroller arbitrarily advances anticipated excise moneys, counting on some future adjustment to make good the deficit.

"In May, 1914, before the retirement of fifty pensioners in September, 1914, in conference it was pointed out to the representatives of the Board of Education as well as to the Comptroller that the additional retirements could be made only on condition that teachers' contributions be increased to 2 per cent. to take effect on February 1, 1915; that refunds for absence be deferred and that an examination be made of the existing entire list and a more rigorous control over future retirements instituted. No investigation has been made of the present status of teachers retired for disability before the expiration of the thirty years service period, although the Board of Education knew or should have known that certain retirements were made under what were at least questionable circumstances.

"With proper financing of the fund, whereby a definite sum would be set aside each year for accumulation to meet future liabilities, the annual burden will be less than the burden with which the city will be confronted in the near future if it is called upon to meet the obligations already assumed by the fund.

Obligation Realized.

"The pension commission and the city authorities, as well as the teachers and executive authorities of the Board of Education, realize that the obligation to the teachers worn out in service is an obligation of the highest order and one that in self-interest as well as in humanity rests both on the city and the teaching body.

"With open mindedness and with complete regard for facts and willingness to discuss the problem of pensions in the light of facts and not guesses, impressions, charges or allegations, a solid plan may be established that will be just to teachers and taxpayers alike, which in its operation will secure to teachers the assurance of comfortable retirement after a proper period of active service and to the city a protection of its faithful employees when age or disability makes it impossible for them further to support themselves."

In explaining how the fund went to smash the Chamberlain lays stress on the practice of deducting 1-360th of a teacher's annual salary because of a day's absence, putting it into the retirement fund, and then, if the absence is excused, paying it to the teacher. He says that pay for non-working days has not been forfeited even when an absence from duty was not excused.

LEO FRANK, GERMAN, HELD.

Reservist Accused of Violating the Sullivan Law.

A man who said he was Leo Frank, 40 years old, a German reservist, was arrested yesterday in a furnished room at 233 East Fifty-fifth street charged with violating the Sullivan law. Patrolman Von Halle of the East Fifty-first street station said he found the man packing a loaded revolver into a suitcase.

The prisoner said that he had been a sailor on the German submarine 45; that he had just come here from the oil wells at Tampico and that he was packing up to go back to Germany to fight. His arrest came about on complaint of Max Budd, a contractor, 210 East Fifty-fourth street, who said Frank had threatened to kill him. They had disputed over money matters.
