ALBERT H. NICOLAY, AUCTIONEER.—PEREMPtory sale of a valuable twenty one years' lease, of the corner of Broadway and Howard street, 50x100 feet.—ALBERT H. NICOLAY will sell, without reserve on Thursday, May 22, 1856, at 12½ o'clock, at the Merchants' Exchange, corner of Broadway and Howard street, the very desirable and valuable twenty-one years' lease of the live story fireproof building, on the southwest corner of Broadway and Howard street, formerly known as the City Hotel, having a front on Broadway of 50 feet, and 100 feet on Howard street. No property has been offered in Broadway for many years which offers such inducements for improvement—being situated in the immediate vicinity of all the leading hotels and railroad depots. The location, for business purposes, is unsurpassed, from the fact that many of our leading merchants are now doing business in the neighborhood, and others contemplate building. The opening of Canal street will also greatly benefit this property, and many other improvements which are in contemplation, must largely and rapidly increase the value of all real estate surrounding this location. For the investment of capital, this sale offers great inducements, and the attention is particularly called of all persons seeking to make permanent investments, and are respectfully requested to inspect the premises. The terms of the sale will be made unusually liberal, and possession can be had within thirty days from the day of sale, or earlier if required. For full particulars apply to ALBERT H. NICOLAY, No 4 Broad street.

WE, WHOSE NAMES ARE HEREUNTO ATTACHED, being passengers on board the ship William Stetson, J. L. Jordan, commander, which sailed from Liverpool for New York on Saturday, April 5, with between five and six hundred souls on board, consider it our bounden duty to return to the said Captain Jordan our most sincere thanks for his kindness, civility and general attention to our safety during the whole of the voyage, and under the most trying circumstances, being totally dismasted on Saturday the 3d instant, and again on the following Monday night, when every stitch of canvass was carried away which could have been erected on the temporary masts; during which time we expected every moment to terminate our existence. We also wish to speak in very favorable terms of the kindness and conduct of Mr. William Dyas, surgeon, for his attention to the health of the passengers generally, and his strenuous exertions to save our lives and the ship. The second mate, Mr. Edward Read, we also wish to speak of in very favorable terms for his general civility and assistance on the voyage. We cannot pass over without expressing our sincere thanks to Mr. Thos. White, third mate, for his [illegible] and [illegible] pilots [illegible] that he considers he has not done more than in duty bound, both to them and his employers, in endeavoring to save their lives and the ship; he at the same time feels sensibly that their strenuous exertions in carrying out his wishes, on that occasion, contributed in no small degree to their safety, and that of cargo, for which, he also returns his sincere thanks and his having secured their good opinion shall always be remembered as one of the events of his life. Mr. Wm. Dyas desires me to say that he feels grateful for your good opinion of him, and that it will always be his study to add to the comfort and happiness of those he may be placed among, your discernment of the conduct of my second mate, Mr. Read, and also that of my third, Mr. White, is quite in accordance with what I feel on the occasion, particularly the latter, who well merits all you have said of him
