ONLY 8 OF THE 21 STEAMSHIPS ON THE OCEAN ARE BOUND WEST

Transatlantic Fleet Taxed to Utmost by Great Holiday Rush to European Ports.

Twenty-one transatlantic passenger steamships are listed in the Herald's chart today, of which thirteen are bound east and eight west, one of the meagerest showings of westward bound passenger vessels in many weeks. This is largely due to the fact that there was an unprecedented rush to Europe for the holidays, which took the greater part of the transatlantic fleet to European waters during the last fortnight.

The Lapland, of the Red Star line (R-2), and the Columbia, of the Anchor line (D-8), are the largest vessels bound this way, the former coming from Antwerp and the latter from Glasgow. Both ships are reported to be filled to their capacity with passengers in the cabins as well as in the third class. This is the first voyage from Antwerp of the Red Star line since the service between that port and New York was interrupted by the war in August, 1914.

The Cretic, of the White Star Line's Mediterranean service (E-4) is coming to New York from Genoa and Naples, via Gibraltar, and the Touraine, of the French line (C-6) is coming from Havre and will reach this port tomorrow, it is expected.

The Stavangefjord (6-12), of the Norwegian-American Line, is bound for New York from Bergen, Norway, with crowded cabins, and is due to arrive in New York next Saturday. Two Italian steamships and a Fabre Line vessel are also making headway toward this port from the Mediterranean.

The Orduna Making Her Last Voyage for Cunard Line—Will Go Back to Pacific.

Going east are the Adriatic (D-1), of the White Star Line, bound for Southampton; the Carmania (P-3), bound for Liverpool; the Mauretania (P-5), bound for Southampton, and the Orduna (D-7), which is making her final trip for the Cunard Line. The Orduna will go back to the service of her owners, the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, from which she was chartered at the outset of the war.

The Rotterdam, largest of the Holland-America Line fleet (Q-131), is well on her way to the port of the same name, via Plymouth and Boulogne-sur-Mer, and the Frederick VIII. (D-19), of the Scandinavian-American Line, is bound for Copenhagen, Denmark. The Chicago (R-9), of the French Line, is nearing Bordeaux, and the Savoie (D-11) is en route to Havre for the same company.

Among the eastbound Italian vessels is the Guiseppe Verdi (C-21), of the Italian International Line; the Canada (M-15), of the Fabre Line, and the Patria (D-17), of the same service, all bound for Mediterranean ports.
