Hunter's Medical Specialist, and Journal of Diseases of the Chest.
From the N. Y. Evening Mirror:—Judging by the initial number, Dr. Hunter's Specialist will, in interest, intelligence, scientific and practical knowledge, and vigor of conduct, rank at the very head of medical journalism. In this number the Doctor sets his purpose—already alluded to—forcibly but decidedly, and treats us to powerful articles on "Medicated Inhalation," "Diseases of the Throat and Lungs," "Asthma, its nature, causes and cure," "Medical Specialties," "The prevalence and importance of Tubercular Diseases," and an interesting essay on the importance of a proper classification of diseases. But an article that will command general attention, and interest, we rather think, the medical profession, is a reply to an outlaught made by Dr. Hall, editor of the Journal of Health, against inhalation. The article is titled "A Concentrated Ninny," and though written with marvellous good humor, is a sort of flaying alive of the Journal of Health man. It reminds us of a torture figure of the Spanish Inquisition, called "The Blessed Virgin," which had an agreeable first blush for the victim led to its embrace, but which, on touching certain springs, opened a glittering breast of sword blades.

Be very careful that each bottle bears upon the label the fac simile signature of Mr. Edm'd C. Charles, and the words "Charles' London Cordial Gin," blown in the glass. None other is genuine. This gin, so delicious as a beverage, bears the endorsement of thousands of physicians in the United States and in England, by whom it is administered in all cases in which a pure extract of the Italian juniper berry is deemed efficacious. The trade supplied in cases of one and two dozen bottles, by the sole proprietors, DE VENOGE & CHARLES, 138 Pearl st.

Improvements in the Astor House.—Mr. CRISTADORO has recently enlarged and embellished his premises, No. 6 Astor House, at an expense of some thousands of dollars. His establishment may now be justly termed a model of its class. The eye is not oppressed by a glare of gilding and German looking glasses, but rests upon classic bas reliefs and a collection of paintings by the old masters, which has probably few equals in this country. The ornamental work is in good taste and not over done, and the appliances of convenience and comfort are worthy of all praise. An elegant suit of private apartments for dressing and dyeing the hair is one of the main features of the new improvements. These rooms are as elegantly fitted up as a lady's boudoir. The whole interior has been elegantly refurnished, and the chairs especially are superb. The fancy store has just been supplied from Paris and London with perfumery, cutlery, hair materials, and a variety of fashionable furnishing goods, including Paris shirts, gloves, cravats, &c. Every article is of the first quality, and warranted to be a direct importation. The immense success of his Excelsior Hair Dye, and the increase of his business generally, has compelled Mr. Cristadoro to make a corresponding enlargement of his accommodation for customers. N. B.—Mr. Cristadoro will give his exclusive attention to one of the hair cutting departments from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M.
