OVERSEA BIDS FOR AMERICAN GOODS.

Country's Entry Into War Appears to Have Not Reduced Opportunities.

The entry of the United States into the war shows no immediate effect on the opportunities for oversea business, plentifully afforded to American manufacturers. It is not likely that the war will greatly restrict the extension of American export business to neutral countries for some time at least. Judging by the number of letters received bakers' supplies, especially egg yolks, are to be had readily and are actively in demand abroad.
