MONEY MARKET.

SUNDAY, Feb 8—6 P. M.

The week just closed has not developed any new feature in the stock market. With large sales daily, prices at the close yesterday were about the same as those current at the close of the week previous. The cause of this is the absence of outside speculators. The only fancy in which there has been any inflation of consequence is Reading Railroad; and, by the combination of several strong cliques in this city and Philadelphia, speculation has become quite active, and the prospect is favorable for a greater expansion. It is reported that a large amount of English capital has been employed in the recent movement. There is some truth in this, but the statements that a large quantity of the stock has lately been sent to London, and that it will hereafter be regularly bought and sold at the London Stock Exchange, are without foundation. Most of this stock lately sold in this market has been sent to Philadelphia where it will probably remain until the bubble bursts; when it will come back at greatly depreciated prices. Speculators in Boston and Philadelphia frequently relieve holders of certain fancy stocks in this market a high prices, and operators here as frequently get than back again at low prices. Reading, Norwich and Worcester, and several of the smaller class of stocks, have from time to time, been monopolized by certain cliques in each of the above named cities. With the exception of Reading, the bulk of all the leading fancies is held in Wall street, and we fear they are likely to remain there. Outsiders are not disposed to touch them. It may be that prices are not high enough. They do not like to touch a fancy when it is low and cheap. If a fancy stock is not active, they will have nothing to do with it and it, therefore, is necessary for holders in the street to get up an inflation, and get the market active before outsiders will take hold. As a general thing, they come in at the height of an expansion, and when the collapse takes place, large lots of fancy stocks remain in their hands at high prices. The present movement in Reading shows this. A few weeks since that stock was selling at fifty to fifty-two per cent. At those prices, no one out of Wall street would touch it, and the sales in the street amounted to only a few hundred shares daily. Since that time prices have advanced fifteen per cent, and the sales have increased to three and four thousand shares per day. In the face of this improvement, in market value, the intrinsic value has been as rapidly depreciating. The traffic on the road for the first two months of the present fiscal year, has been only about one half that for the corresponding period last year, and it is well known that out of the last year's business a dividend of only three and a half per cent was declared, and not even that small amount actually earned. These facts are, however, of no weight now. No one thinks of investigating matters during an excitement in the stock market. It is only when it is too late that these things convince outsiders what asses they have made of themselves. A cornering combination, properly formed and carried out, cannot be affected by any exposé of rottenness or corruption, any further than in deterring outside speculators from involving themselves in the movement. An unfavorable exhibit may compel those originating the corner to carry all their stock, and to buy more to sustain prices; but no injurious effect upon prices will, for the time, be visible. The demand for stock will continue active, and the inflation appear natural and permanent. So long as the clique continue to buy, so long will prices improve, or, at least, be sustained; but when they can buy no longer—when all efforts have failed to attract outsiders—when holders find the burden too heavy to carry, and no one will relieve them of even a portion of it, at their valuation, it becomes a contest between the parties most directly engaged, which shall get out first. A panic takes place among holders, and prices run down much more rapidly than they run up. In a short time a lower depth than that they started from is reached, and thus ends the bubble. Reading Railroad is now the football. A few weeks since Erie Railroad was the great card, and no one interested doubted, or pretended to doubt, but that it would touch par. At the time we heard points named some distance above par, which it was sure to reach, we predicted a result precisely similar to that realised, and we now make the same prediction relative to Reading Railroad.

In other stocks, there is no movement of consequence. Most of the old holders of Erie Railroad have sold out most of their stock, and we cannot look for another speculative movement until they come into the market again as purchasers. Harlem is the most curious stock on the list. It does not vary much in prices from week to week, and there is no activity among operators. We are completely in the dark relative to the position of the stock and the causes of the depression. That it is a good investment at present prices is beyond a doubt; but there may be no expansion in the market value for many days. Long Island is steadily moving upward. Very little stock is pressing upon the market; and as there is no great opposition to a moderate inflation from the bear party, present holders may realise a good profit. We believe the road is doing a good business, and those intimately acquainted with the affairs of the company consider it a cheap stock. Morris Canal, for several days past, has been steadily depreciating. All apprehensions of damage from freshets to the Morris or Lehigh Canals have disappeared; but there has been no reaction in favor of the securities representing these works in the market. Prices for Morris Canal are high enough, considering the position and prospects of the company. The zinc stocks continue quiet. There are many buyers in the market, but they are anxious to depress prices before supplying their wants. The probability, therefore is, that prices will go down before they go up.

J. M. Woodward has been appointed assignee of the Maryland Mining Company, and he has entered upon the discharge of his duties. We understand that the mines will be carried on as usual for the present.

During the year 1851, there were exported from Alexandria, Va, to foreign ports, $453,166 worth of breadstuffs, being an increase of $52,107 over the previous year. The imports during the same time are valued at $105,516, which is an increase of $11,383. The duties paid at the Custom House amounted to $29,212 90—increase $3,173 85. The entrances and clearances were 111 vessels in the foreign, and 508 in the coasting trade.

During the month of January the whole number of clearances from Baltimore, for foreign ports was 25, viz.: 3 ships, 5 barks, 10 brigs, and 7 schooners; with a total tonnage of 5,604 tons, and navigated by 238 men. Of these vessels 18 were American, 5 British, 1 Bremen, and 1 Spanish; and their destinations were as follows, viz.:—West Indies and British Provinces, 11; Pernambuco, 2; Cape de Verde, 1; Liberia, 1; Rotterdam, 1; Bremen, 1; Gibraltar, 1; Trieste, 1; Rio de Janeiro, 1; Demarara, 1; Talcshuana, 1; Laguayra, 1; Malaga, 1; and Liverpool, 1. The total value of the exports by these vessels was $338,342 08. There entered at the Baltimore Custom House from foreign ports during the same period, 6 ships, 5 barks, 14 brigs, and 7 schooners; total 32 vessels. Of these 25 were American vessels, 4 were British, 2 Bremen, and 1 Danish. With dutiable cargoes, 24; with free cargoes, 7; and in ballast, 1. The total amount received for duties during the month of January, 1852 was $34,619 59, against $55,245 95 for the same month in 1851.

The Galveston News furnishes a synopsis of a bill which it describes as having passed both houses of the Legislature of Texas, providing for the payment and liquidation of the public debt. The bill appropriates two out of the $5,000,000 bonds, to pay certain accumulated debts immediately. The debts are scaled and classified under sixteen heads. The immediate payments ordered are, of those under the third head of that classification $226,062 for ten per cent, funded debt of February 5, 1840; the fourth head, $7,248 for eight per cent funded debt of February 5, 1840; the ninth, $69,451 for audited paper—various enactments; the tenth $26,129 for miscellaneous liabilities; the fourteenth, $679,222 for second class debt; the fifteenth, $16,467 for third class debt, lately admitted as second; sixteenth, $72,077, less $38,053, amount acknowledged by joint resolution. These appropriations amount to $1,058,542—leaving $841,457 unappropriated, specifically. This is to go into a fund for the payment of claims embraced under the second class of debts, being the class for which the import duties were not pledged. Specific appropriations out of the five millions of reserved bonds which the United States keeps yet in its custody, are made for the following debts, numbered as in the same classification, thus:—

1. $442,768 for the ten per cent consolidated fund of June 7th, 1837.
2. $7,970 for ten per cent fund of same year, for the relief of Swartwout and others.
5. $153,360 for eight per cent treasury bonds, of 1840.
6. $41,630 for ten per cent treasury notes of 1837.
7. $965,685 for ten per cent treasury notes of 1837, second issue.
8. $457,048 for treasury notes, without interest, of 1837.
11. $100,000 for the bond issued from the United States Bank; $97,920 for purchase of steamer Zavalla; $140,000 for naval vessels contracted for with F. Dawson.
12. $1,468,155 for interest on above.
13. $113,664 for additional interest by act of 1850.

These appropriations amount to $2,500,411 of principal, and $1,581,819 of interest. Total, $4,088,930—leaving $911,780 of the reserved five millions, which is added to the $241,457 surplus from the two million fund—making $1,853,237, which is directed to be appropriated solely for the second class debts. Only two millions are appropriated of the bonds immediately receivable; the other three millions are reserved, apparently, for other uses than the payment of debts scaled, or otherwise.

ADVERTISEMENTS RENEWED EVERY DAY.
