The Maine Law in New York.—Will it pass? ought it to pass? can it be enforced? are questions continually propounded in relation to the Maine law. Our own views on the subject are known; but we will here remark that if it must become a part of our code, a clause should be inserted compelling the agents charged with the sale of liquor for medicinal purposes, to procure the purest and most wholesome article to be had in the market. That article is would seem, if chemical analysis and the testimony of the most eminent physicians in this country, given over their own signatures, are of any value, is Wolfe's Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps; and we are glad to learn that the town agents in New England are already adopting it, on the strength of these eminent recommendations. We are well satisfied that it will sustain in medical practice the reputation it has acquired.—Sunday Dispatch, January 29.

She struck the Carysfort Reef on the evening of the 10th inst, white in ballast, and soon was driven high up, and hard and fast. Capt B commenced throwing over cargo to lighten the ship, but could not drive her into deep water. She soon sprung aleak, and on the 13th had three feet water in her hold. On the 14th the wreckers discovered her, and offered to get her off save the cargo, and they were engaged by Capt B. Her anchor was taken out and a hawser attached. On 16th they got a heavy strain, but the hawser could not move the ship. She was running high up to this time, they were obliged to bout all the cargo, and to saved all but the iron. On the 18th the sloop Parallel was hauled alongside, and the bar, rod and hoop iron placed on board of her. In the mean time all were employed throwing overboard the rest to light on the ship, but to no purpose, for she bilged on the 18th when she was stripped and abandoned. The vessels loaded with cargo and materials all arrived at Key West. The former is stored in warehouses and will be reshipped and forwarded to Mobile by first conveyance. The latter were sold at auction by the United States Marshal, who has seized all the property for salvage. Sales of materials amount to $583 21.
