And to be had of all the booksellers. Price $1.
This is one of the most interesting books of travel that has been issued recently from the New York press. PROFESSOR BEDFORD'S NEW WORK.—THE DISeases of Women and Children; by G. S. Bedford, A. M. M. D., Professor of Obstetrics, the Diseases of Women and Children, and Clinical Midwifery, in the University of New York. Second edition.
This eminently practical work, which has only been recently issued from the press, is meeting with a rapid and extended circulation, a second edition being called for within three months from its first publication. It is a storehouse of [illegible] ledge for the student and practitioner of medicine, full of [illegible] ical precepts and bedside information, and is replete with valuable instruction to the non-professional reader.
We hail the advent of such a work abounding in practical matter of the deepest interest, and illustrated by principles and laws ordained by nature. Nor can we refrain from expressing our surprise and gratification at finding the book so remarkably exempt from the superficial views that abound in the great thoroughfare of medicine.—New York Journal of Medicine and the Collateral Sciences.
A work of great practical interest—one well calculated to interest and instruct the busy practitioner.—Virginia Medical and Surgical Journal.
The book before us we regard as an important contribution to medical science; and we feel it our duty to say that, in our opinion, the author has rendered, by the publication of this volume, an acceptable service to the profession. The work is full of practical precepts, presented in language at once intelligible and chaste. For the practioner of medicine it is invaluable. The student will find it a vade mecum, full of instructive lessons.—Charleston Medical Journal and Review.
An examination of the pages of this book has satisfied us that it is one full of interest and instruction, not alone for the practitioner of medicine, but for the community at large; for, independently of the valuable information it contains with respect to almost every disease incident to women and children, it is replete with sound practical precepts for parents in regard to the present system of female education. There is, here and there, a severe but just hit at the fashions and follies of the day; and all in a style and manner not only captivating and convincing, but occasionally truly eloquent.—N. Y. Observer.
The author of this work is well known as the Professor of Obstetrics in the University of New York, and a medical practitioner of great experience and eminent ability. The volume reproduces, in a very attractive form, a vast amount of observation and experience, and must prove highly acceptable to the medical profession, and abounds in passages well worthy the attention of the general reader.—N. Y. Courier and Enquirer.
The work displays a great deal of research, and embodies a large amount of practical knowledge upon the subjects to which it refers.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.
Published by S. S. & W. WOOD, 261 Pearl street, N. Y. Pages, 570. Price $2 75 by mail, free of postage.

REYNOLDS' GREAT NOVEL ON THE WAR.—SECOND edition now ready of
OMAR PASHA;
OR, THE VIZER'S DAUGHTER.
BY G. W. M. REYNOLDS,
Author of "Life in London," "Ellen Munroe," &c. Price 50 cents.
[From the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.]
It would have been well for his reputation had the author always written books so unexceptionable, and at the same time so interesting as the one under notice. This is a romance of the war between Russia and Turkey, and the hero is the veritable Omar, whose generalship beat the Russians back from the Danube. In the course of the story, graphic descriptions are given of most of the brilliant actions of the war, down to the battle of Inkermann. Dr. Reynolds was formerly, we are told, an officer in the British army, and his knowledge of military science has enabled him to depict military scenes with rare spirit and fidelity. Published by STRINGER & TOWNSEND, 222 Broadway, N. Y.

THE POETRY OF HUMOR AND THE HUMOR OF poetry!
No book for years has created such a sensation in the laughing world as the
WIDOW BEDOTT PAPERS.
Throughout the humorous pages are interspersed some of the most original "poetry" extant.
The Widow in speaking of her late relict, Deacon Hezekiah Bedott, says:—
"He never jawed in all his life,
He never was cross to me,
And (tho' I say it, that was his wife,)
Such men you seldom find.
I never changed my single lot;
I thought 'twould be a sin;
For I thought so much o' Deacon Bedott,
I never got married agin.
* * * * * * * *
And since it was my lot to be
The wife of such a man,
I tell the men that's after me,
To ketch me if they can.
* * * * * * * *
Whiskey and rum he tasted not,
He thought it was a sin;
The inconsolable Widow o' Deacon Bedott,
Don't intend to marry agin."
Shortly after the inconsolable widow falls in love with the preaching of Elder Sniffles, who is "laid up" with a cold, and receives the following Epistle:—
O! Reverend Sir, I do declare
It drives me a'most to frenzy,
To think o' you, a lyin' there,
Down sick with influenzy.
A body'd a thought it was enough
To mourn yer wife's departer,
Without such trouble as this 'ere
To come a follerin' arter.
But sickness and affliction is trials sent
By the will o' a wise Creation,
And always ought to be underwent
With fortitude and resignation,
Then mourn not for yer gardner's death,
But to submit endeever,
For 'spessn she hadent a died so soon,
She couldent a lived forever.
Oh, I could to yer bedside fly,
And wipe yer weepin' eyes,
And try my best to cure you up,
If 'twouldent create surprise.
* * * * * * * *
Both sick and well, you may depend,
Youie never be forgot
By your faithful and affectionate friend,
PRISCILLA POOLE BEDOTT.
The tender sentiment of this poem reached the Elder's heart, as acknowied, ed in a feeling response. Shortly after, the Widow retires to a grove in the rear of Elder Sniffle's house, sits down on a log, and sings as follows:
Ere love had teached my tears to flow
I was uncommon cheerful,
But now such misery I dew know,
I am always sad and tearful.
What pleasetin hours I once enjoyed,
All! on a Summer day!
But O, my comforts were destroyed,
When Shadrack crossed my way!
I heard him preach—I heard him pray—
I heard him sweetly sing—
Dear me! how I did feel that day!
It was a dredful thing!
Full forty dollars would I give
If we'd continnered apart,
For tho' he's made my spirit live,
He's surely hurt my heart!
The Elder overhears the song, but does not yield until he hears the following:
Here sleeps Priscilly P. Bedott,
Late relic of Hezekiah—
How melancholly was her lot—
How soon she did expire!
She did'nt commit no suicide,
'Twas tribulation killed her.
O! what a pity she hadn't a died
Afore she saw the Elder.
After the widow's marriage to Elder Shadrack Sniffles, she contributes the following to the "Scrabble Hill Luminary:"—
"Priscilly the lady and Shadrack the wise,
Have united their fortunes in the tenderest of ties;
And being mutually joined in the matrimonial connection,
Have bid adieu to their previous affliction—
No more will they mourn their widowed situation,
And continue to sythe without mitigation;
But partakers for life, to be paired no more,
Their cares is ended, their troubles is o'er.
'O, Shadrack! my Shadrack! Priscilla did speak,
While the rosy red blushes surmounted her cheek,
And the tears of affection beoozzled her eye,
'O Shadrack! my Shadrack! I'm your's till I die;
The heart that was scornful and cold as a stone,
Has surrendered to thee its last farthing—
Farewell to the miseries and griefs I have had;
I'll never desert thee, O Shadrack, my dad!'"
The future fortunes of the Elder and Mrs. Sniffles, and her sister Aunt Maguire, are they not recorded in the book, with pictors to match?
