dictates or officers. I do further declare that the doctrine of the Church of England, the Calvinists, Huguenots, and of others of the name of Protestant, to be damnable, and they themselves are damned, and to be damned, that will not forsake the same. I do declare that I will help, assist, and advise all or any of his Holiness's agents in any place wherever I may be, in England, Scotland, and Ireland, or in any other territory or kingdom I shall come to, and do my utmost to extirpate the heretical Protestants' doctrine, and to destroy all their pretended powers, regal or otherwise. I do further promise and declare that, notwithstanding I am dispensed with, to assume any religion heretical, for the propagating of the Mother Church's interest, to keep secret and private all her agents' counsels, from time to time, as they intrust me, and not divulge, directly or indirectly, by word or writing, or circumstance whatsoever, but to execute all that shall be proposed, given in charge, or discovered unto me by you, my ghostly father, or any of this sacred convent. All which, I, A. B., do swear by the blessed Trinity, and blessed Sacrament, which I am now to receive, to perform, and on my part to keep inviolably; and do call all the heavenly and glorious Host of Heaven to witness these my real intentions to keep this my oath. In testimony hereof, I take this holy and blessed sacrament of the Eucharist, and witness the same further with my hand and seal, in the fear of this holy convent, this —— day of —— Anno Dom., &c.

Mr. O'Keefe next took the floor and defended the Catholics from these imputations, and unequivocally pronounced the article read by Mr. Lampert, purporting to be the form of an oath taken by Catholics, to be a palpable forgery. He contended that the Catholics of this country were under no political obligations to the Pope of Rome—that the statement so frequently uttered by political Native Americans, that the Pope held any sway over the minds of the Catholicsin this country, so far as concerned their temporal condition, was basely false; that from before the Revolution down to this moment there were none more loyal to this government—there never has been, nor ever can be—than the Catholics; and the three millions of them in America would sacrifice their blood and their lives as readily as any other class to defend the liberties and to protect the institutions of the United States. And, continued Mr. O'K., should such a thing be possible that the Pope of Rome should attempt to interfere in any of the affairs of this government, he, for one, though no military man, would be among:t the most forward and early to cut off his sacerdotal head. We can follow him no further, as our limits will not permit. With the most strict silence did the very closely crowded auditory, as well as every member of the House, listen to this gentleman's defence of the religion of his earliest ancestors, handed down to himself. Mr. O'K. declared himself a firm democrat in every sense of the word, and never had the least idea of departing from that faith; but he would not pledge himself how he should vote if the abuse of William H. Seward was continued with the rancor which had thus far been evinced.

Other gentlemen addressed the House. Among them, Messrs. Rhodes, Ernans, Petty, and Gleason. To-morrow morning the discussion will be resumed; and as things now bear an aspect, the question will be taken on Tuesday morning, when not a vote will be found against it.

During the session, Mr. A. G. Thompson, of New York, rose to a question of privilege. He read from the "New York Times of yesterday a short sentence to which he objected, as stating things which never occurred, and drawing inferences entirely unwarrantable as to his conduct as one of the counsel for Mr. Seldon, whose seat was contested. He concluded, by stating that he was willing to let the matter rest until to-morrow, when, if no retraction or apology appears in the paper from the writer, then he should move for his expulsion from the floor of the House. Mr. O'Keefe, as an associate counsel in the case, who was also implicated in the offensive article, stated that he had volunteered his services in order to assist his friend in retaining his seat, but emphatically denied having received any retainer fee, and would take none for his services in the case. Mr. Stevens also rose, and said he was mentioned in the article read, and that he occupied the exact position with Mr. O'Keefe in this matter. The thought of a retainer—the thought of receiving pay for the assistance thus rendered, never entered his brain. What he did was no more than any other member would do under like circumstances, and that was for the sake of justice. He cared not what action was taken in this matter, though he thought that reporters who occupied places on the floor should not abuse that privilege by representing members in a different light than that in which they really stood. Nothing further was said or done.

Mr. Whitney introduced this resolution in the Senate, viz.:—Resolved, That the Commissioners of Emigration be requested to inform the Senate by what authority Thomas Dunlap has been, and is, recognized as a member of their Board, and permitted to take part in its proceedings.

It was laid on the table on motion of Mr. Hopkins.

It appears that Mr. Dunlap was nominated by ex-Governor Seymour as Commissioner, but the Senate did not seem to think Tom's free soilism and softness very essential recommendations, and rejected him. Mr. Whitney very naturally inquires what right have the Commissioners to recognise the rejected gentleman as one of their body. They may as well prepare an answer at once, as the inquiry will reach them in a day or two.

Lieut. Gov. Raymond opens his parlors, at Congress Hall, on Monday evening. The election for Senator comes off the next day, provided &c., &c.

The result of the caucus, supposed to elect Seward, has thrown the groggeries and rum holes into complete exhilaration. The friends of that gentleman are already openly declaring that there shall be no prohibitory law passed during the session. Mr. Coleman seems perfectly delighted to-day. Let the temperance men take another look into the faces of the exuberant leaders of the dominant party.

The New Jersey Prohibitory Liquor Law.

TRENTON, Feb. 2, 1855.

The majority of the Senate's committee to whom was referred the bill for the suppression of intemperance, yesterday morning reported it back to the Senate with a number of amendments. The amendments relate principally to minor particulars, and do not affect the really vital features of the bill. The sections which provide the form of bond to be given by the agents appointed to sell liquors, are stricken out, and provision made that all such bonds shall be in the usual form, without imposing extraordinary conditions. The section which disqualifies a person engaged in the unlawful traffic of intoxicating liquors from serving as a juror in any case arising from this act, is also stricken out, as are those parts of the several sections which provide for instituting suits against offenders in the name of the township, city, borough, or town where the offence shall have been committed, and those other clauses which direct that all forfeitures of fines for violations shall go to the treasury of the township, city, &c., in which they occur.

The minority of the committee also reported, a bill providing for the holding of an election in November next, whereat the sense of the people shall be taken in reference to the law of prohibition. They report no law, leaving that to be made by the next Legislature should the people decide they want one.

"Sebastopol not Taken yet."—Old Song.

"Sebastopol not taken yet," ten thousand tongues have said;
Sebastopol not taken yet, with twice ten thousand dead.
Still the moaning and the groaning of the dying 's on the wind,
Whilst death alone cries Victory, over body without mind.
There is murmur in the camp, there is wailing in the hall,
For the slaughter of the brave before Sebastopol:
This the only air of late our trumpeter has blown,
"The lion went to battle, but left his head at home."
London Times.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2, 1855.

DR. B. BRANDRETH:—

From the great use of tobacco I became so debilitated about eight years ago that my physicians considered it impossible for me to recover. I was worn down to skin and bones, was afflicted with chronic dyspepsia, and everything I ate disagreed with me. I had constant pain in my chest, my bowels were costive, and seldom moved without recourse to medicine, which debilitated me more and more. In this condition I was recommended to use your "vegetable universal pills." I did so, and gradually became restored to excellent health through their use. They mildly, yet energetically purged, and after each portion I seemed to be endowed with new life. My original robust health was soon restored, and I thank God I am now a vigorous man of fifty-six. But for your pills I verily believe I should be now in my grave.

I shall be pleased to see any one at my store, and will state further particulars.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant, JOSEPH KERR.

No. 813 Broadway, above Eleventh street, or at the Irving House, New York.

Public Notice.—The late firm of Rushton, Clark & Co. being dissolved, by the death of Mr. Rushton, the only person of the name of Rushton ever connected with the firm, the business will be continued by HEGEMAN, CLARK & CO., surviving partners and sole successors, 165, 275 and 511 Broadway, all connection with the store 10 Astor House being discontinued. The genuine cod liver oil will be prepared only by us, as heretofore. Our Mr. Clark went to Newfoundland to superintend its manufacture, and is the only druggist who has been there to make the oil; and as he will continue his supervision of that branch of our business, we can warrant our oil pure and genuine, and as success depends upon its purity, be particular to see that the name Hegeman, Clark & Co. is over the cork of each bottle, as without it it is not genuine. The business will be conducted the same as heretofore, as Mr. Hegeman, although his name has not been prominent in the firm, has been in the establishment twenty-six years, and a member of the firm ever twelve years, and had the principal supervision of the business, and no exertion will be spared to secure the satisfaction and interest of our customers. All the recipes of W. L. Rushton, Rushton & Aspinwall, Rushton & Co., and Rushton, Clark & Co. are in our possession, and will be prepared under Mr. Hegeman's supervision, the same as for twenty years past, and their genuineness and quality guaranteed by HEGEMAN, CLARK & CO.
