COTTONSEED OIL—The Southern storm news had a stimulating effect on the forenoon cottonseed oil market, but mostly through the activities of shorts, as outside interest continued light. Eventually the market turned easier under scattered selling and at the close was 2 to 3 points net lower. Lard was irregular, and some anticipate easier prices for competing products. No duty tenders were noted.

THE WEATHER FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW

Steamship Arrivals and Departures—Outgoing Foreign Mails—The Fire Record.

THE WEATHER.

For eastern New York, southern New England and New Jersey—Fair to-day; to-morrow unsettled, probably showers; moderate southerly winds.

For western New York—Showers to-day, probably thunder storms, cooler at night; to-morrow fair; moderate southwest to west winds.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The storm from the Gulf of Mexico remained in the Gulf section yesterday, but became central a little northwestward over northern Mississippi and continued to cause heavy rains in the south Atlantic and east Gulf States.

Low pressure also continued over the Pacific and plateau States, but was generally high elsewhere, though without any definite centre.

In other parts of the country the weather was generally fair, excepting local showers and thunderstorms.

It was warmer in the northeastern quarter of the country and generally cooler in the Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys and southward.

In this city the day was fair and warmer; wind, fresh northwest; average humidity, 41 per cent.; barometer, corrected to read to sea level, at 8 A. M., 30.12; 8 P. M. 29.94.

The temperature in this city yesterday, as recorded by the official thermometer, is shown in the annexed table:

	1916.	1915.		1916.	1915.
