

ARTHUR LINN, Editor and Proprietor. KINSEY K. FOBES, Business Manager.

For President in 1912, THEODORE ROOSEVELT. Shall the people or the money power rule?

Canada is shouting—The pact is dead. W. H. T. is awfully mad. The progressives are glad. Many others are sad. Farmers sing—not so bad! Good news isn't it Dad? Arizonians—one and all. Declare its Taft's Recall. Be that as it may, It seems clear today. That Taft's all in. Through a reciprocity sin.

Reciprocity was—hush! They blame it to Champ Clark's annexation speech.

Reciprocity and the free list will be cousins and both died young. The president's tariff commission is hatching scientifically.

It must be a consolation to the president to know that Medicine Hat sustained his reciprocity pact with courage and numbers.

From present indications one is led to believe that the original standpaters have as little use for Gamble as the progressives.

The Groton Independent is of the opinion that Geo. W. Egan's band wagon will lead the primary procession.

Dick Richards will not be the candidate for the senate, but some other strong, clean, active progressive will be found to carry the people's banner to victory.

The Canucks fooled themselves good and plenty in refusing Taft's loaf of bread. They howled about annexation to the cunning Yankees and made faces at everything American, but, nevertheless, the western half of Canada will be annexed or annex itself to the United States, and the dividing line will be the Red River of the North north to Hudson Bay, all west of that line will form part of the United States before many years. Seven-tenths of the population will be American born.

Senator Crawford is big enough and man enough to admit that he was deceived by President Taft who pledged a progressive policy and tariff reduction, and when the President finally dropped his mask Mr. Crawford wheeled into line for LaFollette and stands ready to do his duty as a leader in the progressive battle. Col. Roosevelt was deceived by President Taft, and many other able men followed Taft to the edge of the quicksand and saved themselves as Senator Crawford did, who has reason now to regret his over confidence in the man Col. Roosevelt made President.

Gamble is a Wall street robber tariff advocate and a standpater of the standpats who backs in the presidential smile and has support of the interests in his campaign," says the Canton Leader. Is it so bad as that? Is this the sort of man the progressives of South Dakota have elected to the senate of the United States?—Argus Leader.

Yes, Brother, we sorrowfully admit that that's the kind of a man the progressives elected, and he's the kind of a man who betrays his friends and the people and is now riding on the front seat of the standpat bandwagon and shouting for Taft like the Argus Leader, but we do not charge the Argus Leader with helping Gamble onto the music box. The progressives elected Gamble and he deserted to the standpat camp, and our good friend of the Argus Leader is welcome to the recruit, but, nevertheless, notwithstanding, the Canton Leader would like to know what the Argus Leader thinks of a traitor like Gamble.

A Great Naval Battle. Last Sunday's Sioux City Journal contained a graphic story of Admiral Farragut's great battle in Mobile Bay in August 1864, the greatest naval battle of the war, when the famous rebel ironclad ram Tennessee was destroyed. She was commanded by Admiral Buchanan who commanded the Merrimac in her fight with the Monitor, March 9th, 1862.

Admiral Farragut was a resident of Norfolk, Va., when the war broke out and rebel flags were flying all around him when he left for the north. He said to his rebel friends as he stepped aboard the steamer: "When I return the stars and stripes come with me," but the old flag waited his return in 1865.

The writer was in Norfolk when the Admiral returned and we attended the reception given him in Meade's Hall by General Butler and a host of army and navy officers.

Mr. Farragut made her home in Norfolk during the war and we had the pleasure of meeting her on many occasions, in company with her brother, Bob Loyall, who remained with her until the gallant hero

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold and Mr. Hawn of Canton, were out this way calling on their friends Sunday afternoon.

We would like to tell the readers of this paper what a delightful time we correspondents had at the annual gathering at Editor Linn's home, Saturday last, but I don't feel capable and will just say it was the best ever, and feel thankful we were all able to be present after another year's trials, and thank the editor and Mrs. Linn for their kindness.

Fairview.

Sept. 26, 1911. The LEADER picnic Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Linn was certainly a grand affair. Eighteen of the LEADER staff, at 1:30, sat down to a sumptuous dinner, one that would please and delight hungry correspondents, and the hospitable Linn home, which has a reputation to be envied, is as a home where everyone is always made welcome. At 3:30 o'clock the staff were lined up in front of the house and Mr. Muma took a snap shot at the good looking bunch. The LEADER staff through Mrs. Arnold presented Mr. and Mrs. Linn a beautiful painting as a mark of their appreciation for hospitality. Mr. Linn presented each of the staff with a beautiful silver spoon, and everyone went home happy hoping to meet next year for another reunion.

The New England supper at Ed. Wheatly Saturday evening was well attended and the proceeds netted $20.

Sept. 26, 1911. Last Saturday was the date set for the annual picnic party of the LEADER correspondents so ye scribe and better half started for Canton to attend, driving as far as Carl Wiggan's home where we were invited to stop and go with them in their auto, which we were more than willing to do and then we had a joy ride all right.

Arriving at Editor Linn's home we found a larger number present than ever before at any picnic, and a good jolly bunch at that. In due time dinner was served to the guests present, 20 in number, and we certainly had a fine dinner and the way the Worthy and Fairview scribes could pile up the plates and have it disappear was a caution to the Dutch. We can always hold our own when it comes to coffee but not by a long way. We found a larger number present than ever before at any picnic, and a good jolly bunch at that.
