and force them to retreat. This lasted about twenty minutes, the enemy's infantry also taking part in the fight. The cavalry then drew off, and endeavored to cut off the retreat of our men by taking possession of the bridge. Here they unexpectedly came upon the reserve, under Major Schnepf, who saluted them with another volley from his rifles, that emptied half a dozen saddles and drove the enemy back. The advance party in the mean time crossed over towards the North Bethel road, up which the cavalry were retreating, and, taking post in the woods again, fired another volley into them, scattering them, unhorsing a lot more and driving them in confusion upon their infantry. The whole body of them, horse and foot, gathered up their wounded, and then retired on a double quick up towards Big Bethel. A report of the engagement having reached camp about noon, General Mansfield sent out detachments of the First, Second and Eleventh New York regiments to support the Turners, but their services were not required, the gallant Twentieth having settled the affair themselves. The enemy's loss is estimated at about ten killed and twenty-five wounded. One of their killed, a private, was brought into camp by our men, and another, supposed to have been the officer of the day, from having his sash thrown over his shoulder, was seen to fall from his horse mortally wounded. On our side we had one sergeant and five men wounded. Their wounds are all very slight, and evidently made by buckshot. Among the trophies brought in were some saddles and bridles, taken from the wounded horses, and a lot of pistols.

Over fifty of the enemy were negroes. They were fully uniformed and armed, and are supposed to belong to a Louisiana regiment of infantry. They fought with great courage, and our men were all wounded by their fire. They were armed with shotguns, and your correspondent was shown a buckshot taken from the arm of one of our wounded men, which goes to confirm the statement. If there were ever any doubts about negroes being employed by the rebels as soldiers they are now dispelled. It is now known to be a fact.

GENERAL BURNSIDE'S DIVISION.

OUR ANNAPOLIS CORRESPONDENCE.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 19, 1861.

Magnificent Review by Brigadier General Foster and Major General Burnside—The D'Epineuil Zouaves, &c., &c.

Yesterday this department was enlivened by the grandest scene it has been the lot of many present to witness. Fifteen regiments—fourteen infantry and one cavalry, numbering fifteen thousand men—were reviewed by Brigadier General Foster, commanding the department.

The morning broke cloudy; but the sun, which rarely fails to shed its comforting beams upon this latitude, quickly dispelled the mists which overhung our encampment, and from every quarter there came the sounds of martial music and the busy preparation of marshalling hosts. The fine regiment of cavalry (Ira Harris Guard) was the first to leave its encampment for the scene of operations. Gallantly the senior Captain (Green) led forth his troop, followed in succession by the others, who on prancing steed and glittering steel wound their tortuous way—the head of the column showing itself a mile and a half to the front. Arriving at the ground first, they took up a position on the left, with the Fifty-first Pennsylvania and Twenty-fourth Massachusetts, the whole being formed into three brigades. The different brigades were under the command, respectively, of Brigadier General Foster and acting Brigadier Generals Colonel Morse and Colonel Heywood. The parade ground is situated about two miles from the city, on the railroad line, and afforded a fine opportunity for a good display of division, brigade and regimental evolutions, as it embraced some two thousand acres of smooth ground, with graceful, swelling undulations, which served to add considerably to the picturesque character of the review. There were some fifteen thousand men on the ground, and the scene was one of the most interesting which has ever occupied the attention of the people of the vicinity of Annapolis, who flocked by thousands in vehicles, on horseback and on foot to the parade ground, every available point around which was taken possession of by them.

At about eleven o'clock the reviewing party, consisting of Brigadier General Foster, Brigadier General Hatch, Inspector General Havelock, Assistant Adjutant General Richmond, and Aid-de-Camp Lieutenant D. C. Pell, of General Burnside's Staff; Assistant Adjutant General Hoffman and the Aids on General Foster's staff, Captain E. R. Goodrich, of the Commissary Department, and various members of the division and brigade staffs of the post. Following on foot came the Governor of the State and the members of the Legislature, which is now in session at this place. Commencing at the right of the column, they minutely inspected the different regiments, and of course expressed themselves highly gratified with the admirable good order and discipline of the troops. The brigade commanders, accompanied by their staffs, next reviewed their respective commands, and the reviewing party then took up their position at the southern extremity of the ground, at the right of the troops. Everything being in readiness, the clear tones of command rang along the whole line, and steadily, solidly, regiment after regiment broke into battalion column. At the word forward the whole body got in motion and filed by the reviewing generals. The scene presented by the moving columns far exceeded in grandeur the appearance presented by the troops when drawn up for inspection, notwithstanding that the latter possessed no ordinary splendor. The slow march was at times varied with the gay and dashing movement in "double quick," which exhibited still further the admirable precision with which the drill of the men had been perfected.

The only cavalry regiment on the ground was the Fifth regiment New York Volunteer cavalry, locally known as the Ira Harris Guard. Though but a short time under drill, and as yet but imperfectly equipped, the regiment presented quite an imposing appearance. General Foster has expressed himself as highly gratified with it. The Fifty-first and Fifty-third (D'Epineuil Zouaves) New York, the Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Connecticut regiments all came in for a due share of admiration, rendering distinction invidious. The review concluded shortly before one o'clock, and the regiments returned to their different encampments.

An affair of some interest occurred in the D'Epineuil regiment the other day. The Colonel hearing that some secession gentry had been instrumental in assisting some of his men to desert, he ordered Adjutant Vifquoni to take half a dozen men, and, if his information proved correct, to arrest them. After several adventures the Adjutant succeeded in capturing four men, whom he carried to headquarters, and by order of General Foster they were sent under escort to Baltimore. I have already stated that several desertions had taken place in this regiment. It is gratifying, however, to state now that the men have all returned.

The weather here is truly delightful, and were it not for the absence of leaves from the trees we would imagine that we were enjoying the balmy days of May or September.

The health of the troops is generally good, and the men are only anxious to exchange their present position for a more active one.

My letter being too late for last evening's mail, I have opened it to add that Major General Burnside has arrived and reviewed the troops here this morning, and a similar scene was presented to the preceding day's review.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

SATURDAY, Dec. 28—6 P. M.

There is no change in money, which is tolerably abundant at seven per cent. Foreign exchange closed with less strength than was shown by the market last evening. Bankers were willing to sell at 110¾ for sterling.

Stocks improved to-day on the announcement of the surrender of Mason and Slidell. The bears were free buyers at the morning board, and several street speculators took a line on buyers' option. The advance at the morning board was equal to 1½ in Pacific, ¾ in Central, 1¼ in Erie, 1¾ in Erie preferred, 1 in Michigan Central, ½ in guaranteed, 1 in Illinois Central, &c., &c. There was no business done in governments, but the sixes of 1881 were held 1 per cent higher. After the board the market was firm. At the second board the advance was maintained till toward the close, when there was a tendency to reaction, the market closing dull. The following were the last quotations:—United States 6's, registered, 1881, 87¼ a 87½; United States 6's, coupon, 1881, 90¼ a ½; United States 5's, coupon, 1874, 81 a ¾; Indiana 5's, 75 a 76; Virginia 6's, 47 a 48; Tennessee 6's, 41¾ a 42; North Carolina 6's, 59 a ½; Missouri 6's, 41 a 41; Pacific Mail, 90¼ a ¼; New York Central, 78¼ a ⅝; Erie, 30⅝ a ¾; do. preferred, 52 a ¼; Hudson River, 37 a ⅝; Harlem, 11¼ a 12; do. preferred, 28¼ a 29; Reading, 34 a 35; Michigan Central, 48 a 48; Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana, 18¾ a 19; do. guaranteed, 39 a ¾; Panama, 110 a ⅛; Illinois Central, 60¾ a ¾; Galena and Chicago, 65 a ¼; Cleveland and Toledo, 33½ a ¾; Chicago and Rock Island, 49 a ¼; Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, 56¼ a 59; Milwaukee and Prairie du Chien, 19¼ a 20; Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati, 101¼ a 102; New York Central 7's, of 1864, 98 a 99; Erie third mortgage bonds, 85¼ a 87½; Michigan Central 8's, first mortgage, 90 a 90½; Illinois Central bonds, 7's, 85 a 86.

CITY COMMERCIAL REPORT.

SATURDAY, Dec. 28—2 P. M.

FLOUR.—The market opened dull, but was firmer at the close, while the sales footed up about 9,000 a 10,000 bbls.

WHEAT closed firmer at yesterday's quotations, while sales were confined to about 30,000 bushels.

CORN was firm, and closed at about 1c. per bushel advance. The sales embraced about 75,000 bushels, closing at about 63c. a 64c. for Western mixed—the latter figure for shipping lots.

PORK was quiet, with sales of 200 bbls. at $12 25 a $12 62½ for old and new mess, and at $8 50 a $9 for prime.

WHISKEY.—Sales 200 a 300 bbls. at 18½c. a 18¾c.

THE DRY GOODS TRADE.

The following is a comparative statement of the imports of foreign dry goods at New York for the week ending December 26 and since January 1:—

	1859.	1860.	1861.
For the Week.
Ent'd. at the port	$2,490,408	1,609,897	494,688
Thrown on market	2,364,323	575,000	607,829
Since Jan. 1.
Ent'd. at the port	$110,215,400	100,075,087	43,176,047
Thrown on market	108,742,145	96,689,066	44,526,480

By the above statement it will be seen that the goods entered at this port the past week were less by one-third than they were at the same period the two preceding years. The amount thrown upon the market was slightly in excess of that for the same week in 1860, but less than one-third than it was in 1859. This year has only a few days remaining before its close; hence the aggregates since the 1st of January last may, with slight allowances, be accepted as those for the present year. Compared with the entries for 1860, they show a falling off equal in amount to $56,999,040, which is more than one-half; and compared with those for 1859 they show a decrease of $67,039,353. The amount thrown upon the market exhibits an almost equal discrepancy. Of the goods entered for consumption the past week, woollens amounted to $297,012, cotton to $46,047, silk to $18,157, flax to $27,013, miscellaneous to $7,148—total, $395,371. The exports of cotton piece goods the past week, as will be seen by the following table, were light, and chiefly to Cuba and Brazil:—

Domestic exports for the week ending December 26:—

		Bales.
Brazil	$17,088	191
Mexico	540	8
Cuba	21,545	144
British Honduras	178	2
Total	$39,351	345
Previously reported		55,350
Total since January 1		55,695

The general business the past week has been light, owing in some degree to the advent of the holidays, and to the uncertainty hanging over the foreign relations. Domestic cotton goods continued to be held with much firmness, and for some descriptions higher prices were demanded. Brown sheetings have been sold as high as 16½c., and light and medium styles have commanded 12½c. a 14½c. White drills were scarce at 16c. a 17c. Cotton ticks, stripes, denims and cotton flannels were held at higher prices, which tended to curtail transactions. Printing cloths, in which large speculative transactions have been made at the eastward, were firm at 9c., and higher prices asked. Prints were scarce, and prices were sustained. Bleached goods have not advanced in proportion to the value of raw cotton. The business in woollen goods was moderate, while prices were steady. In foreign goods the business was restricted, owing to the present unsettled condition of our foreign affairs. Importers, and especially English houses, were unwilling to sell unless the payments were made in cash, or in paper convertible at will into cash. This feeling also influenced jobbers to a greater or less extent, who were unwilling to part with goods except for cash or undoubted short paper.
