FORCED SALE

OF A LARGE QUANTITY OF FINE

FURNITURE.

Owing to the rapid changes in styles we have accumulated large quantities of furniture not strictly in the latest fashion, and, therefore, not readily salable; also many articles made to order during the past year and not delivered owing to the financial embarrassments of the parties ordering. These goods crowd our warerooms, and we are determined upon their immediate disposal by offering them at such extraordinarily low prices as to insure their prompt sale. Each article will be plainly marked at a price they would certainly bring at auction, or at from one-quarter to one-half of the actual cost. This is no imposition; the goods must be sold, and the prices put upon them will be such as to make them sell. Any one about to buy will be exceedingly unwise if they neglect seeing this stock before purchasing. The furniture is all of the best workmanship and warranted in every respect.

WE ALSO OFFER A VERY LARGE ASSORTMENT OF THE LATEST DESIGNS IN EASTLAKE, QUEEN ANNE, JAPANESE AND JACOBEAN STYLES, IN ASH, WALNUT AND EBONIZED WOODS, AT PRICES UNSURPASSED FOR CHEAPNESS.

BEING 14 YEARS IN THE INSTALMENT BUSINESS, OFFERS THE LONGEST AND EASIEST TERMS OF ANY IN THE TRADE.

ALL GOODS SOLD ON INSTALMENTS, AT THE LOWEST CASH WHOLESALE PRICES.

It has ever been my desire to instruct the public where and how to purchase the cheapest and most durable furniture hitherto made.

It has been gradually dawning on the people's mind that cheap articles can only be obtained in large, respectable establishments—the proprietors of which manufacture their own goods.

In the past ten years men purchased more to suit their convenience than to save their purses, but days of economy have come and calculation has become necessary to meet the needs of life.

I have always deemed it my duty to place before my customers and the public my resources and the facilities I possess of moulding—to suit the present—the retail Carpet and Furniture trade. In good times so many small stores existed that the wholesale was preferable to the retail; but the gradual sweeping away of those whose only capital was credit has compelled me to manufacture solely to suit and supply my large establishments. No one will deny but that the command and concentration of large capital possesses a power to cheapen goods which no amount of divided capital can compete with; therefore to this centralization I would call the attention of all, and ask you, who would desire to purchase, to call and see the efforts I have made to undersell all competitors in the trade, as my purpose is to retail goods at wholesale prices.

I have just completed large additional warerooms both at my Jersey and Brooklyn stores and am enabled to display the most varied assortment of stock ever stored under one roof in the carpet or furniture trade. The floors are well lighted, so that the smallest defects could be detected, never using any means to give an unusual lustre and keeping within the strict rules of veracity in the recommendation of my goods.

JOHN MULLINS',

on weekly and monthly instalments.

To this heading I wish to call the especial attention of customers who may wish to pay on instalments for goods purchased at my store. There are so many in the instalment business who make a practice of charging exorbitant rates for goods so purchased, who, on the first failure to pay, seize the opportunity of taking back their goods, thereby in the plainest sense defrauding the customer of the amount paid on instalments. I, therefore, think it my duty to lay before the public my plan of dealing in fairness with those who may patronize me, and this practice I have followed since I have started business. I sell at cash advertised rates. I never harass or drive people, but act toward them in every lenient way possible, extending and re-extending the periods of payment when their circumstances may require it, thereby helping them by every possible means, and if it becomes necessary to take back goods I carefully store them, charging nothing for storage, and return them back without interest or extra charge at any moment they may wish to have them back.

DON'T FORGET THE

NAME AND NUMBERS.

CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.

It is the duty of every man who conducts his business on the principles of honesty to expose the trickery used to deceive the buyers and caution them against purchasing carpets and furniture displayed under the glare of gas during daylight. It is done to hide the imperfections and bad finish of the articles sold. IN NO PLACE is this sharp practice so much resorted to as in the WOODEN SHANTIES ALONG THE BOWERY, where the warerooms are constructed with low ceilings and winding ways, to give the appearance of a larger stock than their business can afford, a habit so long practised by "THE LONDON JEW"—advertising fictitious prices and pretending to be just out of those goods when asked for, trusting to the chances of catching the young housekeeper and the unwary, whose timidness and want of knowledge they are so well trained to take advantage of.
