THE MILITARY.

THE NINTH REGIMENT TURNED OUT FOR INSPECtion on the 17th inst., commanded by Colonel Picton, the Irish Grenadiers on the right. This company attracted particular notice, for so many fine looking men. They numbered forty muskets, and certainly do credit to their officers and themselves for their thorough acquaintance in military evolutions, as displayed in review. The commanding officer took occasion to compliment the Captain, Mr. Felix Duffy, and the Orderly Sergeant, Mr. H. O'Brien, of whom there cannot be too much said for his and the officers' perseverance in organizing this company, although so fiercely opposed by other parties.
