

Sels in Scotland.
Although sels abound in Scotch waters and are caught in great quantities, they are not considered fit food there. No matter how plentiful and how very fine and large they may be in any district of Scotland, no native will eat one. The objection to the sel is said to be based on its serpentine appearance and the fact that it is not overfastidious as to what it feeds on.

In the churchyard of Grimston, Norfolk, an avill may be seen at the head of the grave of a local blacksmith.

Keep Cutting the Dirt Off.
The members of the family were camping out south of town for the day and little George had been assigned the work of peeling the potatoes for dinner. After laboring for half an hour he hunted up his mother.

"Mom," he said, "I gotta have some more potatoes."

"Why, I gave you enough for two families like ours," she replied, in surprise. "What did you do with them?"

"I forgot to wash my hands," said George, "and by the time I got all the dirt off of the potatoes they was too black to eat. I throwed 'em away."

Plausible Theory.
The great detective had been summoned to the plumber's office.

"I can't understand it," said the plumber. "The young man has been in my employ for the last three years and I have always found him honest and trustworthy. But three days ago I sent him to collect a bill in the suburbs and he has failed to show up since. Now, what do you think of it?"

"Oh," replied the g. d., "I don't think you have any cause for alarm. He was probably paid in small bills and is still counting the money to make sure that the amount is correct."

First Small Boy—No, I never get any money to spend on dime novels. My mamma doesn't believe they are good for me.

Second Small Boy—Shucks! You come with me. I know where it won't cost you a cent to look at some melodrammer posters ten times as horrible.

A Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherrybark, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchitis, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the body and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, chronic coughs, bronchitis and laryngeal troubles, and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures. Send for and read the little book of extracts, treating of the properties and uses of the several medicinal roots that enter into Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and learn why this medicine has such a wide range of application in the cure of diseases. It is sent free. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. The "Discovery" contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming ingredients, and is printed on each bottle wrapper in plain English.

Sick people, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Barn Lantern.
Lanterns are undoubtedly the safest things to use in the barn, and if they are hung properly and protected as indicated here there will be little or no danger from fire. Take a piece of inch board and from it cut a circle twelve inches in diameter; then buy a piece of galvanized wire netting fifteen inches wide and four feet long, then a piece of bright new tin eighteen inches square, a hook with a flat end, so it can be screwed to the wall. Then build a shelf fifteen inches wide and twenty inches long. Nail the shelf in a convenient location in the barn, then on the wall back of the shelf nail the piece of tin which acts as a reflector as well as protects the wall.

GOOD BARN LANTERN.

Fasten the hook on the wall above the tin. Then make a cylinder by nailing the wire to the edge of the circular piece of board, lacing the ends of the wire together with stout twine. Set this on the shelf and slip the lantern inside of it, hanging the bale of the lantern on the hook. The wire cylinder protects the lantern yet does not shut off much light, and by having the hook curved there will be little danger of the lantern falling, even under quite a hard blow. The illustration shows all of the details for constructing this arrangement.—Indianapolis News.

Finishing Of Coops.
One of the economies in the poultry business is to have coops which may be used for any desired purpose without making it necessary to in any way subdivide the main poultry house. Coops for sick fowls, coops for the roosters, coops for the broody hen and coops to finish off the birds which are to go to market later. One of the best designs for the latter purpose can be built on the sunny side of the barn or on the poultry house proper, thus saving the expense for lumber. This coop is three feet in width, and any length desired, but figured so that the lumber will not cut to waste.

Make the frame of rough lumber, using any odds and ends one may have around the place; cover roof and sides and ends with tarred paper. For ventilation, a six-inch space is left the entire length of the house at the lower end and this is covered with wire netting. For further ventilation holes are bored in one end at the high side near the top. At the lower part of the house under the ventilating space the boards are arranged so that the one nearest the ground is hinged to the coop. The door in one end is made boiled to the boards 1 and 4, as shown. The fastener works in this manner: To unfasten, pull the board 1 to the left, which raises the end opposite 1 on account of the placing of b, and when released drops toward 1 and finally rests on the board marked 3. A close study of the illustration will show how simple the plan is, and how readily it may be put in operation on any swinging gate, provided always the gate is properly hung and works smoothly.—Indianapolis News.

A COOP ANNEX.

of any size desired, although the smaller the better, twenty inches square being a good size.—Exchange.

Buying Mixed Feeds.
Why any feeder of farm stock should buy mixed grains is more than one can understand, unless he is too lazy to do the mixing himself. Time was when screenings were just what was claimed for them, the smaller grains which dropped through the sieves when screening was done for the first grade of grains. Now screenings are quite likely to be the sweepings from the mill floors and contain anything from nails to tobacco quids. Any of the grains used for feeding stock of any kind can be bought without mixture and one can tell by examination if they are reasonably pure. They cost some more than the mixed feeds, to be sure, but they are cheapest in the end, for less has to be fed. Of all the bad mixed feeds the ground feeds are the worst, for it is practically impossible to know what is in the mixture, that is, for the ordinary observer to ascertain. In feeding poultry it has been demonstrated time and again that it pays to pay 25 per cent more for the grains by themselves than to feed the mixtures bought in that form.

Caring for Harness.
If the harness is very soiled and stiff the best way of getting it in prime condition is to take it apart at every place where it is fastened by a buckle and soaking it in water which has been a trifle warm. Then take a stiff brush, a small scrubbing brush will answer the purpose, and scrub each part of the harness thoroughly. Then spread it out to dry and if any portion is still sticky scrub it again. To soften and preserve the leather nothing is better than neat's-foot oil, which is readily obtained. Apply a small quantity to the harness and rub it in thoroughly with the hand. In the absence of this oil use sweet oil. After thoroughly oiling see that each buckle moves freely and that none of the stitches is broken at the seams.

Two or three times a year of overhauling the harness as suggested will keep it in such condition that it will last for years longer than when carelessly treated.

For Barb Wire Cuts.
When a horse has been injured on wire the first thing to do is stop the flow of blood; this may be a rule be done by bandaging it up tight. It may also frequently be best to apply powdered alum or common saleratus, both of which will generally be found effective. In a few hours, considerable swelling will set in; this should be reduced either by applying cold water frequently, or, what is really better, applying pure kerosene oil, not only to the wound, but also to the swollen parts. No bandage should be kept on where kerosene is used, as it will then cause the hair to fall off temporarily, and as soon as it is safe to do so, the sore should be carefully washed with soft water and castile soap. This ought to be repeated daily until the sore heals. One of the best healing medicines for horseflesh that I have ever used can be put up at any drug store, as follows: One-half pint of alcohol; one-half pint of spirits of turpentine; 1 ounce of pure glycerine; mix all together in a large bottle and shake well before using. Apply only with a feather at morning and night. The sore should never be bandaged. By daily washing it will in this way heal up very rapidly. I can personally testify to the effectiveness of this simple remedy, as we have made use of it in numerous cases, with the best results, where every other remedy we tried failed to heal up the sore on the horse.—Agricultural Epitomist.

Practical Gate Fastener.
A swing gate is somewhat of a nuisance, unless it is arranged with a fastener that will act as desired. The idea illustrated is a simple one, and will be seen. Take a strip of one by four material and cut it of convenient length, as shown at figure 1. It must, however, be long enough to extend beyond the cross bar 1 and the upright piece at figure 2, both of which pieces are double—that is, one on either side of the gate. Two iron pieces (b) are

How Warmth Economizes Food.
Temperature has a great effect on fattening animals. Where farm stock are kept in cold houses it becomes necessary to increase the quantity of food in order to maintain the warmth of the body. In many cases pig feeders pay little attention to this matter, and rather than go to the expense of providing warm stys for the accommodation of their animals in winter they often adopt the ultimately more expensive plan of giving additional food to keep up the normal heat of the body.

Poultry Notes.
It is pretty hard to feed the hen too much if the food is of the right sort. Improper feeding does more harm than excessive feeding.

Have you tried the dry feeding system, now practiced by most of the well known poultrymen of the country?

Eggs are the basis of the poultry industry. Egg farming is the most profitable branch of poultry culture. But in order to get eggs we have to keep hens as a sort of necessary incubation.

Some people keep hens at a profit of 50 cents or less per year. Others get as high a profit as $3 per hen. It is partly a difference in the hens, but it is much more a difference in the man or woman behind the hen.

Very large size is not desirable in any variety of fowls. According to the new standard, when "two birds are equal in other respects, the one nearer the weight called for will have the preference, and not the heavier bird, as formerly. Of course, this rule is against under size as much as against over size.
