A.—THE WINDSOR WAGON.

Maximum of strength, minimum of weight.
Is particularly adapted both for pleasure driving and speeding by reason of its extreme lightness and strength, combined with the ease and comfort afforded by the Patent Cross Springs.
The Vertical steel plates prevent all spread to the axles, an important consideration for speeding, there being no waste of power by the horse in overcoming the tendency of the wheels to push out sideways. Established 1838.
J. B. BREWSTER & CO., of 25th st.
