Advice of Agricultural College.

Agricultural readers will remember that a couple of months ago. The Press secured some information from the state agricultural college which fixed the fact that the Hessian fly was at work in the wheat fields of portions of South Dakota.

That occurrence is now in the past. The damage is not great, yet the presence of the fly in small numbers calls for safeguards against future greater injury to growing wheat. It is the increase of the pest that is to be feared, and this is the time of the year to take measures to prevent an increase by destroying original Hessian fly colonies.

The agricultural college strongly advised the burning of the infested stubble and if possible the littering of fields with straw from the thresher before applying the match. The college recommended also, and imperatively, the burning of the threshed straw pile and all the screenings and debris from the threshing machine and then advised deep fall plowing. Finally it suggested that wheat fields this year exhibiting the presence of the Hessian fly should next year be planted to corn.

In all these measures for relief there should be co-operation of neighborhoods as the pest moves from farm to farm in its predatory raids.

This is the season of the year for the application of the remedies enacting from the agricultural college and its advice should be generally promulgated by the newspapers of the infested neighborhoods.

It is by agriculture that South Dakota thrives and the enemies of agriculture are common enemies of the people of the state, whether they are engaged in farming or in any other vocations. Interest in the subject should therefore be kept alive by all business organizations, as well as by the farmers' clubs.—Sioux Falls Press.

Gained Forty Pounds in Thirty Days.

For several months our younger brother had been troubled with indigestion. He tried several remedies but got no benefit from them. We purchased some of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and he commenced taking them. Inside of thirty days he had gained forty pounds in flesh. He is now fully recovered. We have good trade on the tablets.—Holley Bros., Merchant, Long Branch, Mo. For sale by I. M. Helmey & Co.

A Proud Boast

The report of Pension Commissioner Ware states that since the foundation of the government more than three billions of dollars have been paid out of the public treasury in pensions to the crippled or injured soldiers who have borne the stars and stripes to victory. More than two and a half billions of dollars have been paid to the men who suppressed the great rebellion. Thus the government has during the almost forty years since the civil war closed paid over to the veterans who wore its uniform and presented its overthrow nearly as much money as was spent for arms, ammunition, subsistence and pay during that terrible struggle. And why not? It is to the glory of this great country that when the war was over and the union was saved it did not forget the services of the men who sacrificed health and limbs in the great conflict. The United States in this particular stands upon an unsurpassable height of gratitude and consideration, it gives an example to the world of appreciation of its heroes which no nation in all time has equaled. It disproves of the old saying that republics are ungrateful, and that the people of a country receive every benefit and every sacrifice and return nothing but empty words. The people of the United States have from the first shown their gratitude to the Boys in Blue in words. They have with promptness and enthusiasm shown their love for the soldiers who risked all that they had for their country might be saved. But unlike the people of other lands they have not stopped there. They with their mouths expressed their affection for the old veterans, but they have gone farther, and putting their hands in their pockets with an unexampled liberality they have said that no old soldier who wore the blue in that awful conflict shall come to want, that every one whose limbs were carried away or whose health was lost or whose hardships & presented his constitution that he is not now capable after forty years of peaceful life, shall find in the bounty of the government enough to smooth his declining years, enough to keep him from penury.

The pension system of the United States is one of its proudest boasts. That a government should be willing to spend after the successful conclusion of a war as much upon the surviving heroes as it spent in waging it speaks in thunder tones of the gratitude of the American people.—Argus Leader.

The above is from the Argus Leader, and is a very neat compliment to the people who have so generously contributed to the pension fund of the government.

But what of the soldier himself? At the close of the war somewhere about 3,000,000 brave dashing courageous young men came home out of the bloody fields of the south. That magnificent body of vigorous young men were not pensioners, they represented the element that became pioneers and came west to help develop the country. They represented the spirit that has made the west the productive giant of the nation.

Those 3,000,000 young men became immediately wealth producers, and they represented fully one third of the brain of the nation in 1865. They married and settled down and raised families and their children unto the second generation are wealth producers today. The population of the United States in 1861 was 31,000,000, of which 10,000,000 represented the South. It is not our purpose to elaborate on this question, only to show that the soldiers themselves have produced a very large share of the enormous wealth of the nation, and that fully two-thirds of the pensioners today are still wealth producers. There were nearly 3,000,000 men enrolled during the war, but two million is a fair estimate to represent the class of young and vigorous pioneers and state builders who scattered over the west and southwest. They were the backbone of the nation in the hour of need, they have been a mighty factor in making our nation the greatest on earth. How much of the nation's wealth have they produced, and are producing yet, which comes back to them in pensions? It would be a pretty stiff proposition to figure out, but it is enough to know that there are a million or two perhaps, young men, sons of veterans, who are producing a great deal of wealth which comes back to their fathers in the shape of pensions.

THE PEERLESS NORDICA

At Sioux Falls, Saturday Oct. 10. Matinee and Evening.

Seldom do people in a community like this get a chance to see such an array of artists as will be seen in Sioux Falls for two performances on Saturday October 10th. At the head of the combination is the peerless Nordica, who is well known to the music loving people of the entire country. Then comes Mrs. Fisk the contralto who has sung with all the big opera companies. Mr. Nathan Franko needs no words of praise from us as a violinist. He is in the front ranks of violin artists of the world. Then with these comes Prof. Buss at the head of the Metropolitan opera house orchestra of New York City with sixty members. The company travels in a special train of four cars and Sioux Falls is the only city visited between Minneapolis and Denver.

Manager Bear has secured the great combination after giving an extraordinary large guarantee, but he has faith in the public of Sioux Falls and surrounding country to believe that he will get out whole. Mr. Bear has made the price of season tickets which include the matinee and evening performance, both $3.00. Tickets for the matinee performance $1.50. Tickets for the evening performance alone $2.50.

Civil War Monuments.

Agreeable to published notice a number of citizens met in the court house Monday night and organized the meeting by the election of Mayor Thayer as chairman and Wm. M. Cuppett as secretary.

It was decided that a Soldiers and Sailors monument association be organized and a motion by Mr. Kaah for that purpose was carried.

The following named gentlemen were elected permanent officers of the association: Henry Cooper, president; Wm. M. Cuppett, secretary; and O. E. Brown treasurer. These officers are to select an executive committee of 16, who shall have power to select such sub-committees as may be necessary, and arrange for a design.

The sentiment of the meeting favored a monument of the great war, and Abraham Lincoln, and a popular subscription was considered the proper way to lay a financial foundation, beginning in every school district in the county. The meeting adjourned to meet at the call of the president.

Dieting Invites Disease.

To cure Dyspepsia or indigestion it is no longer necessary to live on milk and toast. Starvation produces such weakness that the whole system becomes easy prey to disease. MITCHELLS LOVELY CORN PALACE land is now to spy out a future home for himself and those to come. He went. He found plenty of land, but no signs of life other than timber wolves and coyotes. It was a dreary outlook for a Chicago boy and he came back to Yankton full of sorrow and homesickness. He said he was no Robinson Crusoe and he couldn't live without a Sunday school. We talked the sadness out of him, and on the following Sunday introduced him to Rev. Jos. Ward's Sunday school in Yankton, and from that day he gained courage and hope, until he realized that there was a coming empire ahead and he gave up returning to Chicago. He got him a tent, a gun, a good supply of grub and fish lines and again acceded the noble Jim to the historic Firesteel where he was soon joined by H. C. Green, and from that time life grew brighter and the cashmere more numerous and then settlers began to crowd up the river until Hanson county was organized and Arthur J. Parshall became a townsite boomer and Alexandria was built. He held several county offices, was a member of the territorial legislature in Bismarck and returned to the boom of his constituents and followed the noble and honorable profession of running a newspaper and booming the country for glory, and that's all the early state builders got for their patriotic work.

A. N. Hill is one of our old Iowa friends, who used to play ball with us 35 years ago, who came to South Dakota many years ago, whom we had not seen since 1869, when we started for Yankton. Mr. Hill is now one of the solid men of Mitchell and as square a man as ever lived. Our meeting was one of unusual pleasure, and how we talked and laughed as we referred to Brook Plummer, Jim Pinckney, Egbert Skinner, Sol Simmons, Bill Burge and others of our famous ball club. Sol Simmons was one of the best catchers in the state then. Jim Pinckney could sweat a ball harder than any man in the club and Bill Burge could throw a ball farther than any other man in the state, and Brook Plummer, now president of the First National Bank at Forest City, never missed a ball at first base. It was a club which defeated everything from Albert Lea to Mason City and Belmond, and never met defeat.

The last time we met J. V. White was at Bismarck. He was a member of the last territorial legislature from Clay county and introduced the last resolution in that famous body of lawmakers who were locked up for twenty-four hours while the sergeants at arms were hunting a concealed or kidnaped member. It was a remarkable session composed of many able men from the old territory. Mr. White's last resolution was conveying the thanks of the house to Col. Tom Orr whose name had been omitted in the general resolution of thanks. Mr. White lives near Mitchell and enjoys the comforts of a 1900 acre farm, and there is no banana farmer in the state who enjoys the blessings of plenty with a greater degree of pleasure. He is still handsome and weighs 235. Has money to give away and a heart full of human kindness.

Dr. Wilcox became an editor after leaving the old Dakotian office and started the first paper at Tyndall and became a Bon Homme county boomer. Then he began the study of medicine, but that didn't meet his judgment as the proper relief for suffering humanity, so he went to Kirksville and graduated in osteopathy and now he is considered one of the famous healers in the state. He has a lovely family and is happy.

The meeting of those old timers made our visit to Mitchell one of unusual pleasure, and still there were others whom we met. There was the "Bard of the Firesteel," H. C. Green, one of the oldest surveyors in the state, if not the oldest in point of service and of years. He is still vigorous and full of life.

Jim Wells, the popular real estate boomer, and a former Lincoln county boy, who came to Dakota in 1873, was among those who looked after our welfare with marked kindness and at whose splendid home we found every comfort. Mrs. Wells is a charming lady and presides over one of the finest homes in Mitchell. We also met Ned Calhoun who was a prominent contractor in Yankton in 1870, and John Savage who was with us at the Soldiers home for four years, and Major Shurtleff, and Col. Pratt and wife and Robert Pratt and wife, and banker Lord of Parker, and Capt. J. S. Bean of Armour, and Mike Harris of Hand county. Hon. I. A. Weeks of Pukwana, Hon. W. T. LaFollette of Chamberlain, Congressman Burke, John Sutherland and John Hipple of Pierre, Senator Klittrige, U. S. Attorney Elliott, August Kruger of Bon Homme and our old Yankton friend of the 70s, Ex-Mayor Seamba of Mitchell, Judge Smith of Yankton and many other old friends whom we had the pleasure of meeting for the first time in many years. What a reunion those old timers could have and how Doane Robinson would like to sit and hear some early history never written and perhaps never will be, especially that concerning the Irish and German war across the Dakota Rhine?

We believe it would be a good thing to have a reunion and we shall arrange for one in the near future.
