For President in 1912,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
Shall the people or the money
power rule?

Editor Linn's Dream.

The genial and accomplished editors of the Vermillion Republican, Danforth & Sloan, think Editor Linn had a political dream and reported the same which concerned the Gamble-Cull-Burke combines. These kind hearted brothers do us a great injustice when they assume that a little inside information concerning coming events was only a LEADER dream.

The Gamble-Cull deal is too apparent to need even a dream, and Mr. Burke's silence may indicate much or little. Gamble needs help in the Hills and Cull needs "help" in the "Cow Counties," and as Cull was appointed to a fat office through Gamble's influence, it is only natural that he would do all he could to help Mr. Gamble in the Hills where, it may be assumed, Mr. Martin will be a spectator.

If Mr. Cull will resign his position in the U. S. Land office at Rapid City, as Tom Sterling did at Vermillion, people might take some stock in his candidacy, but it looks more than suspicious that Mr. Cull, with a $3000 a year office, should be anxious to spend his money trying to win the governorship, and the effort would cost him at least two years' salary as governor to make a thorough campaign.

Cull belongs to the Taft office holding standpoint crowd and is anxious to see his standpat friend and benefactor—Gamble—returned to the senate, and you shouldn't expect anything else from a Gamble appointee, and Cull would be very ungrateful if he didn't "blister his feet" working for Robert J.

Our good brothers of the Vermillion Republican have a right to look upon the Burke end of the combination with doubt, if not suspicion, as the writer did, but Mr. Burke may have an ax to grind and he is considered a good grinder when the grindstone is handy. He and Mr. Gamble are Taft-interest promoters and there is no telling what they may have up their sleeve.

A communication in this week's LEADER from Deadwood indicates the character of Mr. Cull's political standing. The Deadwood writer believes Cull is labeled progressive with a standpat tag under his coat collar, and no offhand denial will convince to the contrary.

Mr. Cull is now drawing a much better salary, all things considered, than the governor of the state gets, and it does look mighty suspicious that a man holding a fat office should run for governor with one chance in four of winning.

If Mr. Cull is sincere in his desire to be governor, let him resign from the land office. No other candidate for governor is pulling $3,000 a year out of the treasury, and no federal official should be elected governor, especially a Taft-Gamble appointee, and it is not forgotten that Mr. Cull, shortly after he got a seat in the land office, publicly criticized the progressives for their obstructive tactics, and it should be remembered also that the Vermillion Republican when Bro. Willey was at the helm, was considered a standpat pillar of strength, and it may be considered a Linn dream if we state that Mr. Cull's candidacy is quite satisfactory to the gentlemen who now publish that excellent paper. Cull should resign from the land office if he wants to run for governor, and that is no dream.

Support La Follette.

Colonel A. Linn—bless his kind heart and great soul—is getting ready to support La Follette for president. That's enough to half unbalance the mind of most any man—Vermillion Republican.

The LEADER's first choice is Col. Roosevelt, the second Senator La Follette, and this comes from a sincere desire to see a republican president elected next year.

About the Same.

Congressman Vessey would undoubtedly honor and serve the State of South Dakota as faithfully and ably as Governor Vessey.

Just about the same. He would serve the purposes of those who have created the new machine, removing even so lowly a servant as a county game warden suspected of independent intentions.—Huronite.

Senator Crawford's announcement that he will support Senator La Follette for president and that South Dakota's delegation will be for the "Little Grant," of Wisconsin is timely, and Senator Crawford can do some good work for La Follette before returning to Washington in December.

President Taft seems determined to rule or ruin the republican party. He can't rule and ruin will follow if he is re-nominated.

The New York evening Post considers Senator La Follette a great man and big enough for the White House. A remarkable statement from a Wall Street organ.
