DANIEL MOORE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.—BEING DESIRous of affording to the public all the information possible in regard to the perfect practicability of the formation of a light department in this city, secondary in my opinion only to the Croton water, and also expose the impositions practised upon us by the Gas monopoly, I beg to submit to them a statement of the cost of making gas from the Asphaltum discovered by Dr. Gesner. The establishment of such a department in this city would relieve us of a tax of $20,000 to $25,000 per annum, and furnish to the consumers, a light 50 per cent. cheaper, and burn one half the quantity; thus reducing the cost at least 75 per cent. Coal gas, containing burned 4½ feet, and equal to 10 candles, and Asphaltum 2 1-10th feet and equal to 25 candles. The gas could be delivered to consumers at a small advance on the cost, thus leaving profit enough to light the city free of charge. The cost of a ton of New Brunswick Asphaltum, delivered here is $7 and the yield of a ton is over 14,000 feet, equivalent to less than 50 cents per thousand feet. The public may thus perceive the immense profits which are charged to the consumers, as the interest of outlay for gas works, pipes, labor, &c., &c., for its manufacture cannot in any way add 100 per cent to the first cost of the material, specially as it leaves coke enough for its own fuel. The experiment has been tried by lighting Washington city, and proved perfectly successful. The highest cost to the consumers could not exceed $[illegible] per thousand feet and they would burn one half the quantity. I also add the result of a private experiment.

E. L. G.

NEW YORK, June 20, 1850.

DR. GESNER:—Dear Sir,—The result of our experiments with your patent material for making gas, is as follows: We charged the retort with just 6 lbs of bitumen, and in one hour had extracted all the gas. Upon measuring our gas holders we found that we had obtained a fraction over thirty-five cubic feet. The amount of coke obtained was two lbs. five ounces. The gas was very dense, and with a burner consuming two and one-half cubic feet per hour, we obtained a light equal to 25 candles. We found also that no purification was required. No sulphur or other deleterious product could be detected. The coke obtained is of a superior quality being nearly pure carbon. A small quantity of naptha was deposited in the hydraulic main, but no tarry matter could be found in the pipes or burners. The apparatus is simple and easily managed. It possesses an advantage over all other appparatus, which we have seen, in regard to simplicity, neatness and absence of smell. We think it peculiarly adapted to hotels, hospitals, manufactories, and other public and private buildings. Your ob't servts,

(Signed) SALMON & GUILD,
No. 79 Jean st., New York.
