The Canton band will hold its last rehearsal next Monday night, after which it will go completely out of existence. Canton has had no regular band for a year, but the boys have met for weekly practice of their own accord, hoping that something would be done to keep the band together. If Canton ever expects to have a good band, one of its greatest needs is a strong financial backing and a competent instructor. A musician of Fergus Falls, Minn., gave the boys a severe try out recently, and expressed desire to move to Canton if he could secure the leadership of the band. All that remains is for the citizens of Canton to speak up whether or not this city shall maintain a band. Instead of the business being put to the expense of supporting a band, the city commissioners should levy a tax of one mill or less, which would be sufficient for the needs of the band. Many towns in this state support a band through taxes.

We Dare Not Tell This

We escaped with our life while at Canton at the court house Tuesday only because Sheriff Kundert was present to protect us, for County Treasurer Henry Hvattum has it in for us and said right to our face that any fellow that had run an auto into the ditch and broken off a wheel and then went home and accused and wrote up a perfectly innocent party, of speeding, ought to be run down, roped, hogtied and branded on his most vulnerable spot for such outrageous conduct. We promised to be good hereafter and that is why we dare not tell about Henry and his bosom friend Hon. P. A. Overseth, for they too clothed themselves in zebra bathing suits at Lake Okoboji and the gasp of admiration that emanated from feminine throats when the two Adonises, with their sylphlike forms and striped perfection of manly form and beauty, appeared, was like unto the sighing of the soft south wind through the honeysuckle vines on a June evening.

And when these two daring citizens in their glaring attire, shot the chutes with a lightning-like rapidity never before attained or equaled, the applause that greeted the performance shook the shore, and feminine pleadings to do it some more could not be denied.

And life at the lake shore is not what it was before the advent of the Canton bachelors, and who can blame the maidens fair who are distraught with ennui, for life is humdrum now and nothing like it has occurred during the brief but halcyon period of which we promised not to tell a living soul.—[Hudsonite.
