 Mrs. A. A. Cassill, a lady who resided in Canton for a year or more, and mother of Charles H. Cassill, died at her home at Garner, Iowa, last week, death resulting from complications caused by a fall and injury to her hip a year or more ago. She was a charming lady and won many friends during her brief residence here. Three daughters and four sons are left to mourn the loss of a devoted mother.

The people of Canton are not to be disappointed in their expectation of hearing "The Black Knight," Rev. Hector, the great temperance orator, and his daughter, who sings the Southern melodies so popular everywhere. Through a mistake, for which neither the W. O. T. U. nor the State Committee making the engagements for this company, were in the least responsible not to blame a very large audience was disappointed some weeks ago. On the evening of Apr. 9th, "The Black Knight" will speak in the Court House and his daughter will sing. They have had a great hearing in our States this season, crowds greeting them and going away enthusiastic in their appreciation of both speaker and singer.

Their school district will soon build a fine cement block school house, and they came up to see the County Superintendent about including two kinds of blocks in the plans and specifications. Contractors who desire to bid on this cement job should consult the County Superintendent where plans and specifications can be seen.

K. K. Fobes and Elmer J. Anderson have written a farce musical comedy, entitled "The Missing Domino" that will be staged in Canton in the near future. This is a light plot, very amusing with a good laugh in ever line as well as the latest songs with pretty choruses. This will be the first musical comedy ever staged in Canton and these two young men deserve a world of credit for their efforts in this line. The public will wait with impatience for its production.

Charles A. South, who recently returned from his western trip, during which he spent some time at San Diego, Cal., down near the Mexican line. When he left here he took a G. A. B. grave marker to place at the head of Judge Shannon's grave, and he accomplished the task with the assistance of M. T. Hogaboom, formerly of Springdale township. The grave was definitely located and marked and the San Diego veterans said his grave would be taken care of hereafter. Mr. South was a great admirer of the brilliant lawyer and Judge and still thinks a monument should be erected over his grave.

Roscoe Henry started out on the road Monday to sell the Knowlton Gas Engine and the young man has a first class proposition. The Knowlton engine is the best low priced high grade engine made and will pay for itself in a year in the saving of gasoline as compared with other engines. Mr. Knowlton put in many a long day working on his new and improved engine before he got it to the high standard of perfection now accorded it by experts.
