We are now enjoying (?) that glorious season of the year known as Dog days. We who are forced to remain at home are envious of those who can afford a trip to some lake or other fashionable resort, while they in turn are enduring discomforts that would not even be considered at home, and wondering why they were tempted into such uncomfortable extravagance just for style. In many cases leaving home at this time of year is like chasing a rainbow—you never find the pot of gold, or expected comfort or pleasure. A camping party on the banks of the Silvery Sioux is all right and has many advantages. Delightful spots can be selected, many in each mile, and near farm houses where cream, milk and butter and fresh eggs can be had in abundance. The close proximity to town enables the entire family to camp together, for the good man enjoys the camp fire and all that it inspires after the day's work is over, and then the early breakfast in the open, with the carol of many birds for an orchestra, is a pleasure one never forgets. Every evening one can see camp fires dotted along the banks of the Sioux, and if near enough the songs and laughter of happy voices. So why go away, when pleasures like these are at your very door? How many of us realize or appreciate that right here near Canton we have one of the prettiest valleys and streams of water to be found, with bathing and fishing and all the comforts of home, as near as can be found outside, and with practically no expense within the reach of the purse of all who feel the call back to nature.
