TWO NEW BOOKS ON SOUTHERN LIFE.—Now ready and for sale at the booksTores,
WOMAN'S FAITH;
A TALE OF SOUTHERN LIFE.
One neat 12mo. Price 75 cents.

This story is founded on the fortunes of a French family, who, leaving France soon after the revolution, settles in Louisiana. It contains many pleasant and lively descriptions of southern life at that time, without showing a Cuban spirit for southern institutions. The author has for many years held a distinguished official position in the city of New Orleans, and from his stand point gives the reader a view of Southern life. Here we have another well told story, the scene of which is located in Louisiana. It is the work of a powerful imagination, a well regulated taste and an entertaining pen. To form a plot is one thing, and to develope it naturally and effectively is another; but in both these particulars the anonymous author of the volume before us is at home. Without transgressing the bounds of nature, he has introduced sufficient incident to maintain an undiminished interest throughout. No one can ponder these pages without admiring the depth of love, the undying constancy of woman. Change after change her varied life may undergo, but her heart knows none.—N. Y. Courier.

Also,
THE CREOLE ORPHANS;
Or, LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF SOUTHERN LIFE;
A tale of Louisiana, by Jas. S. Peacocke, M. D., of Mississippi.
One neat 12mo; price $1.

It has the clear ring of the true metal, and must be read with absorbing interest. The opening chapters are very thrilling, and we have not in some time more unwillingly forgone an anticipated pleasure than in ceasing before we had read the last word. One is insensibly, but very pleasantly reminded in reading, of that most tropical of all books, Prof. J. H. Ingraham's "Quadroon."—N. Y. Sunday Courier.

This is one of those books which so rivet and excite the reader's interest that he cannot lay it aside until he has turned the last leaf, and no one can rise from it without more rational and more patriotic impressions of Southern life than usually prevail where the truth remains unknown.—New York Daily News.

Copies sent by mail, post paid, on receipt of price.

THE LECTURE SEASON.

BRIDGEPORT, FEB. 22, 1856.—MR. HEINE, BIBLE House:—My Dear Sir—I prepare this note here, knowing I shall have but a moment's stay at New York on my way (tomorrow) to Schenectady. Mr. ——— told me that your man stated something against me and my mission. Now, during our first four years' stay at Loo Choo, it is true, we were greatly hindered, but since then we have circulated hundreds of volumes, and we have found access to almost every house. We have made converts there, and one of us has even become a martyr. Please tell your man to mind well what he says about me. Yours truly, B. P. BETTELHEIMER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Dear Sir—In my lecture on the Japan Expedition at the Panoramas of China and Japan, now on exhibition at 654 Broadway, I mentioned the Rev. Dr. Bettelheimer's missionary labors in Loo Choo. Not having any personal knowledge of the facts, I quoted from Mr. Spalding's "Journey to Japan and Round the World," that in the course of eight years the Rev. Dr. B. had not succeeded in making one convert. A letter from the Rev. Dr. B. contradicts this statement, and in order to do justice to a zealous worker in a good cause, I feel bound to lay his letter before the public. Very respectfully yours,
H. J. SHOMBERG,
Agent and Lecturer for the Panorama of China and Japan.
