UNION COURSE, L. I.—TROTTING.

A very exciting trot came off yesterday afternoon at the Union Course between the b. m. Fanny Allen, br. g. Humming Bird and ch. g. Dictator, mile heats, best three in five, in harness, for a purse and stake of $1,000. Previous to the start Fanny Allen was the favorite against the field at slight odds, but after the first heat, which Dictator won in the most hollow manner, one hundred to twenty was laid on him. He won the second heat by half a length, the mare making a rush at the finish, but when about closing up with Dictator she broke, and he beat her over the score, which increased the odds in his favor to one hundred to ten. Dictator, however, became lame while scoring for the third heat, and after getting away broke up badly. He broke up several times in the heat and barely saved himself from being distanced. Fanny Allen won the heat by a couple of lengths. A great change then took place in the betting, and before the start for the fourth heat three to one was current on the mare. When Dictator was brought out on the track he showed great lameness in his off hind leg, and it was very evident that his chances of winning were entirely gone, together with the stakes of his backers. He trotted steadily along until he reached the half-mile pole, where he broke all to pieces and could not be got together in time to save his distance. Fanny Allen won that heat by half a dozen lengths. For the fifth heat Humming Bird and the mare had the affair to themselves, and kept together to the quarter pole, when the latter gave the other the go-by, and jogged leisurely to the finish. The following is a summary:—

TUESDAY, May 22.—Purse and stake $1,000, mile heats, best three in five, in harness.

Cricket.

NEW YORK VS. NEWARK—FIRST REGULAR MATCH OF THE SEASON AT HOBOKEN.

But for the very unpropitious weather yesterday there would have been a numerous assemblage of spectators on the cricket ground at Hoboken, as considerable interest was excited in regard to the match between the above clubs, owing to the occasion being the debut of several first class cricketers from the other side of the Atlantic. As it was, there was a very good attendance, although a blustering wind, with clouds of dust, rendered the rôle of a spectator on a ball field anything but a pleasant task. The Newarkers were early on the ground, but the New Yorkers were not on hand to greet their friends, for which some parties are decidedly to blame. At a quarter to eleven o'clock the game was commenced, New York going to the bat and scoring 105 in grand style, Holder, Higham and Hudson being the principal scorers, the former getting 27 in fine style. Newark then went to the bat, but were all put out for 63, of which Hallis and Wolters obtained more than half. The second innings of the New Yorkers added 110 to their score, and there the game stands, to be resumed next Tuesday. We give the score below:—

The Great Bond Robbery.

COMMON PLEAS—CHAMBERS.

Before Judge Cardozo.

In re D. G. Ferguson.—The application by Ferguson—the man who was arrested for complicity in the bond robbery in Exchange place, a five thousand dollar bond having been traced to his hands—to be admitted to bail, which was reported in our columns at the time, has been denied, the Court delivering the following opinion:—

I decline to interfere with the action of Mr. Justice Dowling for the following reasons:—The District Attorney stated on the argument before me that the papers in this matter—which is certainly one of the most stupendous robberies ever perpetrated—would be sent to the Grand Jury on Wednesday. The delay, therefore, will be inconsiderable. Should the prisoner not be indicted of course he will be speedily released from custody, or if an indictment be found against him the question of bailing him can be presented to the court in which the indictment is found. Although I have undoubtedly the power to bail, I think it much better, at least in a case like this, to leave that subject to the magistrates whose jurisdiction is exclusively over criminal cases, and whose familiarity with the administration of criminal justice gives them especial advantages in determining questions of this kind. I do not mean to say that there may not be instances in which it would be my duty to take bail. I only mean that under the circumstances of this case, if the action of the committing magistrate in refusing to bail is to be disturbed either before or after indictment, I think it proper that the application should be addressed to either the City Judge or the Recorder, or to the Court of Oyer and Terminer, which is now in session.

The prisoner will therefore be remanded, and the motion to bail be refused without prejudice to such further application in that behalf in accordance with the views above expressed as he may be advised to make.

Title in Goods.

COMMON PLEAS—TRIAL TERM.

Before Judge Cardozo.

Richard Dudgeon vs. Herman Ackerman.—This suit was brought to recover one thousand dollars due on a steam hammer. The plaintiff delivered to a man of the name of Constantini, engaged in the experiment of turning scrap tin into wrought iron, the hammer in question on the 27th of May, 1864. The plaintiff claims this to have been done on an agreement that Constantini should pay two hundred dollars down, and the balance of twelve hundred dollars at various times; he to take it back if Constantini did not make the payments. Constantini alleges it to have been a mere ordinary purchase on credit, except that he had permission to return the hammer if it did not answer his purpose. In 1860 Constantini owed money to Ulric Ackerman, and gave a chattel mortgage of all he had, to cover it. This sum went on increasing by various advances until, in October, 1864, it amounted to over $5,100, when he gave a third renewal of the mortgage for $5,000. Throughout these transactions Herman Ackerman acted as the agent of his father, Ulric. In January, 1865, the property was sold under executions and also under the mortgage, and the defendant in this suit, notwithstanding a notification of the plaintiff's claim read at the sale by the plaintiff's attorney, purchased in the hammer, which he afterwards sold.

The Court charged that even though the plaintiff's account were true, and he retained the title to the property in himself when he delivered the hammer to Constantini, still if Ulric Ackerman advanced money in good faith upon the security of the hammer, and took a chattel mortgage, supposing it to be the property of the possessor, the plaintiff could not recover against the defendant, he having by parting with the possession enabled Constantini to deceive the mortgagee. If the money was not advanced on that security, and the plaintiff's story were correct as to the agreement for the sale, then they should find for the plaintiff.

The jury found for the plaintiff $1,000 and interest from December 24, 1864.
