Citizens Moving to the Country.—Without expressing an opinion as to the propriety of using alcohol, in any form, as a beverage, but leaving that to be determined by the temperament, the taste, and the physical condition of the individual, it may be as well to mention the advantages which the schnapps possess over every other species of liquor, as a mild and conservative exhilarant. From the fact of its unequalled purity and its combination with the concentrated essence of juniper, (one of the most valuable stomachics and diuretics known in pharmacy,) it neither begets that inordinate appetite for stimuli, nor produces that nervous reaction, which always follow the habitual use of what are usually called ardent spirits.

The highest chemical authority in this country has indorsed the schnapps as purer than the best French brandy, while in price it is much cheaper than the worst. The repeated failures of the European grape crops have raised the value of genuine brandy (if, indeed, such a rarity is procurable at all,) to a figure which places it beyond the reach of nine-tenths of our population.

As a means of neutralizing the deleterious properties of unwholesome water, the Seniedam aromatic schnapps is absolutely invaluable to the traveller. It will infallibly prevent the dysenteric and laxative disorders which attack strangers who use the waters of the Mississippi, the Ohio, the Alabama, and other western and southern rivers. It stimulates, in a moderate degree, the digestive organs, and thus enables the stomach to resist the otherwise disturbing influences of the varieties of the universal fluid encountered on a journey. It should be in the hands of every citizen and traveller.

Put up in quart bottles, with my name on the bottle, cork and label. For sale by all the respectable druggists in the city.

By A. De Lamartine, author of "The Girondists."
Travels in the Holy Land, &c., translated from Early Sheets, by an arrangement with the author.
Vol. I now ready. Price $1. To be completed in three volumes.

Startled from their long slumber by the perils of their race and name, attacked in the midst of peace by an invasion of their seas and territory, insulted in their dwellings, assassinated, overwhelmed on all sides by the armies of these Muscovites, who take number for right, and the sabre for title. The Turks erect upon their latest frontier, and wielding the weapons of dispair, are fighting reckless to see if Turkey shall not be regenerated in their blood, or to die themselves before the last hour of their country.

Extract from preface.

THE GREAT ENGLISH HUMORIST!
Published This Day.
MEN OF CHARACTER.
BY DOUGLAS JERROLD,
Author of "Caudle Lectures," "St. Giles and St. James," "Man Made of Money," &c.
CONTAINING:
Job Pippins, the Man Who Couldn't Help It.
Isaac Cheek, the Man of Wax.
Titus Trumps, the Man of Many Hopes.
Jack Runnymede, the Man of Many Thanks.
Humorously Illustrated with Original Designs by Coffin.
In 1 vol, 12mo. Cloth, 75 cents; Paper, 50 cents.

Douglas Jerrold's keen satire, shrewd observation, piquancy and humor are unapproachable, and in nothing from his pen have these characteristics been more forcibly displayed than in the sketchy stories which compose the above volume. They are redundant with comic situations and amusing adventures, and are replete with that humor which gave so wide a popularity to the "Candle Lectures." The oddest and most laughter-provoking characters are grouped together. Plights and predicaments, inexpressibly funny, continually occur, and the reader is frequently betrayed into spontaneous explosions of laughter. They are not only mirthful, but sharp, keen, sarcastic, possessing a covert philosophy, and not infrequently making use of the jester's license to start suggestive truths.
