TO ANTIQUARIES.—AN OPPORTUNITY IS PRESENTED to any person having a taste for Grecian antiquities, to purchase two pieces of Sculpture of rare merit. From the nature of these specimens, we infer that they must have been executed at least 2,200 years ago, one being a marble sarcophagus of Aristotle, in white Paros marble; the other in illustration of the fable of Leda and the Swan, in white Phrygian marble. The advertiser does not wish to enter into the minute detail as to these remarkable works of ancient art, as an inspection of them will be far more satisfactory. They bear such marks of age as no art can counterfeit. To be seen at Mrs. Hoaking's, White Cottage, near the East River, Twenty-fifth street, First avenue, New York. To be seen at 350 Broadway.
