FINANCIAL.

AUGUST BELMONT & CO., BANKERS, NO. 50 WALL street, New York, issue letters of credit to travellers available in all parts of Europe, through the Messrs Rothschild, of Paris, London, Frankfort, Vienna, Naples and their correspondents

CLEVELAND AND TOLEDO RAILROAD COMPANY'S Office, Cleveland, Ohio, March 1861.—The Cleveland and Toledo Railroad Company are ready to receive in exchange for their Sinking Fund Mortgage Bonds, all the other outstanding bonds, including:—
Junction Railroad first mortgage first division bonds, issued April 1, 1852.
Junction Railroad first mortgage second division bonds, issued December 1, 1852.
Junction Railroad second mortgage bonds, issued November 1, 1852.
Junction Railroad income bonds (unsecured), issued June 1, 1852.
Toledo, Norwalk and Cleveland first mortgage bonds, issued September 1, 1851.
Toledo, Norwalk and Cleveland second mortgage bonds, issued September 1, 1851.
Cleveland and Toledo income and dividend bonds (all the various issues up to the present time).
The Sinking Fund Mortgage bonds, offered in exchange for the foregoing bonds, are secured upon the main line of the company's road, subject to about $830,000 only of Toledo, Norwalk and Cleveland first and second mortgages, and also upon all other property belonging to the Cleveland and Toledo Railroad Company, and also by a sinking fund of one per cent per annum of the funded debt of the company, managed by commissioners into whose hands the company has already paid about $100,000 cash for investment. They are made payable in New York city in 1885, and bear semi-annual interest coupons at seven per cent, payable at Corn Exchange Bank, New York, in January and July. They are all of the denomination of one thousand dollars, and are limited to the amount of three and a half millions.
Exchanges have been effected to the present time to the amount of considerably over one million of dollars of the various classes, for which the sinking Fund mortgage bonds have been issued and are now outstanding.
The attention of parties now holding the remaining portion of the various classes named above is invited to the arrangement thus afforded them to take the new mortgage bonds in exchange for bonds they now hold, and which are worth no more in the market than the Sinking Fund mortgage bonds.
We would remark:—That the absorption of now outstanding bonds of the several issues above named enhances the security upon the new bonds, and therefore the value of the bonds themselves—that in a few years these bonds will become the first mortgage bonds upon a property costing twice their amount—that already these bonds have sold in the New York market as high as 81 per cent, and that the payment of any portion of the bonded debt will still more enhance the value of these already favorite securities, and render them very desirable for investment.
Parties wishing to make the exchange may do so by sending the old bonds, in sums of $1,000, to Messrs. Carpenter & Vermilye, 34 Wall street, New York, who will issue new bonds and adjust any differences of interest, or to this office (at our expense if sent by the United States Express), in either case relying upon a prompt return of the new bonds.
H. C. LUCE, Treasurer.

I am pleased to be able to inform you that both the large four Oven Hotel and the smaller Family Ranges are working to our entire satisfaction.
They are made substantially and well, do their work in the best manner, and consume but a moderate amount of coal; the former only one third, and the latter one-half the quantity used by the fixtures that preceded them.
The large Range is eminently fitted for use in hotels or large institutions of all kinds, while the small one is equally well adapted for family use.
I trust the public will soon become acquainted with the superior merits of these valuable fixtures.
Respectfully, yours,
