JUNE 20 - - ALL DAY

Crawford Differs with President.
Senator Crawford is opposed to reciprocity with Canada and therefore opposed to the administration, but the administration program cuts no figure in the case unless the President is right, and from the variety of opinion it is not easy for an outsider to tell who is right, but so far as the LEADER is concerned it is willing to accept the President's policy as the correct one, because we do not believe he would so strenuously urge reciprocity unless he was thoroughly convinced in advance that it is a good thing for all the people. President Taft has more at stake than any politician in the country, and while the LEADER has not been a Taft boomer it stands with him in his Canadian pact, and will believe he is right until, as he says, it is proven that he has not correctly estimated the reciprocal advantages for the people of this country. The LEADER admires his courage and believes he is unjustly criticised in advance of defendant results.

Senator Crawford has a perfect right to disagree with any government policy that he believes to be wrong, but we can find no just ground for his open opposition to a policy that can be determined only after application, and he is severely testing his imagination when he declares that it is a "cowardly abandonment of a grave duty." He seems to be much braver now than when the tariff bill was up for action. At that time a cowardly abandonment of a grave duty towards his constituents "out no ice" in the opinion of the distinguished gentleman, and at present he is somewhat disturbed over the prospects of "free paper," and it might be well to remind him that had it not been for some papers that were being robbed by the paper trust through excessive tariff, he would not now be in a position to vote upon the "cowardly abandonment of a grave duty" or criticize the newspapers for honest effort to bust the paper trust.

If the senator's judgment on reciprocity should prove to be better than the President's, the LEADER will be glad to acknowledge his remarkable foresight, but he is no better friend of the American farmer than the LEADER, and the LEADER is perfectly willing to abide by the actual results of a test.

There is grave suspicion that the trusts are opposed to reciprocity, and it is almost certain the great combines are opposed the "free list," and that certain men who take issue with the tariff bill should hesitate before talking about a "cowardly abandonment of a grave duty."

with the President in his efforts to promote their interests, as he honestly believes he is doing, and as level headed men they are willing to abide the result of determined facts.

If reciprocity proves a failure and does not meet the President's expectations, it can be repealed by congress, and no serious results can follow failure, while the experiment may determine some tariff conditions that may aid in the final solution of honest tariff revision.

There is one thing certain and that is that the South Dakota farmers believe that no reciprocal deal with Canada can be worse or half so bad as the trust price market in which the farmer is compelled to sell and buy. Farmers are better educated on market results and trade conditions than politicians whose chief ambition is office, and their willingness to trust President Taft in this matter is evidence of their knowledge that no harm can come from Canadian reciprocity, nor will they be willing to believe that the President is guilty of a "cowardly abandonment of a grave duty" until there is some proof.

Arizona Wants the Recall and Dakota Could Have Used it to Advantage.

The reason the Arizonians demand the recall of judges in their new constitution is, we presume, because of their sad experience with carpet-bag judges sent out to them to square up political debts contracted in the states.

Dakota Territory had some experience in this line, and, if the recall had been in force in those days the people would have had some chance to show their contempt for the appointing power at Washington, while the best they could do, in one case, was to burn a governor in effigy. One judge was forced to face a perjury charge in a real estate deal, another was ignorant of law and dubbed "Old Necessity," and some were too found of liquor and so it went, but the people were powerless to compel decency. Petitions stood no show for relief against the wishes of men in congress who threw their "political debts" into the territory. Some of the territorial appointees were good men, clean and honorable, but most of them came, not for their health, no, just for honor, don't you know.

Arizona, no doubt, has had sad experience with carpet bag officials and makes the recall a part of her constitution in order to protect the people against men who may need its influence to keep them decent. The recall has no terrors for upright, honorable judges, and the other class will not suffer unless their acts demand action by the people.

Death of John Tucker.
Uncle John Tucker, so well known by this affectionate title, and a Canton township pioneer, passed away at his home in this city Sunday night at 11 o'clock, aged 76. He had been ailing for a long time and the passing away of the old pioneer was not unexpected. He was a quiet, modest, home loving man, and his many friends appreciated his sterling worth as a citizen and a christian, being a member of the Congregational church.

The funeral was held Wednesday at 2 p. m. from the Congregational church, and the service was conducted by Rev. Buriff of the Methodist church because Pastor Oxley was absent in Minnesota. Interment was in Forest Hill cemetery under the direction of undertaker W. J. Byrnes.

John Tucker was a native of England and was born 76 years ago at Morshard Bishop, county Devonshire, and was married to Miss Anna Helge-land in 1863 at the old home in England. In 1871 he and his wife came to the United States and came west the same year locating in Lincoln county on a homestead where he lived and prospered.

Besides a widow he leaves two sons, Robert and William and Mrs. William Haw. William was at Isabel in the western part of the state when his father died but reached Canton Wednesday morning in time for the funeral.

The family of the deceased has the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their loss of a devoted husband and father, and his death reminds us that the pioneers of this county are passing away, several having gone to their reward since the first of January.

The Mid-West Company is composed of South Dakota capitalists, men who will make the Evans what it should be, the most popular summer and winter resort in the northwest. Hot Springs has climate and baths unsurpassed anywhere, and Gen. Averill, who had traveled around the world, told the writer that the Evans plunge was the best he had ever found.
