None but the bad can appreciate the good.

If we would have peace, we should be at peace with ourselves, our home and our country.

Practical is pronounced "Sheem-ih-ell" and should be whistled through the nose to get the right effect.

You can't tell a man by the length of his nose, because some always have their nose in some one else's business anyway.

Perhaps Bryan's endorsement of grape juice for a beverage will not be so great an advertising medium at the present time.

There are times when the dime novel reading boy or the love-sick woman would get more thrills, reading the head lines of a daily than they would in their favorite book.

It is wrong to allow those that leave the United States, to fight for a foreign country, to let them come back and live here. Let them get their bread and butter out of the country they fight for.

We read recently of a young boy and girl in California packing up camping outfits and "grub" and hiking for the mountains to live. We wonder if Jack London's, "In the Valley of the Moon" didn't have something to do with it.

Let the women have the ballot, they won't vote anyway unless they are dressed in the latest fashions, and if they are they will stop and discuss what Mrs. so and so is wearing until after the voting booths are closed.

The LEADER with this issue starts on its twenty-sixth year, with a healthy appetite for news and hopes of lasting many years to come. And we extend our sincere thanks to those who so liberally patronize our advertising department and our job department, and especially our good subscribers who "stick" by the LEADER. Again our thank you.

Bryan will not, in a measure pull enough votes from Wilson to hurt him if the republicans fight in divided forces as they did the last presidential election. But should the republicans put a good man in the field and stand together, Wilson (if he runs) will have a hard time winning without Bryan's help, for inspite of the last stand Bryan has taken, he has a large following.
