SCHUPP'S SOUTHPAW PITCHING TAMES TINKER'S BRUINS

Adds 15th Link to Giants' Chain of Victories After Only One Day's Rest.

LAVENDER JINX IS OVERCOME: SCORE, 4—2

By FREDERICK G. LIEB.

The Giants still are on their way, but no one can tell just where the boys are going, not even McGraw. Some inquisitive person asked John, "Why all this haste among your clan, and what may be thy destination?" "I can't tell myself," answered John. "But we're going there."

The fall triumphal march was stretched out another lap on the Polo Grounds yesterday, as the friendly old Bruins wouldn't think of being so rude as to snap a perfectly good winning streak. Ferdie Schupp tamed the Cubs by a score of 4 to 2, and the streak is now fifteen victories long. Inquisitive bugs are again infesting the press stand, asking for the length, age, width and dimensions of that Providence run of twenty straight in 1884. Somebody wanted to know yesterday whether Providence was in the National or International League during that time.

Ferdinand Schupp, married and left handed, is a sermon in patience. Ferdie never got tired of trying to pitch, and McGraw never got tired of Ferdie's pitching. Ferdie has been around here so long that some veterans have really forgotten when Ferdinand first strolled down Broadway. Ferdie reported to the Giants in March in February, 1913, and has been with them ever since, never missing a meal on a single trip. Two months ago Schupp was just one of the Schush flock of Schupp and Schauer, but now all has changed.

Working Like Eddie Plank.

Just now Ferdie is acting as though he is closely related to Eddie Plank. On Monday it was Schupp's duty to shut out Pittsburg, and owing to all those Pittsburg double headers, McGraw was very short on pitching flesh yesterday, so he put Schupp back to work after only one night's rest.

Ferdie rested so long during the seasons of 1913, 1914 and 1915 that he doesn't mind a little overwork now, and he dusted the Cubs away from the plate with six hits and one earned run. The Zinnm lei in another with a two base wild throw. Schupp has now permitted fourteen hits and two earned runs in his last two games. Hale Schauer wouldn't know his former Schush partner if he saw him now.

Jamie Lavender, who has caused the Giants annoyance at different times by smashing Rube Marquard's winning streak and pitching no hit and near no hit games against them, had evil designs on that winning streak, when Tinker said: "Jamie, you work to-day." The Montezuma bird had been laying for that streak, and he looked real pleased about it when the Cubs spotted him a run in the third and fourth innings. Jamie wasn't so pleased when the Giants tied in the fourth, and the Giants took all the joy out of his life by busting him for two more in the lucky seventh.

Byron Calls a Halt.

The Cubs were all prepared to have a good time and let out frequent bruin yowls from the bench, when they ruffled the sensitive ears of Lord Byron. Lord Byron argued "as big is pigs, so is rules rule," and insisted those squeals must cease. After a spell the Cubs got it through their domes that Bill meant for them to keep silent.

Leslie Mann, member of the faculty of the Springfield Training School, was guilty of conduct unbecoming an instructor of embryo Y. M. C. A. athletic instructors. Les didn't like a third strike and kicked the ball away from McCarty, sassed Umpire Byron and looked ferocious when Byron in loud tones yelled: "You're through for the day; get out of here!" One lady visitor in the press stand asked whether there would be a fight, but Les went out without Byron calling out the reserves.

Steve Yerkes deposited a run in Restaurateur Weegman's scoring bank in the second inning. After the Cubs shipped Steve to Atlanta in the spring we never expected to see Stephen in the large league again. The former Pennsylvania star singled to centre, and Wortman popped to Fletcher. Lavender pushed a slow, rolling single just by Fletcher and Steve by a strange burst of speed ran around to third. Rollie Zeider, who made the bunion famous, hit to Holke, who fumbled, but recovered in time to force Lavender. Yerkes scoring. Two errors put together another Chicago run in the fourth inning. Burns muffed Saier's line smash, and Vaughn stole second. He scored when Zimmerman made a two base wild throw on Wilson.

Giants Tie Score in Fourth.

The Giants tied in their turn of the fourth. Herzog walked and took second on Robertson's roller to Saier. Wortman could not hold Zim's fierce line drive over his head and it went for a hit. Had he clasped it he would have had an easy double play before him. Fletcher drove a hit through Zeider, scoring Herzog. Williams was playing deep for Home Run Kauff, and Benny's pop fly behind second fell safe for a hit, Bronx Heinrich scoring.

New York won with another pair of runs in the eighth round. Holke backed some concrete out of the right field wall with a stiff double and scored when Lew McCarty smashed a triple over Kelly's honest thatch. Lewis scored while Yerkes was losing out Burns. The score:

To-day's victory ends the fight out of seven of the best games series for Newport News, the game being the 7 of 7 games played between the two clubs, and is the first crown won by the Shipbuilders since they entered the Virginia League in mid-season, and is the second crown won by the Shipbuilders since they entered the league.

Dodgers Drive Another Spike Into Pennant Pole

In Comedy of Errors Robins Vanquish Cardinals, 4 to 2—St. Louis Support Crinkles Behind Ames, While Superbas Back Up Smith Superbly.

By GEORGE B. UNDERWOOD.

If to err is human and to forgive divine, then the St. Louis Cardinals are about the humanest critters this side of the Great Divide, and it is up to Leon Kalamity Ames this bonny September morn to try to prove himself a divinity.

Leon Kalamity mounted the pitching peak at Ebbets Field yesterday against our own Sherrod Smith, and though the former Giant twirler pitched due ball, the sins of his mates were visited upon him even unto the extent of four costly boooles, each one of which the demon Dodgers with the necromancy of their big bats turned into a run.

And while the St. Louis defence was crinkling up like tissue paper behind Ames the Sun rhys were throwing out a stonewall support behind Smith. Excellent pitching by Sherrod and an airtight defence by his mates gave Brooklyn the victory, 4 to 2, and drove one more spike in the pennant pole of Hercules Ebbets hopes to plant in his Flatbush ball yard.

Three Cheers for That Gap!

There was a yawning chasm in the Cardinal infield wider than the spacious court yard of the Buckingham Hotel, where, when you visit St. Louis, you sit on a hot summer evening and sigh and sigh and sigh for some semblance of a cooling zephyr to come floating across the green fields of Forest Park across the way. Three cheers for that hole!

The Cardinal thespians furnished a comedy of errors. According to the official scorer the Cardinal malefactors committed four costly misdemeanors, each of which the Superbas converted into a run. We bow to his superior mandate, though we ourselves were of the opinion that one of the Superba counts was an earned one and that the error the official scorer chalked up against Johnny Miller in the sixth canto should have been credited as a hit to Otto Miller. The drive in question was a vicious bounder that Dots ran in on and stopped with his gloved hard high in the air when he suddenly had slowed down and, reaching backward, was off balance. In recovering his balance Dots dropped the ball.

It could be scored either as a hit for Otto or an error for Dots. It all was a matter of opinion. We thought one way, the official scorer the other. Giddap.

Dodgers Play Real Ball.

But there was no question of the other three boobles charged up against the hired men of Mr. Schuyler Britton. Neither was there any question of the nifty way the Dodgers took advantage of each Cardinal miplay. Each time Opportunity knocked on the door the Dodgers received it with open arms. Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson's lads played real baseball. As the season is waning the once scoffed at Dodgers are looking more like champions every minute.

Sinks let the Cardinals down with five hits, three of them being bunched together in the fourth inning for St Louis's full complement of two runs.

The Dodgers threatened to score in the opening canto, but it was only a scare. With one down Daubert singled past second and took second when Betzel was throwing out Stengel. With the mighty Wheat up things looked rosate, but Ames passed Wheat and Cutshaw popped to Dots Miller.

Cardinal Defence Explodes.

In the second the St. Louis defence exploded with a loud detonation and presented Brooklyn with a run. Ames walked Mowrey. Olson lifted a pop fly back of second and it went for a hit when Butler, Long and Betzel stood together in a cluster and let it fall safe. Mowrey hesitated between first and second, but made the midway before one of the Cardinal fielders could collect their befuddled faculties and heave the ball to Dots Miller, who was standing on second and bawling for some one to throw the ball.

While the St. Louis infield was still very much up in the air Mowrey essayed to steal third and got the bag when Hornsby dropped Senor Gonzales's throw. The ball rolled away from Hornsby and Mowrey galloped across the scoring dish with run No. 1, Olson taking second. Otto Miller's attempted sacrifice bunt went awry, Gonzales tossing out Olson at third. Smith walked and then along came Jimmy Johnston, who smashed into a double play, Betzel to Snyder.

The sievelike St. Louis defence again allowed another Brooklyn marker to percolate across the platter in the third. With one down Stengel shot a grounder to the port side of first. Snyder left the bag and started after it, failing to get to it. Betzel got over to it, but there was no one on first to take his throw, Ames failing to run over and cover the bag, Stengel getting a life on the scratch hit.

Stengel Scores.

Casey took second when Wheat singled past second, and he and Buck each advanced a base when Betzel mussed up Cutshaw's grounder for an error, filling the bases. Mowrey lifted a sacrifice fly to Lonz, whose throw in only was about twenty feet wide of the platter, Stengel scoring. With Wheat on third and Cutshaw on second Olson fanned.

Dots Miller launched the Cardinal craft out on a rally in the fourth with a double to the right field wall. The pride of Kearny, New Jersey, took third when Long beat out a bunt to Mowrey. Hornsby walked, filling the bases. Beecher crashed a clean single to centre, Miller and Long scored the tieing runs, Butler hit into a double play, Olson, Cutshaw and Daubert, spiking the rally. The Cardinals didn't threaten during the rest of the game. Stengel backed up against the fence and spoiled Beecher's shot for a homer in the seventh. Casey made a glittering corral.

Brooklyn sewed tidings up in the sixth when Mowrey doubled to right, took third on Olson's sacrifice and scored on Otto Miller's bounder to J. Miller, on which the official scorer charged Dots with an error, though to ye humble scribe it looked more like a hit for Otto. A minut later Dots Miller made a great stop and throw of Smith's grounder, Otto and Sherrod being doubled up, J. Miller, Betzel and Snyder.

Games to Start Earlier.

Johnston got a life on an error by Johnny Miller in the seventh. Dauber sacrificed. Johnston took third on Stengel's infield out and rode home astraddle of Wheat's single to centre. Steambeat Williams went on the mound in the eighth and turned the Dodgers back hitless with the help of Beecher's one hand catch of Otto Miller's powerful liner to deep left.

To-day's game will be started at 2 P. M. So will all other single games hereafter. Yesterday's score:

MINOR LEAGUERS AT L. I. CITY.

State and International Players to Meet Degnon Grays.

The biggest attraction of the season for Degnon Field, opposite the Hunter's Point station of the Railway tube, is carded for this Sunday. The card calls for the meeting of the New York State and International League stars with the Degnon Grays. The visiting team will be composed of Bruggy, Clougher and O'Rourke of Utica; Leeds of Elmira; Hartman of Binghamton; Lajoie of Syracuse and Thompson of Toronto and Carlstrom of the Buffalo club, champions of the International League. Most of these players soon will report to the major leagues.

Hugh McQuillan, leading pitcher of the Eastern League, who fanned twenty-one men and allowed only three hits in thirteen innings last Sunday, will pitch Thompson's game. The St. Mary's nine will play in the preliminary game at 1:30. On Saturday the Grays will tackle the Farmers at Glendale.

RED SOX SHOVE TIGERS FROM RACE

Boston Makes Tighter Hold on First Place and Dethrones Detroit.

PINCH HIT WINS, 4 TO 3

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—Boston's pennant pointed champion Red Sox need no outside help in their race for the 1916 honors, judging from their work here to-day. Handicapped by a three run lead acquired by the Tigers in the second inning Bill Carrigan's fighters went after Detroit in the fourth, got back the runs loaned early and then proceeded to clinch victory in the eighth when Olaf Henriksen, pinch batting for Carrigan, rapped a timely single to right that shoved Scott over the plate with the winning run.

By administering a second successive defeat to the Tigers the Red Sox practically eliminated Jennings's team from the race, as it gave Boston a two game advantage with them travelling to Cleveland for a short series and then returning home to finish the season. The Red Sox were highly confident of winning the pennant after taking to-day's game by 4 to 3.

Because of his display to date Jennings took a chance on Howard Ehmke, the young right hander recently acquired. Many think this was a mistake, contending that Ehmke was too inexperienced to stop such a winning combination as the Red Sox. Ehmke did well for three innings, but he blew with a bang in the fourth that could be heard on the Boston Common and gave Boston just the chance that was needed to win.

Leonard in Rare Form.

Dutch Leonard was in tiptop form throughout, pitching one of his best games. The three scores made off him in the second inning came through wild throws more than solid hitting, and can hardly be charged against the pitcher. After the second he was invincible, especially in the patches. He was in trouble several times, but pulled himself together without allowing a run.

In the sixth inning singles by Veach and Crawford and a pass to Heilmann filled the bases, with none out, but Leonard struck out Young and Ehmke, and Burns, batting for Stanage, flied to Shorten, leaving the three stranded. In the seventh Cobb singled with two down and Veach made a great effort with a fly to deep right that Hooper took off the bleacher wall. That was all that happened to Leonard after the second.

Ehmke also gave a good mound display, but weakened just enough to allow Boston to collect four tallies. Disposing of the visitors handily in the first three innings it was a surprise to see him falter in the fourth. Shorten opened the fourth with a single, the first safe hit off Ehmke. Hoboy lifted to Cobb, but the irrepressible and efficient Duffy Lewis cut in with a double down the right field foul line that put Shorten on third. Gardner's sacrifice fly scored Shorten and advanced Lewis. Scott scooted a single past Young, scoring Lewis. Carrigan lined to centre, and when Cobb tried to make a shoestring catch the ball got by him, Scott scoring and Carrigan reaching third. Leonard grounded out.

Ehmke Keeps at It.

Although disheartened Ehmke continued to pitch good ball. In the seventh he found the bases full, with none out, and emulated the work of Leonard by preventing a score. Leonard singled, Hooper doubled and Janvrin walked, crowding the corners. Shorten rolled to Heilmann, whose throw to the plate forced out Leonard, and the return throw doubled up Shorten at first. Hoboy rolled out via Young and Heilmann.

The winning run came in the eighth with two out. Scott was passed, and after acting Ehmke long enough to get the count one and one Carrigan shoved Olaf Henriksen into the game to bat. Henriksen responded with a single to right, scoring Scott.

Detroit's runs were mostly gifts. Crawford started the fireworks in the second inning with a single. Heilmann beat out a bunt. Young also bunted and Hoblitzel threw the ball past Janvrin, who covered first. Crawford scoring. Stanage flied to Hooper and Heilmann scored. Scott intercepted Hooper's throw to the plate and threw toward first trying to catch Young off the bag, but nobody was near the bag, the ball rolling to the bleachers, Young scoring all the way from first.

Cobb Is Disappointed.

Cobb was so disappointed and noisy in the ninth he was chased off the coaching line. Vitt was back in the lineup again, being received with cheers by the immense crowd. The score:

FISHER FALTERS AND YANKS LOSE

New York Makes Uphill Fight, but Browns Clinch Game in Eighth, 7 to 3.

SISLER BIG OBSTACLE

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 20.—After a game uphill fight, in which they cancelled a three run lead with late inning rallies, the Yankees could not stand prosperity and blew up behind Ray Fisher in the eighth inning. It was then the Browns scored four runs, enough to win the second game of the series by the score of 7 to 3.

Allen Russell started on the mound for the Big Town boys and pitched fair ball, though St. Louis scored three runs on him early in the game. At any rate he pitched better ball than he had been doing. After Baumann struck out for Russell in the seventh inning Ray Fisher took up the Gotham hurling job.

The Vermont schoolmaster got along real nicely for one inning, but after the Yankees tied the score in the first half of the eighth "Fish" went to pieces in the second half and the Browns gave him a wicked lacing.

Sisler Opens Fire.

Sisler bored a single to right for his third straight hit as the opening shot off Pedagogue Ray. Pratt slapped his third single to centre, Sisler taking second. Both runners advanced on Alexander's wild throw to catch Sisler off second. Marsans popped to Pipp, and Rumler, hitting for Austin, singled sharply to centre, scoring Sisler and Pratt.

Hartley singled to left, Rumler stopping on second. Lavan popped to Peckinpaugh, and then old Bob Groom heaped the final insult on Fisher. He plastered a double to deep right centre, which scored both Rumler and Hartley. Shotton ended the inning with a fly to Peck.

Groom pitched pretty good ball throughout, the old ex-Senator holding Donovan's men to only seven hits. The work of Sisler and Pratt featured. The marvellous Michigan University find had a perfect average at bat. He made three hits and drew a pass in four times up and scored three times. Pratt made three hits and scored twice.

The Browns opened on Russell strong, pounding out nine for three hits and two runs after two were out in the first inning. After Shotton lofted to Magee and Lavan grounded to Peck, Sisler singled to centre and Pratt stung its mate into left field. On the hit and run Marsans knocked a double into centre field, scoring both Sisler and Pratt. Walters then threw out Austin on a little tap in front of the plate.

St. Louis scored its third run in the third inning. The irresistible Sisler started it, of course. He opened with a line drive to right for a base, and took second as Russell threw out Pratt. Jim Austin, who had a bit concealed about him, drove it into centre field and Sisler scored.

High Hits in Pinch.

Groom drove the Yankees back for six innings, but they got to him for two runs in the seventh chapter. After Baker popped to Sisler, Elmer Miller walked, and Gedeon, who is hitting much better, drove a single to left. Hugh batted for Walters, and while Hughie was at bat Miller and Gedeon worked a double steal. Hugh singled to right, scoring Miller, and Gedeon also came home when Tobin made a wild throw to the plate. Aragon ran for Hughie and Baumann batted for Russell and struck out. Magee walked, but the rally came to an end when Hendrix popped to Pratt.

New York then tied the score in the eighth inning. After Peckinpaugh rolled to Austin, Pipp was safe on Lavan's fumble. Walle took second on a short passed ball. Baker was purposely passed, but Miller fooled Jones by slapping a single to left, which drove Pipp home. Gedeon then fanned, and Baker was out trying to steal third. The score:
