ACADEMY OF MEDICINE.

NOTABLE GATHERING OF PHYSICIANS AT THE OPENING OF THE LIBRARY HALL—DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW HALL.

There was an unusually large gathering of notable physicians at the New York Academy of Medicine, No. 12 West Fifty-first street, last evening, the occasion being the dedication of the library hall, which has just been completed. The evidences of prosperity and rapid advancement could be seen not only in the personnel of the assemblage, but also in the elegant rooms and long shelves of medical works that lined the walls. The new hall measures 28 feet in width by 50 feet in length, and is two stories in height. It forms an extension to the building which was purchased by the society some four years ago, and which they have already found to be too small for their purposes. The entire lot of 128 feet in depth is now covered by the combined structures. The first floor of the hall has been fitted up as a lecture room. The floor is composed of Georgia pine, covered with a handsome carpet, and forty settees, which can accommodate 200 persons, are provided for the use of members attending the meetings of the society. The ceiling is lofty, having been carried up to the height of the third floor, with the exception of a wide gallery extending around all four sides of the room. This gallery communicates with the second floor of the main building through a wide archway. As far as the acoustic properties are concerned, the hall is almost perfect, and the most approved methods of ventilation have been adopted. In the centre of the ceiling is a large double skylight, with a space between the upper and lower sashes of about five feet. The lower sash bears the coat of arms of the society, beautifully finished in colored glass. Around this lower sash is a space about six inches wide, just beneath which a border of gas jets, sixty-four in number, is placed. By means of this arrangement the room is lighted, and, the flames producing a current of air, the hot, foul air of the room rushes upward and outward through the upper skylight, while its place is supplied by fresh air admitted through ventilators near the floor. A black marble tablet set in the wall at the head of the room bears the following inscription in letters of gold:—"This hall, the gift of Abram DuBois, M. D., generous benefactor of the New York Academy of Medicine, was erected A. D. 1879."

When the meeting was called to order last evening at eight o'clock the chair was occupied by the President, Dr. Fordyce Barker. On his right sat Drs. Willard Parker, Alfred C. Post, James Anderson, Austin Flint, Sr.; S. S. Purple, F. J. Bumstead, James R. Leaming and William T. White. On his left were Dr. Henry W. Ackland, Regius Professor of Medicine, University of Oxford and president of the British General Medical Council; Dr. Samuel D. Grass, of Philadelphia; John S. Billings, librarian of the United States Army Medical Library, Washington, D. C.; William Detwold, Dr. Shattock, of Boston; Dr. Wier, Dr. T. G. Thomas and others.

DR. BARKER'S ADDRESS.

Dr. Barker, the president, made a long and interesting address, in which he incorporated a vast amount of interesting information concerning the Academy. He told how in 1847 it was instituted, and called attention to the eminent men who had founded it, and whose pictures adorned the walls of the Academy; how it was incorporated in 1851 and had purchased the building it now occupied in 1865. Of the finances he said they had but a single debt of $10,000, that being a mortgage on the property bearing interest at six per cent per annum. In 1877 the Legislature of the State had amended the charter of the society, conferring upon it trust powers. By virtue of these powers were created two permanent funds, one for the payment of the debt and interest and the other for the improvement of the library. In speaking of that very important branch of the Academy Dr. Barker congratulated the members on the fact that it had grown from a nucleus of 400 volumes to 10,000. In addition there were regularly received over seventy-five current American and foreign medical periodicals and records of medical and other learned societies. The Doctor paid glowing tributes to the founders of the Academy and to some of the medical luminaries who sat about him.

In closing he unveiled an elegant marble bust of Mr. Spencer Wells, the eminent English surgeon. The bust was a gift to the Academy and would be a valuable addition to any art collection.

DR. ACKLAND'S REMARKS.

Dr. Henry W. Ackland, of the University of Oxford, followed in some brief but very interesting remarks. He had been ailing of late and was too feeble to talk much, but though he spoke in low tones every word was distinctly heard in every portion of the room. He referred to his former visit to America, twenty years ago, and the wonderful advance the country had made since then in every way. He had visited at that time the great institutions of medical learning throughout the country, and the march of improvement in those matters had too been rapid. In speaking of the University of Oxford he referred to Professor Gross, of Philadelphia, as the senior graduate of Oxford, amid enthusiastic applause from the audience. He had noticed in the interval of the twenty years the incidents of the great rebellion, the wonderful growth of cities and the magnificence of the institutions going up on all sides. The New York Hospital he particularized as a most worthy charity. Some people had claimed that the modern hospitals for the poor were too luxuriously fitted up and conducted, but he thought it right that the rich and great should provide for the poor and ailing. He referred in a most complimentary way to Surgeon J. S. Billings, United States Army, and advocated the permanent establishment of the National Board of Health. He deprecated the difference in State laws that prevented the establishment of a general standard in all sections of the country for educated physicians, so that a board of irresponsible men might not be let loose on the community under the guise of physicans. England would soon have a printed list of educated physicians and surgeons, so that every one might know. Again, in referring to the national hygiene he advocated the establishment of a professorship of comparative national health. At the close of his remarks the Doctor was warmly applauded.

He was followed by Dr. J. S. Billings, United States Army; Dr. Willard Parker, senior ex-president of the Academy of Medicine, and Dr. Austin Flint, also an ex-president. Dr. Parker moved a set of congratulatory resolutions, which were received with applause, and Dr. Flint seconded them with a like happy result. After their unanimous passage and a most enjoyable general conversation the meeting closed.

FINE ARTS.

ART LECTURE ILLUSTRATION.

Professor J. Leonard Corning gave a private view, with a short explanatory talk, last evening, at Association Hall, of some of the stereopticon illustrations of the masterworks of art with which he intends to accompany this season his lectures on the history of art. The photographs which were thrown upon the screen were in general admirably adapted for the purpose. Several of the sculptures were notably distinct. Among the best of the views were those of the "Theseus" and "Iris," with its magnificent treatment of drapery, from the Parthenon; Phidias' bust of Pericles, the "Venus de Milo," Michael Angelo's "Moses," several Raphaels, Leonardo's "Mona Lisa," Rembrandt's "Lesson of Anatomy," Dürer's "Old Man's Head," Paul Potter's "Young Bull," Murillo's "Immaculate Conception," Delaroche's "Meeting of Michael Angelo and Raphael," and a Hogarth.

FOREIGN NOTES.

There was some talk of erecting a monument in Paris to the late Count de Noé, better known as "Cham," the popular caricaturist, and a subscription was started. A very dignified letter from the widowed Countess has, however, put a stop to the movement. Many Parisian journals, though acknowledging the talent of the caricaturist, think it would be inadvisable to further encourage the prevailing rage for statues of the lately deceased while men like Alfred de Musset have not yet been so honored.

Victor Emmanuel is to have a memorial on the Place of St. Mark, at Venice. It will be surmounted by an equestrian statue of the late King, and is to cost, exclusive of the foundations, not over $55,000. The models of competing sculptors must be in by the 1st of March, 1880.

OBITUARY.

REV. DR. FABISCH.

Rev. Dr. Fabisch, for a number of years president of Mount St. Mary's Seminary, near Cincinnati, died yesterday morning at Mount Hope, a retreat near Baltimore, Md. The body will be carried to Cincinnati for interment.

HIPPOLYTE SEBRON, FRENCH PAINTER.

From Parisian mail advices we learn of the death in his seventy-ninth year of Hippolyte Sebron, a veteran French painter. Born in August, 1801, M. Sebron studied under Daguerre and made his début as a genre painter at the Lebrun Gallery in 1824. He worked for some time with his master on the pictures of the Diorama. At different periods he visited Holland, Switzerland, Italy, England and Spain and finally in 1853, this country, over which he travelled to some extent. He executed in this city and at other points a number of portraits as well as many studies. On a voyage to the East he made a number of fine water colors. Among his principal exhibited works are "The interior of the Church of St. Wandrille," "The Farnese Palace," "St. Paul's of Antwerp," "View of Florence," "The Entrance to Rotterdam" and "The Interior of the Church of St. Sebastian," in Spain (1840); "Souvenir of the Alps," "Windsor Chapel" and "The Chapel of Neuilly," bought by Louis Philippe (1844); "The Tombs of Eu," "The Alhambra" and "The Mosque of Cordova" (1848); "The Distribution of the Flags in April, 1848," ordered by the Minister of the Interior (1849); "View of Broadway, New York," and "New Orleans," at the Universal Exposition of 1855; "Sydenham Palace" and "Niagara" (1857), "Scene in Grenada" (1859), "View of Viviers," "A House of the Sixteenth Century in the Ardeches Mountains" and "A Landscape by Moonlight" (1861); "Crocodile Lake in Louisiana" and "Interior of St. Mark's at Venice" (1863); "La Cartuga de Miraflores," which was again exhibited at the Universal Exposition of 1867; "Venice" and a pastel portrait of "Mme. Anna de la Grange" (1864); "Biarritz" (1865); "Jesus in the Garden of Olives" and "The Colosses of Amenophis and Memnon" (1866); "A Viennese Church" (1868); "The Temple of Isis" and "Lake Lomond" (1869). During the last three years we have "A Cairene Caravan on the Road to Nubia" and "Ce qui se fait et ne se dit pas," a water color and a pastel (1877); "Niagara" and "Tea Rose," and two water colors one called "New York" (1878). M. Sebron was not represented at the Universal Exposition of 1878, or the late Salon. He was decorated many years ago with the Order of Leopold of Belgium, and much later with the Legion of Honor. Curiously, the possession of the first decoration nearly lost him the second, for the color of the ribbons is so similar that the French official world thought for a long time that he had received the Legion of Honor. The painter was awarded a third medal in 1838, two second ones in 1849 and 1848, and a first one in 1844.

MARITIME MISCELLANY.

Purser Mills, of steamer Morro Castle, has our thanks for his politeness.

STEAMER FLORIDA ran into the schr Sea Foam Sept 30 in Baltimore harbor, cutting through her rail and plank.

BRIG HYPERION, at Havana 24th ult, from Porland via Matanzas, reports, Aug 19, 25 miles SE of Cape Cod, experienced a heavy SE gale, the heavy seas washing the deck and breaking through the hatches and carrying off part of the deck load, consisting of 147 bbls potatoes and 90 packages hoops; also lost some sails.

SCHR WOODRUFF SIMMS, ashore south of Cape Henry, has gone to pieces, and her cargo, consisting of wood and lumber, is strewn for miles upon the beach.

SCHR HERBERT J OLIVE, from Providence for New York, arrived at Newport PM, Oct 1, with foresail badly torn; will repair and proceed.

SCHR RIDGEWOOD, from New York for Georgetown, SC, ashore on South beach, below the latter port, is in good condition and with fair weather will probably be saved. The loss was caused by the schooner touching upon her anchor while swinging to her moorings during a strong gale, thereby starting a plank from her bottom. The greater part of her cargo has been saved in good condition.

SCHR CHARGER, which foundered SW of Point Judith, lies with top of masts out of water right in the track of vessels passing up or down and is a very dangerous wreck. The Charger was 32 years old, owned by the captain's wife, and there is only $800 insurance on the vessel.

SCHR SUNRISE, of Kennebunk, Me, built by the late Lyman Mitchell and William Brooks, has been sold by Robert W Lord to New York parties for $3,350. She is to go into the South American trade.

SCHR HYNE (of Bath), Otis, from Gardner, with lumber, for New York, put into Vineyard Haven Oct 2 leaking 4,000 strokes an hour. She is discharging her deck load.

The sailing of the steamer Bermuda from New York with mails for Bahama Islands and Cuba, has been postponed from the 4th to the 8th inst.

Capt Robert Leach, of schr Priscilla Leach, put in an appearance at Baltimore Sept 30, and was astonished to hear that he had been thought drowned. He says that it was not the Priscilla Leach which was recently run down by the Spanish steamer Puerto Rico, but supposes it must have been a Virginia vessel.

Surveyors and divers left Quebec AM 2d inst for the ship Westminster (Br), at Rimovski, as before reported.

FORTRESS MONROE, Oct 2—Ship Theo H Allen, from Baltimore July 21 for San Francisco, before reported put back to this port Sept 27, will proceed to New York.

NORFOLK, Oct 1—Yesterday the wrecking steamer B & J Baker returned to the harbor from the sunken schooner Stephen Bennett, off Winter Quarter Shoals, and will return in company with the Relocator for the purpose of towing the schooner to Delaware Breakwater. The Baker was unable to tow the schooner by herself.
