PARIS SENDS NOTED FASHION MAN HERE

M. de Giafferri, Envoy for 7,000 Firms, to Lecture at Wanamaker's.

M. de Giafferri has come to America. Who is M. de Giafferri? Well, he is the man whom the town council of Paris has selected to manage the "salon of the mode and of the decorative industries" to be held each Easter in the French capital.

He comes to America as representative of the Chambre de Syndicat, which includes fifty dressmaking firms, and of the Delegation of Creating Industries, which has 7,000 firms making lace, embroidery, tassels, buttons, braid, furs, jets and the thousand odd other things used in adorning Miladyhood.

The important thing about M. de Giafferri's arrival is that he has brought with him many trunks filled with gowns, wraps, hats, &c., produced by these firms and is showing the goods at Wanamaker's.

Every day next week he will give a causerie in the auditorium there at 2:30 P. M., first talking about the Renaissance, or costumes under the Directoire, or the Napoleonic period, and then exhibiting gowns illustrating the period discussed. For he has made a study of the history of dress and like the famous scientist who built up a large animal from one tiny bone, he can tell from a glimpse of a skirt or a sleeve on just what age the costume is based.

Before a selected lot of artists, fashion writers and press people M. de Giafferri gave yesterday, as a sample of next week's bill of fare, a discourse on "gown cutters of the middle ages."

The general effect of the street dresses shown was short and full, and most of the things were refreshingly simple. At least they looked that way, but, as a dressmaker in the third row whispered, "Just try to drape one of those things and see how simple it is." There was a charming mouse-colored velvet evening gown, and there was another of pale pink silk and white lace that made the girl in it look like a rose.

There were also sumptuous fur coats with high collars, and one ingenious reversible evening coat which the owner, when it gets shabby on the outside, can just turn the other side out and have a brand new coat quite different in appearance.

M. de Giafferri said that he hoped to be the means of introducing to America the younger firms of Paris dressmakers. "Only about twelve or fifteen are known in this country," he explained, "and that is such a small part of the full number. I would not interfere with the prestige of the leading firms that have secured your patronage, but I speak too for the others, and for the 400,000 working girls who earn their bread in the dressmaking shops of Paris where, even in this time of war, we still go on making clothes for the world."

NEWPORT BALL RAISED $2,800.

Money Given to Needy Families of N. Y. and R. I. Guard.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 22.—The black and white ball given in the summer home of Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice last month for the needy families of National Guardsmen of New York and this State netted $2,800. Mrs. R. T. Wilson, who was treasurer, has turned over to Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, chairman of the New York National Guard Auxiliary, $2,000, and to Gov. Beeckman $800.

Mrs. William F. Draper was a dinner hostess this evening, as was Mrs. Arthur Graham Glasgow. A surprise party was tendered Mrs. Richard T. Wilson at her Middletown farm.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon Bennett will close their Newport season to-morrow. It is understood that they plan to sail for France next week.

BISHOP PETERKIN DEAD.

Aged Prelate of Episcopal Church Dies After Long Illness.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 22.—The Rev. George W. Peterkin, 76, Bishop of West Virginia, died at his home here to-day after an illness of four years. He was for more than fifty years a Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Bishop Peterkin was born in Washington county, Maryland, March 21, 1841. He was graduated from the University of Virginia in 1859 and three years later enlisted in the Confederate army. He became aid to Brig.-Gen. W. N. Pendleton. In 1868 he was graduated from the Theological Seminary of Virginia. In 1878 he was consecrated first Bishop of West Virginia. He was in charge of the Protestant Episcopal mission in Brazil in 1889 and in 1901 made a missionary tour of Porto Rico. Bishop Peterkin was author of "Records of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Virginia and West Virginia" and "A Handbook for Members and Friends of the Protestant Episcopal Church."

DENIES MRS. SEELYE SUPPORTED HUSBAND

Guardian Opposes $5,000 Additional Allowance; Says She Got $450 a Month.

Frederick C. Leubuscher, 258 Broadway, guardian of Renee Boucicault Seelye, testified in the Surrogates' court yesterday that Mrs. Seelye did not support her husband out of the moneys from her grandfather's estate, as she asserted in a recent affidavit submitted to Surrogate Cohalan.

Mrs. Seelye is the daughter of Aubrey Boucicault and the granddaughter of Dion Boucicault, actor, and she has asked the court for an additional allowance of $5,000 to enable her to go to Europe, complaining that her guardian doesn't give her enough to support herself. She has said she would file an application for his removal.

"If I granted all her requests," said Mr. Leubuscher, "the estate would long ago have been insolvent. I have paid her on an average $450 a month, and in spite of this she has contracted debts for millinery and other things amounting to more than $2,000, which she now wants me to pay out of the principal of the estate."

He said Mrs. Seelye's assertion that she had turned over to her husband practically all the checks she got from her guardian was absurd. He produced a stack of vouchers, saying he had there cancelled checks amounting to $6,400, and that those bearing Mr. Seelye's indorsement amounted to only $1,600.

"Mr. Seelye is not the type of man who would allow his wife to support him," he said.

Surrogate Cohalan reserved decision on the applications for an allowance and for a special guardian.

For eastern New York, local showers and somewhat cooler to-day; to-morrow, probably fair; moderate southerly winds.

For New Jersey, showers, followed by clearing and cooler weather, to-day; to-morrow, fair with moderate temperature; moderate south shifting to west winds.

For northern New England, local showers to-day and probably to-morrow; moderate southerly winds.

For southern New England, local showers and somewhat lower temperature to-day; to-morrow, probably fair; moderate south winds.

For western New York, overcast and cooler to-day; to-morrow, fair; moderate west and northwest winds.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The storm in the upper lake regions moved a little southeastward yesterday and covered the upper and middle Mississippi Valley, the Ohio Valley and lake regions and western parts of the Middle Atlantic States from a centre over Wisconsin.

It caused no remarkable rainfall, but showers occurred in the St. Lawrence Valley, lake regions, Ohio Valley, Tennessee and Arkansas. Elsewhere generally fair weather continued.

Low pressure also prevailed over the plateau States, but was high over most of the Missouri Valley and plains States.

It was warmer in the Atlantic States, lower lake region and southward, but cooler in the upper lakes and westward into the Missouri Valley. Temperature was below freezing in parts of Montana and Wyoming.

In this city the day was fair and warmer; wind, fresh southeast; average humidity, 73 per cent.; barometer, corrected to read to sea level, at 8 A. M., 29.96; 3 P. M., 29.92.
