SWANN-THOMPSON.

Fairy-Like Scenes at the Bride's Mansion in Princeton.

DISTINGUISHED WITNESSES.

The Happy Pair En Route for Newport.

The great event in Princeton yesterday was the Swann-Thompson marriage. The lady, who has known and entertained all the leading lights of Princeton College during the past twenty-five years, wedded Governor Swann, of Maryland. Guests arrived from Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia to be present at the ceremonies. Carriage after carriage rolled up to her elegant mansion yesterday. Accompanying the Baltimore party were Congressmen Kimmel and Bridges, General Van Vliet and ladies, all of whom were hospitably received and entertained by Mrs. Judge Green, who was deputized by the bride to receive them at the hotel. The bridegroom, Governor Swann, and retinue had a suit of apartments at Niebuhr's Hotel.

THE FLORAL DECORATIONS.

From an early hour a number of gardeners were putting the last touches on the beautiful grounds surrounding Mme. Thompson's elegant mansion in Stockton street. This mansion, though old, is modernized with a Mansard roof, and has a conservatory on the left and a well kept flower garden in front. One of the features of this garden are two immense cannon balls, taken from the siege of Constantinople in 1483 and brought to this country by the late Senator Thompson, to whom they were presented by the Sultan of Turkey. Surrounded by, or rather imbedded in this beautiful flower garden, the exterior of the mansion bore a more thanksgiving aspect in this bright June morning. The grand entrance hall was literally filled with tropical plants and palms, the Doric columns on each side being surmounted with exquisite floral decorations. To the right of this hall a side room had been emptied of all chairs and a long table covered with all the delicacies of the season had been fitted up as a refreshment room, while on the other side of the hall the lady guests assembled in the reception room, where Mrs. General Burnett did the honors in the name of the hostess. A large, square parlor, running along the entire length of the mansion, had been judiciously arranged for the wedding ceremony. The walls of this room are covered with numerous oil paintings, among which is a magnificent portrait of the bride when twenty years old. All the mouldings, cornices and frames were covered with evergreens, roses and smilax.

THE GUESTS.

Of the fifteen hundred friends of the Thompson and Swann families throughout this country and in Europe invited to the wedding about four hundred attended. Telegrams of congratulations to the happy pair, reached them from every part of the globe throughout the day. The death of Dr. Hodge prevented the attendance of a branch of the well known Stockton family, of New Jersey, while the death of Mr. Thomas Winans kept this Maryland family in seclusion at their Baltimore home. Prominent among those present were Speaker Samuel J. Randall, of the House of Representatives; General Robt. Stockton, of Trenton; Judge Green, of Elizabeth; Chancellor Williams and wife, of Elizabeth; Judge Beasley, wife and daughters, of Trenton; ex-Senator Stockton, wife and two sons; Mrs. Lois Burnett, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. General Burnett, Miss Mary Duenheimer, Miss Lizzie E. Norris, Ferdinand E. Latrobe, of Baltimore; Dr. Carter, of Baltimore; Mrs. Judge Green, General Van Vliet, Quartermaster United States Army; Miss Page, cousin of the late General Robert E. Lee; W. W. Corcoran, of Washington, D. C.; Congressman Kimmel and wife, of Baltimore; Congressman Bridges and wife, of Allentown, Pa.; Dr. Garnett, son-in-law of Henry A. Wise, of Virginia; Admiral Emmons, United States Navy; Mr. and Mrs. Sewell Brown and Mrs. Rawl Brown, of Philadelphia; Mr. Charles W. Lynde and wife, Mrs. Nordhoff, A. J. Vanderpoel, of New York; Professors Guyot, John T. Duffield, Henry C. Cameron, M. D., LL.D., of Princeton; Professor Packard, Professor Sloane, President McCosh, wife and daughter.

Among the last arrivals at the mansion were Mrs. Penrose, Mrs. Dr. Keating and Miss McCall, all of Philadelphia; the Misses Hargous, of New York, and Miss Brandreth, of Sing Sing.

BEFORE THE NUPTIALS.

Though the wedding ceremony was fixed for four o'clock the absence of Speaker Randall necessitated a postponement, which, however, did not last over half an hour. Hassler's Band of ten pieces from Philadelphia discoursed some pleasant airs while the guests were being introduced. At that time, however, the crowd of ladies and gentlemen in every part of the mansion was excessively large, and it was with difficulty that the gentlemen ushers could make a passage for the wedding procession which moved from the second story to the parlor described above.

THE BRIDAL TRAIN.

The moment Mr. Randall arrived, the two ushers, Samuel R. Gommery and William Karge, led the procession, followed by Mrs. Thompson, the bride, arm-in-arm with Speaker Randall, her brother-in-law, and the groom, Governor Swann, with Mrs. General Burnett, sister-in-law of the bride. Following these came the members of the Stockton family and ex-Mayor Lathrop, of Baltimore, the band playing a march. The bride ranged herself in front of the grand mirror and almost directly under a chandelier, which threw additional light upon the festive scene. Facing the conservatory she was soon joined by those directly interested in the ceremony, the vast assemblage in the meantime forming a close, compact circle around the bridal party. Mr. Wright, of the class of '72, in the meantime, conceived the beautiful idea of suspending a chord of roses over the heads of the bride and groom, which he held, aided by one of his classmates, to the end of the ceremony.

THE CEREMONY.

Rev. Mr. Baker, assisted by Rev. Robert Dodd, now began the marriage service of the Episcopal Church, perfect silence reigning over the vast crowd of ladies and gentlemen. When the last words were uttered which made the twain one the chord of roses was permitted to fall on the floor and the band struck up a joyous strain and all pressed forward to congratulate the happy bride and the still more happy groom.

THE TOILET.

Mr. Baker here handed the bride the marriage certificate, written on plain parchment, which gave Mrs. Thompson Swann's age at fifty-two. As she stood there in front of the mirror, beaming with joy and satisfaction, the bride certainly did not look over thirty. She wore a white satin dress with a trail several feet long, point lace tulle open sleeves and split surplice. Her hair was puffed and ornamented with natural flowers, beautiful diamond earrings and diamond necklace completed her toilet.

Mrs. Burnett was dressed in gray silk. While congratulations were progressing quite a number at once were led into the refreshment room.

THE WEDDING PRESENTS.

Some of the guests evinced great curiosity to see the wedding presents, but they were not shown. It was known, however, that the Governor gave his bride an elegant set necklace, pin and earrings of emeralds and diamonds and also that the following presents had been received:—A set of silver tailors seventeen in number, from Mrs. Sarah McIlenry, of Westchester, Pa., an old schoolmate of the bride. John W. Garrett, President of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, sent from Europe a couple of magnificent Sevres vases. Mr. Aaron Ward, Master United States Navy, nephew of the bride, sent from Paris a set of fans, sixteen in number, with ivory frame, matched in colors appropriate for the various dresses forming part of the bride's trousseau. Mrs. Canfield, of Baltimore, sent a solid silver coffee set. Mr. Johnston, of Baltimore, a silver pitcher. Mrs. Bernard F. Lee, of Poland, Ohio, sent a set of cut glass finger bowls, in silver frames, with gold monograms, S. & T. Mr. Carl Brewster, of Irvington, sent two ceramic vases.

When eight o'clock drew nigh all Princeton was at the station to bid the bride goodspeed. She was escorted to her seat in President Garrett's private car by Mr. Randall, and the Baltimore bridal party accompanying the Governor soon joined her. Standing on the platform of the car she bade a hearty goodby to the townspeople, who cheered her as she left Princeton for New York and Newport.

FISH IN THE RESERVOIR.

During the past few days the workmen who have been engaged in cleaning the new reservoir in Central Park have caught fully eight thousand fish in its waters. In the cleaning process a huge net is stretched from one side of the reservoir to the other, and when it is drawn upon the pathway surrounding the reservoir schools of fish are found entangled in its meshes. The scaly prey are distributed every morning among residents of Yorkville, who assemble at the North Gate House in the Park to receive them. It appears that this extraordinary influx of fish into the reservoir is due to a defective screen in the aqueduct just north of High Bridge, which was placed there some time ago for the express purpose of keeping them out, but which gave way under the great pressure of the water.

THE REGNIER-MULDOON WRESTLE.

NEW YORK, June 20, 1878.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

An error occurring in your report of the wrestling match between Mr. William Muldoon (amateur) and M. Emile Regnier, at my benefit at Booth's Theatre, June 18, I am urged to request you to make the correction in justice to Mr. Muldoon, who at a moment's notice took the place of the incognito advertised. Neither Mr. Regnier nor Mr. Muldoon obtained a fall. After wrestling forty minutes the men retired to be rubbed down, the profuse perspiration on both preventing either from getting a hold. Then in order to be able to carry out the balance of the programme their time was limited to ten minutes more, and when time was called neither had won a fall. By publishing the above you will oblige many who have been misled through the error in your report. FRED J. ENGELHARDT.

THE SCHUETZEN FEST.

FOURTH DAY OF THE GREAT GERMAN FESTIVAL AT UNION HILL, N. J.—THE PRIZES.

The sun rose bright and beautiful over the Jersey Palisades yesterday morning, and the fourth day of the great festival at the Schuetzen Park, in Union Hill, promised to be as entirely successful as the preceding ones. The gates were opened at eight o'clock and at the sound of the signal cannon the riflemen resumed their labors in the shooting house. By two o'clock in the afternoon there were fully ten thousand people in the grounds, and at sunset the number had increased to 20,000.

On Monday there will be a team contest on the Creedmoor principle, and there is considerable interest displayed already in the matter of arrangement and preparation. There will be eight men in each team, and up to last night the following clubs had entered teams:—New York Schuetzen Corps, Zettler's Rifle Club, two teams; Seppenfeld's Rifle Club, Helvetia Rifle Club, three teams; Brooklyn Schuetzen Corps, New York city Schuetzen Corps, Jersey Schuetzen Corps, Columbia Rifle Association, Brooklyn (E. D.) Schuetzen Corps and Philadelphia Schuetzen Verein.

There were but three contests of the athletic clubs for gold medals. In the running high jump, Richard Berger, of the Electric Boat and Athletic Club, was the winner. In the running long jump Frederick Ruhl, of the New York Turn Verein, came out first, and in putting the heavy weight (an iron ball of twenty-pounds) Richard Berger took the lead.

The bowling was more lively than on previous days and many more persons took part.

The delegates and the Executive Committee of the Interstate Association met last evening and appointed a committee to revise the constitution and also to select the place for the next contest three years hence. This committee will meet in New York city in 1879.

THE SHOOTING.

The shooting began at eight o'clock and continued until seven in the evening with an intermission of an hour at noon.

OBITUARY.

REV. CHARLES K. TRUE, D. D.

Rev. Charles K. True, D. D., one of the best known preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church and a member of the New York East Conference, died yesterday morning in Brooklyn, of heart disease, at the age of sixty-nine years. Dr. True was a New Englander by birth and forty-five years ago he entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church and took his first appointment in the Bristol and Providence circuit. Those places were then much smaller than they are now, and one pastor could easily serve two churches. The year following he was the agent of the New York East Conference Missionary and Education Society, and in the year 1835 he became Principal of Amenia Seminary. From that time he alternated between the pulpit and the professor's chair. In 1836 he served the Methodist Episcopal Church in Middletown, Conn., and thirteen years later he became Professor of Moral and Intellectual Philosophy in Wesleyan University in that town. From 1849 to 1873 he also held the position of Financial Agent of the University, and raised by pledges some $50,000, payable in five instalments, for that institution. The interval between 1837, when he was pastor of Old John Street Church, in this city, and 1842, when he took the chair of Moral Philosophy in Wesleyan University, was spent in the pastorate among New England churches. The years 1838-9 were spent in Lynn Common, 1840 in Springfield, 1841-2 in Boston, 1843 in Worcester, 1844-5 in Chelsea, 1846-7 in Lowell, and 1848-9 in Charleston, Mass. During the next eleven years he was a professor in Middletown, Conn. In 1861 he was transferred again to the New York Conference, and took an appointment that year, and the next at Tarrytown, N. Y., and in 1863-4 he was in Thirteenth Street Church, this city. But he seems to have liked New England better than New York, for in 1865 he went to Sheffield, Mass. In 1866 he preached in Boston, in 1867-8 in Newton Upper Falls and in 1869 in Munson, Mass. At the close of that year he returned to the New York East Conference, and for three years held a nominal connection with Wesleyan University as its financial agent. From 1874 to the close of the conference year of 1876 he served Whitestone, Flushing and Newtown, L. I., churches, making his home at Flushing, where he owned property and had a pleasant residence. In 1877 he was pastor of the church at Cold Spring, L. I., and at the last Conference he was sent to Cedar street charge, Brooklyn, E. D. He went to the latter church to attend his church prayer meeting on Wednesday evening and remained during the night, intending to return to Flushing yesterday, but death cut his career short. He was a man who enjoyed vigorous health, and his sudden death is a surprise to his friends. A son of Dr. True is an Episcopal minister in temporary charge of a church in Newtown, L. I. A daughter and son-in-law returned from missionary labors in India a few days ago. They are in the employ of the American Board. Dr. True was an author of some note. "True's Logic" was a standard in the colleges, seminaries and academies of the Methodist Episcopal Church for many years. Some four years ago it was superseded by a newer and fuller work. He was also the author of a "Life of Sir Walter Raleigh," which was published last year, and at the time of his death was engaged on the lives of John Howard and Matthew Hale. The arrangements for his funeral have not yet been made. The interment will take place probably on Saturday, at Flushing, L. I.

ANTOINE-LAURENT DANTAN, SCULPTOR.

The death is announced from Paris, at the age of eighty, of M. Antoine-Laurent Dantan, a well known sculptor. The deceased artist, who was called Dantan aîné, to distinguish him from a younger brother, Jean Pierre Dantan, known as Dantan jeune, and also a sculptor, was born at St. Cloud, on the 8th of December, 1798. His father was a sculptor in wood, and his natural talents were like those of his brother, encouraged from early youth by his familiarity with his father's workshop and its products. While a youth he entered the studio of the sculptor Bosio, under whose tutelage his brother likewise came. As a result of his competition for the rewards offered by the Ecole des Beaux Arts he in 1826 carried away the second prize for sculpture, and in 1828 was successful in obtaining that coveted and valuable distinction and scholarship, the Grand Prix de Rome. The subject given out to the concurrents was "The Death of Hercules." He sent back from Rome as one of the statues, which he was by the conditions of his scholarship obliged to execute, a copy of Praxiteles' "Love." M. Dantan exposed in the Salon from 1819 until of late years. Among his principal works there exhibited are "Asia" (1824), "Young Satuer Playing with His Dog" (1835), "The Drunkenness of Silenus" (1836), "Young Neapolitan Girl Playing the Tambourine" (1838). From 1837 to 1850 he executed a number of statues and busts, among which we note "The Marshal Villars," "Louis de Bourbon," "Louis de France," "Josephine de France," for the galleries at Versailles; "Juvenal des Ursins," for the Hôtel de Ville of Paris; "The Baron Mounier," for the Palace of the Luxembourg, where are also the "Bather," of 1835; the "Silenus," of 1836; "An Italian Woman Gathering Grapes;" busts of Mlle. Rachel, of Mme. Delaroche and of M. Bouet (1855), "Picard" (1859), Mme. Dupeyrat (1861) and a bust exposed at the Universal Exposition of 1867. The artist was awarded a medal of the second class in 1824, one of the first class in 1835 and one of the third class in 1855. He was decorated with the Legion of Honor in 1843. He survived his brother, well known for his portrait satires and who was two years his junior, some eight years, the latter having died at Baden in 1869.

MISS JANE LOUISA WILLYAMS.

We hear of the death, on the 28th ult., in her ninety-second year, at Budleigh Salterton, in Devonshire, of Miss Jane Louisa Willyams, daughter of Mr. James Willyams, of Carnanton, Cornwall. The deceased lady was born at the latter place on October 29, 1786. Her first literary venture was made in conjunction with one of her sisters and consisted of a novel called "Coquetry," which was published by Constable & Co., and put forth anonymously. Sir Walter Scott corrected the proofs and superintended the publication of this now almost forgotten work. Miss Willyams subsequently published "Chilion; or, The Protestants of the Sixteenth Century" (1845); a "Short History of the Waldensian Church" (1855); a volume of privately circulated poems in 1863, and "The Tower of the Hawk," a Hapsburg tale, in 1871. She also wrote a number of treatises in support of her views of Protestantism.

AUGUSTA H. PELTON.

Mrs. Augusta H. Pelton, wife of Colonel William T. Pelton, nephew of Samuel J. Tilden and Vice President of the New York Elevated Railroad, died quite suddenly yesterday. Mrs. Pelton was the daughter of Mr. James S. Dickerson, and will be remembered with the kindest feelings by every one who partook of the hospitalities at Albany of Mr. Tilden when he was Governor. At the receptions given to the Legislature by the Governor she acted the part of hostess with a charming grace that made her a great favorite at the capital, and added not a little to the Governor's own popularity with the prominent members of both political parties.

WILLIAM STUART.

William Stuart, formerly a prominent editor, died at his home in Binghamton, N. Y., yesterday evening. He was a member of the Society of the Cincinnati and Past Grand Lecturer (Masonic) of Illinois.

CHIEF JUSTICE SIR WILLIAM BRAGG, OF DEMERARA.

A despatch from Kingston, Jamaica, dated June 13, reports the death of Chief Justice Sir William Bragg, of Demerara.

STRANGE COMPLICATION.

The case of Hannah Platt, of Huntington, L. I., against John Sammis, to recover as assignee of Sarah Titus, deceased, for services of the latter as housekeeper, was before Referee Strong on Wednesday. The claim of the plaintiff is that John Sammis is indebted for the services of Hannah Titus for twelve years, and that he turned her away without compensation. The defendant claims that Mrs. Titus simply made her home at his house in her old age, rendering some slight service in consideration for board, clothing and medical attendance, and the Platts, knowing that she had $1,000 in bank, enticed her away, and three days before her death got an assignment of her money and claims against Sammis.
