STATE OF TEXAS.—MY ATTENTION HAS JUST BEEN called to a statement by your Washington correspondent Strong as to the state of affairs said to be reported by General from as existing in Texas. I am a citizen of Texas, direct from that State, residing in one of the central counties (Waller), and have recently travelled over much of the middle and western portion of the State. I assert positively that the entire statement is utterly untrue. No hostile feeling exists or has occurred, notwithstanding the exciting presence of negro troops. "Rowdyism, secession and crime" do not run rampant. A large body of troops has been stationed in our county town (Brenham) and in great numbers at many other points ever since soon after the surrender, without any interference by the citizens, except one or two trifling quarrels between mere youths and drunken soldiers. Some ignorance may exist, as in all new countries, but neither lawlessness nor starvation can be found. The allegation relative to the President's brother is beneath contempt.
THOMAS AFFLECK.
