

RESULTS OF ELECTIONS

Elections were held in forty-two States Tuesday, the other three, Maine, Vermont and Oregon, having already selected State officials and their representatives in the Fifty-eighth Congress. In twenty-two of the forty-two States a Governor and other State officers and Congressmen were chosen, in eleven minor State officers or judges of the Supreme Court and Congressmen were voted for, while in nine Congressmen only were elected.

The principal State officers were chosen in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, South Carolina, Alabama, Texas, Michigan, Kansas, Minnesota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho, Nevada and California. New Hampshire elected only a Governor. Tennessee a Governor and a Railroad Commissioner and Pennsylvania a Governor and two other State officials.

Minor State officers or justices of the Supreme Court were voted for in Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Ohio, Iowa, Florida, North Carolina, Delaware, Utah, Washington and Montana.

Congressmen only were selected in Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Kentucky and New Jersey, and delegates in Arizona, Hawaii, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Porto Rico.

The terms of thirty United States Senators expire March 3, 1903. Five have already been filled by the election of

COMPLEXION OF THE NEW CONGRESS.

House..... 208 Republicans 178 Democrats.
Senate..... 55 Republicans 33 Democrats.

New Congress.		Present Congress.
HOUSE.	SENATE.	Rep. Dem.	Rep. Dem.
Alabama.....	9	9	2
Arkansas.....	3	3	2
California.....	6	3	3
Colorado.....	3	3	1
Connecticut.....	2	2	1
Delaware.....	1	1	1
Florida.....	11	11	1
Georgia.....	6	6	1
Idaho.....	1	1	1
Illinois.....	11	11	1
Iowa.....	4	4	1
Kansas.....	10	10	1
Kentucky.....	1	1	1
Louisiana.....	4	4	2
Maine.....	1	1	1
Maryland.....	4	4	1
Massachusetts.....	10	10	3
Michigan.....	10	10	3
Minnesota.....	8	8	3
Mississippi.....	1	1	1
Missouri.....	15	15	3
Montana.....	1	1	1
Nebraska.....	5	5	1
Nevada.....	1	1	1
New Hampshire.....	2	2	1
New Jersey.....	12	12	3
New York.....	17	17	3
North Carolina.....	10	10	1
North Dakota.....	3	3	1
Ohio.....	17	17	1
Oregon.....	2	2	1
Rhode Island.....	1	1	1
South Carolina.....	2	2	2
South Dakota.....	3	3	2
Tennessee.....	2	2	2
Texas.....	10	10	2
Utah.....	1	1	1
Vermont.....	2	2	1
Virginia.....	8	8	2
Washington.....	3	3	1
West Virginia.....	1	1	1
Wisconsin.....	10	10	2
Wyoming.....	1	1	1
Total.....	208	178	55

*Delaware's Legislature is Republican, but will probably fall to the vacant Senate seat.
*Exclusive of five Populists, two from Nebraska and one each from Montana, Idaho and Colorado.
*Exclusive of two Populists (from Kansas and Washington), and one Independent (Colorado).

ESTIMATED PLURALITIES BY STATES.

State	Rep.	Dem.
Alabama.....	25,000	20,000
Arkansas.....	70,000	20,000
California.....	2,500	2,500
Colorado.....	15,000	15,000
Connecticut.....	15,000	15,000
Florida.....	35,000	35,000
Georgia.....	70,000	70,000
Idaho.....	3,000	3,000
Illinois.....	50,000	50,000
Indiana.....	35,000	35,000
Iowa.....	10,000	10,000
Kansas.....	35,000	35,000
Kentucky.....	25,000	25,000
Louisiana.....	25,000	25,000
Maine.....	20,000	20,000
Maryland.....	50,000	50,000
Massachusetts.....	37,479	37,479
Michigan.....	37,000	37,000
Minnesota.....	65,000	65,000
Mississippi.....	40,000	40,000
Missouri.....	35,000	35,000
Montana.....	10,000	10,000
Nebraska.....	5,000	5,000
New Hampshire.....	10,000	10,000
New Jersey.....	12,000	12,000
New York.....	10,000	10,000
North Carolina.....	10,000	10,000
North Dakota.....	10,000	10,000
Ohio.....	87,443	87,443
Oregon.....	751	751
Rhode Island.....	7,000	7,000
South Carolina.....	37,000	37,000
South Dakota.....	21,000	21,000
Tennessee.....	50,000	50,000
Texas.....	150,000	150,000
Utah.....	3,000	3,000
Vermont.....	3,000	3,000
Virginia.....	50,000	50,000
Washington.....	10,000	10,000
West Virginia.....	Small	Small
Wisconsin.....	50,000	50,000
Wyoming.....	4,000	4,000

NEW GOVERNORS ELECTED.

State	Republican	Democrat
Alabama.....	Samuel W. Pettus	Samuel W. Pettus
Arkansas.....	James H. Peabody	James H. Peabody
California.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Colorado.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Connecticut.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Florida.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Georgia.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Idaho.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Illinois.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Indiana.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Iowa.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Kansas.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Kentucky.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Louisiana.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Maine.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Maryland.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Massachusetts.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Michigan.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Minnesota.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Mississippi.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Missouri.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Montana.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Nebraska.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
New Hampshire.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
New Jersey.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
New York.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
North Carolina.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
North Dakota.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Ohio.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Oregon.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Rhode Island.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
South Carolina.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
South Dakota.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Tennessee.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Texas.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Utah.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Vermont.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Virginia.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Washington.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
West Virginia.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Wisconsin.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison
Wyoming.....	John T. Morrison	John T. Morrison

Illinois. Fred A. Buse, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Buse received 50,000 votes, Mullin 45,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Ohio. Samuel W. Pettus, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Pettus received 87,443 votes, Mullin 87,443. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Michigan. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 37,000 votes, Mullin 37,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Nebraska. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 5,000 votes, Mullin 5,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Wisconsin. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 50,000 votes, Mullin 50,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Wyoming. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 4,000 votes, Mullin 4,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Illinois. Fred A. Buse, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Buse received 50,000 votes, Mullin 45,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Ohio. Samuel W. Pettus, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Pettus received 87,443 votes, Mullin 87,443. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Michigan. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 37,000 votes, Mullin 37,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Nebraska. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 5,000 votes, Mullin 5,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Wisconsin. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 50,000 votes, Mullin 50,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Wyoming. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 4,000 votes, Mullin 4,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

ELECTIONS IN STATES.

Result of the Balloting in Various Sections of the Country.

Following are the results based on early returns of the voting in the various State elections:

New York. Governor. Benjamin B. Odell, Jr. (Rep.) defeated John P. O'Brien (Rep.) for Governor. Odell received 10,000 votes, O'Brien 9,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Illinois. Fred A. Buse, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Buse received 50,000 votes, Mullin 45,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Ohio. Samuel W. Pettus, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Pettus received 87,443 votes, Mullin 87,443. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Michigan. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 37,000 votes, Mullin 37,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Nebraska. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 5,000 votes, Mullin 5,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Wisconsin. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 50,000 votes, Mullin 50,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Wyoming. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 4,000 votes, Mullin 4,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Indiana. D. E. Starnes, Attorney General, defeated C. W. Miller, Auditor, for Attorney General. Starnes received 30,000 votes, Miller 25,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Wisconsin. R. M. La Follette, Governor, defeated C. P. Cary, Lieutenant Governor, for Governor. La Follette received 37,420 votes, Cary 37,420. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Michigan. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 37,000 votes, Mullin 37,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Nebraska. John T. Morrison, Republican, defeated Charles W. Mullin, Democrat, for Governor. Morrison received 5,000 votes, Mullin 5,000. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

Wisconsin. R. M. La Follette, Governor, defeated C. P. Cary, Lieutenant Governor, for Governor. La Follette received 37,420 votes, Cary 37,420. The election was one of the closest in the history of the State.

LEFT BY THE EXPRESS.

There was dead silence in the cottage of Will Haynes, the station master. The station was considered policy to run them. These thoughts were passing through Will's mind when he observed, in the dim light, a figure approach the train, and then he noticed that a carriage door was open. The figure climbed on to the footboard and entered the carriage, shutting the door just as the train began to move. In half a dozen seconds the express was running past him with steadily increasing speed.

Will was curious and made his way to the spot where he had noticed the dark form. There was something by the side of the line; it proved to be a large hamper. More curious than ever, Will cut the twine that secured the lid and began to examine its contents. He drew back with a surprised cry, then emitted a whistle, and sat down to think it over.

"Yes, that will do it, if I work the thing all right," he said softly.

He took up the hamper in his strong arms and carried it to the cottage. Placing it on the floor, which fortunately had not been scrubbed since the morning, he called Mary, and without answering her question, opened the lid and pulled aside a light cloth. In the hamper lay a baby, just beginning to wriggle and cry.

"Somebody's left it on the line," said Will simply, "so I thought I'd bring it here."

"I don't want other people's brats!" declared Mary harshly.

Will was nonplussed, but he contrived to hide the fact, and played his part very well.

"All right!" he said coolly. "I'll go and see the policeman in the village, and tell him. He must find somewhere for it to go. But I can't take the child with me, so I'm afraid I'll have to leave it here till I come back. S'pose you don't mind attending to it till then?"

Will's face remained hard in expression, and Will glided out before she could reply. The baby began to whimper again, and then to cry lustily. "Poor thing," murmured Mary softly. "It's hungry and cramped."

She took it up and soothed it by rocking it in her arms. She contrived to give it some milk and water, feeding it with little drops in a teaspoon. Then it dropped into a slumber of peace and innocence, and Mary sat with it in her arms and waited.

It was nearly 10 o'clock before Will returned, and he found Mary still sitting with the baby asleep in her arms. She held up her head with a warning expression on her face as he entered rather noisily with his heavy boots.

"S-s-sh! You'll wake her, Will!" "Why didn't you put her in bed?" inquired Will in a stage whisper. "Been holding her all this time?" "I couldn't turn the clothes down without disturbing her," replied Mary in the same tone, "and she's so comfortable and easy like here that I was afraid to venture. You can do it now."

Will moved across the kitchen to go to the bedroom, but he made so much noise that Mary stopped him.

"Hurry, you better take your boots off," she demanded. "You'll wake her, sure enough."

Will removed his heavy boots and together they stepped lightly into the bedroom, he turned down the clothes, and she tenderly deposited her human burden.

"She looks all right there, don't she?" asked Will. "Almost a pity she's got to go. I've had a talk with the village policeman, and he said at first he didn't think that she was found in this country. We had an argument about it, that's what made me so late. But he's all settled now, and he says she'll have to be taken to the county house, and that's ten miles off if it's an inch. Anyhow, she goes to-morrow."

Out of the corner of his eye Will watched the effect of his words. He saw Mary's face grow white and her lips quiver. She gave one long look at the pretty bundle of humanity in the bed, and the next instant she was sobbing with her head on Will's shoulder.

"Must she go away, Will? Oh, can't we keep her?" "Will passed his arm around his wife; an irritating cough prevented him from speaking for nearly a minute, but he got the better of it at length.

"Yes, I should say so. She won't cost much to keep for a time, and I may

ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE.

Robert M. La Follette, Governor of Wisconsin, is shown in a portrait. He is a man with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie. He is looking slightly to the right of the camera.

THE MAN HIMSELF.

Cabinet Officer's Eyes Were Opened to His Unintentional Injustice.

Cabinet officers naturally do not come in contact with all the subordinates of their force, and for that reason they are likely to deal more justly with them than some of their immediate assistants can. In the case of the man in the picture, the cabinet officer was one of the few who saw the man's true worth.

The man in the picture is a young man with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie. He is looking directly at the camera.

THE MAN HIMSELF.

Cabinet Officer's Eyes Were Opened to His Unintentional Injustice.

Cabinet officers naturally do not come in contact with all the subordinates of their force, and for that reason they are likely to deal more justly with them than some of their immediate assistants can. In the case of the man in the picture, the cabinet officer was one of the few who saw the man's true worth.

The man in the picture is a young man with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie. He is looking directly at the camera.

THE MAN HIMSELF.

Cabinet Officer's Eyes Were Opened to His Unintentional Injustice.

Cabinet officers naturally do not come in contact with all the subordinates of their force, and for that reason they are likely to deal more justly with them than some of their immediate assistants can. In the case of the man in the picture, the cabinet officer was one of the few who saw the man's true worth.

The man in the picture is a young man with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie. He is looking directly at the camera.

THE MAN HIMSELF.

Cabinet Officer's Eyes Were Opened to His Unintentional Injustice.

Cabinet officers naturally do not come in contact with all the subordinates of their force, and for that reason they are likely to deal more justly with them than some of their immediate assistants can. In the case of the man in the picture, the cabinet officer was one of the few who saw the man's true worth.

The man in the picture is a young man with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie. He is looking directly at the camera.

THE MAN HIMSELF.

Cabinet Officer's Eyes Were Opened to His Unintentional Injustice.

Cabinet officers naturally do not come in contact with all the subordinates of their force, and for that reason they are likely to deal more justly with them than some of their immediate assistants can. In the case of the man in the picture, the cabinet officer was one of the few who saw the man's true worth.

The man in the picture is a young man with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie. He is looking directly at the camera.

AFTER THE FROWNS.

"Say, when you was a little boy and looked up at your dad and seen him scowlin' at you hard and actin' fearful mad, and when you was a little trambly like, a wonderin' what you'd done and wishin' that you wasn't there, and yit afraid to run, and suddenly he up and laughed as loud as he could roar, and said that he was jest in fun and loved you more and more, Oh, wasn't them the gladdest times of all you'd ever know, and wasn't them the kindest smiles he ever had for you?"

"Say, when you got to courtin' Her, so fair and sweet and good, and wonderin' if she ever looked as angry as she could, and when you went to take her hand and she'd been with you, and lookin' up at her, turn her back with not a word to say, and when at last you'd just about made up your mind to run, and she'd suddenly commenced to laugh and say she had been with you, Oh, wasn't them the gladdest times of all you'd ever know, and wasn't them the kindest smiles he ever had for you?"

"Say, when you got to courtin' Her, so fair and sweet and good, and wonderin' if she ever looked as angry as she could, and when you went to take her hand and she'd been with you, and lookin' up at her, turn her back with not a word to say, and when at last you'd just about made up your mind to run, and she'd suddenly commenced to laugh and say she had been with you, Oh, wasn't them the gladdest times of all you'd ever know, and wasn't them the kindest smiles he ever had for you?"

"Say, when you got to courtin' Her, so fair and sweet and good, and wonderin' if she ever looked as angry as she could, and when you went to take her hand and she'd been with you, and lookin' up at her, turn her back with not a word to say, and when at last you'd just about made up your mind to run, and she'd suddenly commenced to laugh and say she had been with you, Oh, wasn't them the gladdest times of all you'd ever know, and wasn't them the kindest smiles he ever had for you?"

"Say, when you got to courtin' Her, so fair and sweet and good, and wonderin' if she ever looked as angry as she could, and when you went to take her hand and she'd been with you, and lookin' up at her, turn her back with not a word to say, and when at last you'd just about made up your mind to run, and she'd suddenly commenced to laugh and say she had been with you, Oh, wasn't them the gladdest times of all you'd ever know, and wasn't them the kindest smiles he ever had for you?"

"Say, when you got to courtin' Her, so fair and sweet and good, and wonderin' if she ever looked as angry as she could, and when you went to take her hand and she'd been with you, and lookin' up at her, turn her back with not a word to say, and when at last you'd just about made up your mind to run, and she'd suddenly commenced to laugh and say she had been with you, Oh, wasn't them the gladdest times of all you'd ever know, and wasn't them the kindest smiles he ever had for you?"

LEFT BY THE EXPRESS.

There was dead silence in the cottage of Will Haynes, the station master. The station was considered policy to run them. These thoughts were passing through Will's mind when he observed, in the dim light, a figure approach the train, and then he noticed that a carriage door was open. The figure climbed on to the footboard and entered the carriage, shutting the door just as the train began to move. In half a dozen seconds the express was running past him with steadily increasing speed.

Will was curious and made his way to the spot where he had noticed the dark form. There was something by the side of the line; it proved to be a large hamper. More curious than ever, Will cut the twine that secured the lid and began to examine its contents. He drew back with a surprised cry, then emitted a whistle, and sat down to think it over.

"Yes, that will do it, if I work the thing all right," he said softly.

He took up the hamper in his strong arms and carried it to the cottage. Placing it on the floor, which fortunately had not been scrubbed since the morning, he called Mary, and without answering her question, opened the lid and pulled aside a light cloth. In the hamper lay a baby, just beginning to wriggle and cry.

"Somebody's left it on the line," said Will simply, "so I thought I'd bring it here."

"I don't want other people's brats!" declared Mary harshly.

Will was nonplussed, but he contrived to hide the fact, and played his part very well.

"All right!" he said coolly. "I'll go and see the policeman in the village, and tell him. He must find somewhere for it to go. But I can't take the child with me, so I'm afraid I'll have to leave it here till I come back. S'pose you don't mind attending to it till then?"

Will's face remained hard in expression, and Will glided out before she could reply. The baby began to whimper again, and then to cry lustily. "Poor thing," murmured Mary softly. "It's hungry and cramped."

She took it up and soothed it by rocking it in her arms. She contrived to give it some milk and water, feeding it with little drops in a teaspoon. Then it dropped into a slumber of peace and innocence, and Mary sat with it in her arms and waited.

It was nearly 10 o'clock before Will returned, and he found Mary still sitting with the baby asleep in her arms. She held up her head with a warning expression on her face as he entered rather noisily with his heavy boots.

"S-s-sh! You'll wake her, Will!" "Why didn't you put her in bed?" inquired Will in a stage whisper. "Been holding her all this time?" "I couldn't turn the clothes down without disturbing her," replied Mary in the same tone, "and she's so comfortable and easy like here that I was afraid to venture. You can do it now."

Will moved across the kitchen to go to the bedroom, but he made so much noise that Mary stopped him.

"Hurry, you better take your boots off," she demanded. "You'll wake her, sure enough."

Will removed his heavy boots and together they stepped lightly into the bedroom, he turned down the clothes, and she tenderly deposited her human burden.

"She looks all right there, don't she?" asked Will. "Almost a pity she's got to go. I've had a talk with the village policeman, and he said at first he didn't think that she was found in this country. We had an argument about it, that's what made me so late. But he's all settled now, and he says she'll have to be taken to the county house, and that's ten miles off if it's an inch. Anyhow, she goes to-morrow."

Out of the corner of his eye Will watched the effect of his words. He saw Mary's face grow white and her lips quiver. She gave one long look at the pretty bundle of humanity in the bed, and the next instant she was sobbing with her head on Will's shoulder.

"Must she go away, Will? Oh, can't we keep her?" "Will passed his arm around his wife; an irritating cough prevented him from speaking for nearly a minute, but he got the better of it at length.

"Yes, I should say so. She won't cost much to keep for a time, and I may

THE MAN HIMSELF.

Cabinet Officer's Eyes Were Opened to His Unintentional Injustice.

Cabinet officers naturally do not come in contact with all the subordinates of their force, and for that reason they are likely to deal more justly with them than some of their immediate assistants can. In the case of the man in the picture, the cabinet officer was one of the few who saw the man's true worth.

The man in the picture is a young man with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie. He is looking directly at the camera.

THE MAN HIMSELF.

Cabinet Officer's Eyes Were Opened to His Unintentional Injustice.

Cabinet officers naturally do not come in contact with all the subordinates of their force, and for that reason they are likely to deal more justly with them than some of their immediate assistants can. In the case of the man in the picture, the cabinet officer was one of the few who saw the man's true worth.

The man in the picture is a young man with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie. He is looking directly at the camera.

THE MAN HIMSELF.

Cabinet Officer's Eyes Were Opened to His Unintentional Injustice.

Cabinet officers naturally do not come in contact with all the subordinates of their force, and for that reason they are likely to deal more justly with them than some of their immediate assistants can. In the case of the man in the picture, the cabinet officer was one of the few who saw the man's true worth.

The man in the picture is a young man with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie. He is looking directly at the camera.

THE MAN HIMSELF.

Cabinet Officer's Eyes Were Opened to His Unintentional Injustice.

Cabinet officers naturally do not come in contact with all the subordinates of their force, and for that reason they are likely to deal more justly with them than some of their immediate assistants can. In the case of the man in the picture, the cabinet officer was one of the few who saw the man's true worth.

The man in the picture is a young man with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie. He is looking directly at the camera.

THE MAN HIMSELF.

Cabinet Officer's Eyes Were Opened to His Unintentional Injustice.

Cabinet officers naturally do not come in contact with all the subordinates of their force, and for that reason they are likely to deal more justly with them than some of their immediate assistants can. In the case of the man in the picture, the cabinet officer was one of the few who saw the man's true worth.

The man in the picture is a young man with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie. He is looking directly at the camera.