NEVER LIE DOWN TO READ

Easy to See Why the Practice is Injurious—How Proper Breathing Promotes Health.

"I never read without using a book rest," said one well-known literary woman. "I think it easier to adjust a book to the sight by its use. A book rest can be raised higher than the level of the lap and the hands and the wrists will not be wearied by the strain of holding it higher than the knees."

"I never read in bed. I am thankful to those, older and wiser than I, who taught me that to read while reclining was to overfill the blood vessels of the eye and so cause a degree of congestion in the eye. If one is too tired to sit straight, I am convinced she is too tired to read. She should rest in the silence and darkness of her room."

In the very way a girl carries her body when walking or sitting she can do good or harm to the prettiness of the neck and throat. The chest must always be held high, and this instinctively raises the head more prettily. The abdomen must be held in, and since some intaking of the breath is required for this last muscular effort, the muscles of the throat and chest are at once benefited.

Muscles, by the way, depend tremendously upon good breathing for health and firmness, so if a girl never did anything more violent than picking a rose, if she simply gives the windmills of her lungs all the good air they need, the blood will be freshened and the muscles nourished almost as well as if she played golf every day. The value of outdoor sports, however playful, is in their action upon the mind.

PUT UP STRONG ARGUMENT

Kentucky Statesman's Unique Appeal for Retention of the Bounty on Foxes' Scalps.

A new angle is given the old yarns about the parson and the chickens and the necessity of having the latter on the table when the former appears in the homes of his parishioners by the story related in Case and Comment, of the speech made by a member of the Kentucky legislature against the repeal of the law for the payment of a bounty on foxes' scalps. The member came from the mountainous section of the state and he put his arguments this way:

"Do the gentlemen want to deprive my constituents and me of the benefits of hearing the gospel preached? We all are Methodists up my way, and our preachers won't come without we can give 'em chickens. We can't raise chickens unless the foxes are killed by somebody, that's sure; and there ain't anybody that can afford to spend their time huntin' foxes and get nothin' to pay for it."

"So, gentlemen, if you repeal this law you'll be depriving my constituents of the benefits of hearin' the gospel preached. That's the way it looks to me. And we need the gospel."

The vote was against the repeal.

Turkish School Children.

"Turkish children recite their lessons all together in the old-fashioned schools, and if you could hear them, you would think that you had gone into Wonderland with Alice, where 'things wouldn't come straight.' The little girls go to school in groups, and with them is always an old servant who carries all their books on what looks for all the world like a small clothes-tree. The boys go and come in two long lines attended by their teacher. They carry their own books and wear long trousers and fezzes exactly like their fathers. Some of the tiny girls carry their own little tables and drawing-boards. In the gypsy village in Scutari the children learn their lessons by songs in the street. They stand in a circle with a big girl in the middle, and they get noisier and noisier the more interested they grow."—Lindamira Harbeson, in St. Nicholas.

Only a Collection.

Usually the holdup man's way of getting the coin from the belated citizen is to put him to sleep with a crack on the bean. But the other night a New York journeyman highwayman adopted a different method. He held up a preacher in a Harlem street and with the aid of repartee and a gun made him come across with his roll. After the preacher had dug down in his jeans and given his money to the highwayman he rebuked the man for adopting that way of earning a living. "Can't help it, brother," said the strong-arm man, "I need the coin. I am only taking up a collection; you can do the same, you know, and get away with it twice as easy as I can. Thanks for the favor."

Judging a Man Properly.

When you esteem a man why should you survey him all wrapped and enveloped? He then but showeth us those parts which are no whit his own, and hideth those from us by which alone his worth is to be judged. It is the goodness of the sword you seek after and not the worth of the scabbard; for which peradventure you would not give a farthing if it want its lining. A man should be judged by himself and not by his complements. What mind hath he? Is it fair, capable and unpolished, and happily provided with all her necessary parts? Is she rich of her own or of others' goods? Hath fortune nothing of hers to survey therein?—Montaigne.

Uncle Eben.

"A man dat kin git paid foh givin' de public good advice," said Uncle Eben, "may not be so much of a floosier; but you gottter respect him as a financier."

The Rock-Ribbed Partisan.

"We have observed," says the Smileyville Express, "that most partisans who are rock ribbed are also hom-headed and moon-headed."

Obituary of Henry Brenner.

On Saturday, April 8, there died at his home the aged and honored Henry Brenner. Known and respected of all his death brought forth the sympathetic and kindly expressions of a multitude of friends. He had been failing steadily for the past few months and his death was therefore no surprise. He had lived a long life. He had eighty-four years and eleven days to the span of his life. But length of years only was not the merit of his existence. His life was filled with goodness, the goodness of a great heart expressed in faithful service.

Henry Brenner was born in Lancaster county Penn., Mar. 28, 1882. At the age of 21 he united with a church of the Evangelical denomination and then began the long and steady prosecution of religious work which practically was not terminated until a few weeks past. Up to the present year he had conducted a class in the Congregational Sunday School.

He was twice married. He lost his first wife two years after marriage and their child died in infancy. In 1857 he married Susan Yordy of Freeport, Ill. Eleven children were born. Six died when little children. Five grew to maturity and they with the aged wife and the four brothers and the two sisters of the deceased survive him. His children are: Mrs. J. W. Feldman, Mrs. Charles Webber Wilton and Charles Brenner of this city and Mrs. George Hoy of Beloit, Wisconsin. His brothers and sisters are David and John of Canton; Taylor of Miller, S. D.; Jacob of Manhattan, Kansas; Mrs. Lyons of Inwood, Iowa and Mrs. Susan Gemmill of Shannon, Illinois. The grand children of this father in Israel number thirty-two and the great grand children thirty.

Appropriate services were held at the Congregational church Tuesday afternoon when Rev. O. B. Preston delivered the sermon and Rev. Zellhoefer read the Scripture and Rev. Thurston offered the prayer. At the close of the sermon by the pastor the two clergymen paid their respects to the character of the fallen good man in earnest and timely terms. The pallbearers were John Johnson, K. Knutson, C. Tange, C. Kundert, E. Bohlen and F. Beck.

Baptist Church Notes.

Mrs. Beebe and Miss Inez Beebe, of Ipswich, and Mrs. C. E. Hackett, of Parker, who had been in attendance of the Women's Baptist Foreign Missionary Convention at Sioux Falls, gave us a pleasant surprise Sunday evening by dropping in on us at our services unannounced. The pastor called his sermon off and turned the pulpit over to the visitors. Miss Beebe and Mrs. Hackett responded with addresses that were greatly appreciated by all interested in the great work the Baptist women are doing.

The Ladies Aid will meet this week Friday at the home of Mrs. Ed. Warner. The usual luncheon will be served and a large attendance is desired.

Methodist Church

The theme at the morning service next Sunday will be "The Upward Look." In the evening it will be "The Rock of Our Salvation." We were glad to see so many country people in last Sabbath. The church was quite well filled but room could be made for more. We shall be glad to have everybody who is not in attendance anywhere else to come and worship with us. Next Sabbath morning members will be received into the church. The attendance at Sabbath School last Sunday was 238. Let us try earnestly next Sabbath and make it 300. Mr. Forrest gave a very interesting talk at the League. Next Sunday evening the subject is "Getting Along With Disagreeable Folks." The young people are cordially invited to these services. The meetings of the League are being held in the basement at present.

Lutheran Church.

Divine services (Norwegian) Sunday morning, April 16th, 11 o'clock and Sunday evening at 7:30. Rev. Stokke, missionary from China, will preach at both services.
