PROFESSOR MAKES RECORD AS FIGHTER

Capt. L. W. Miles, Princeton, Loses One Leg and Breaks Both Arms in Battle.

DECLINED HOME DETAIL

Refused to Act as Instructor and Won Commission on the Field.

A cablegram from Ambassador Sharp received at Princeton University yesterday reported the satisfactory progress in a Paris hospital of Capt. L. Wardlaw Miles, who was severely wounded September 4.

Capt. Miles was a professor of English literature at Princeton when the United States entered the war, and has given a heroic account of himself as a fighting man. His left leg has been amputated below the knee, and in the action in which the leg was injured both his arms were broken.

At the declaration of war Capt. Miles obtained leave of absence from his university post, and after three months at a training camp went to France as a Lieutenant. Last June he was offered a Captaincy and an assignment back in this country as an instructor. He declined, preferring to remain with his company. Within two months he received the Captaincy for heroic leadership. A letter reaching Princeton yesterday from one of Capt. Miles's brother officers said:

"While at Princeton and a student under him I held him in high esteem, but since I have been in the same regiment with him and have fought with him, side by side, I have never seen anything to equal his high idealism and splendid devotion to his country's cause."

Another Princeton Man Killed.

Honor is reflected also upon Princeton in the death of Sergeant Reuben H. T. Peterson of the 306th Machine Gun Company. He was killed in action August 27. In a letter home, written three days earlier, he said he was in the front line trenches and was about to start into No Man's Land in an endeavor to capture a hidden German machine gun which was annoying his regiment. He was graduated from the Flushing High School and afterward went to Princeton, engaging in civil engineering after his graduation. Last January he married Miss Elsa Kirpal, daughter of Mrs. F. J. Kirpal, 140 Barclay street, Flushing.

Robert Augustine Slattery, 26, a corporal in the Fifty-first Infantry, reported yesterday dead from wounds, is believed to be the first member of the New York Police Department killed in the war. According to the telegram received by his mother, Mrs. Alice Slattery, 806 Tinton avenue, The Bronx, he died September 14. Police Commissioner Enright has written Mrs. Slattery a letter in which he said: "His memory will occupy a splendid niche in the history of the Police Department."

Corporal Slattery was drafted June 24. He was a patrolman attached to the staff of the Fourth Inspection district, with headquarters at the West Sixty-eighth street station. He was a member of the parish of the Church of St. Anselm, 151st street and Tinton avenue, The Bronx, and of the Holy Name Society.

Saw Five Slain by Bomb.

Mr. and Mrs. John Campson, 371 Campson street, Brooklyn, have received a letter from their sixteen-year-old son, Thomas, wounded September 5, written from a hospital in England September 21. A bullet struck his left shoulder. "I cannot use either the arm or shoulder," wrote Thomas, "but I think I am very fortunate at that, because I saw five comrades near me killed instantly by a bomb dropped from an enemy plane. I don't mind staying here in this hospital," he adds, "as most of the doctors are Americans, also the nurses. They treat all the boys grand."

Young Campson enlisted in the Twenty-third Regiment in Brooklyn in 1917, saying that he was 19 years old. He was later transferred to Company H, 106th Infantry.

Private Benjamin W. Roth, a former postal clerk, drafted last spring to the 307th Infantry, was killed September 5. His relatives, 235 East Eighty-fifth street, received a letter from him dated September 1 in which he said he was returning from the trenches for a rest camp after having been in several skirmishes. Members of his family believe the report of his death is an error, unless he was killed in an airplane raid or by a barrage which caught his detachment as it was leaving for the rear.

Killed in Pause of Battle.

Lieut. Hyman Frieberg, 131st Infantry, killed in action, was resting with his company in an apple orchard some distance in the rear of the firing line when he was struck by a fragment of an exploding shell. He was a graduate of the College of the City of New York and was employed by Ansel & Co., bankers, 52 Broadway. He lived with his parents at 147 Lenox avenue. August 7 he wrote of having passed safely through three or four big engagements.

Lieut. Lester Wallace Kearn, killed in action, lived with his foster mother, Mrs. Thomas A. Wilson, 551 West 160th street. He was drafted in August, 1917, and went to France as a private in Company I, 106th Infantry, last April. He won his commission last July. He studied at St. Stephen's College, Annandale, N. Y., and was about to enter a Protestant Episcopal seminary to study for the ministry when he was drafted.

"The Blue and the Gray" division, which includes the Asbury Park, N. J., troops, was heavily engaged in the Vosges September 16, according to casualty notices. These twelve Asbury Park boys were wounded, degree undetermined: Sergeant William L. Paterson, Corporals Arthur N. Garrity and Stanley Cranmer; Privates Everett Snyder, Robert Tuzenew, Eugene Slocum, Clifford Morris, Alvin Hubbard, Leon Gardner, Eugene J. Garrity, Carl Chamberlain and Uciah Matthews.

Ernest Washington Porter, Newark, killed with the marines, was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Porter, 311 Verona avenue, Newark. He enlisted April 17, 1917, and went to France with the first expeditionary force as a member of the Twenty-third Company, Sixth Machine Gun Battalion, Fifth Marine Regiment. He was born in Rutherford, but went to Newark when a lad and was educated in the Central High School there. He was a salesman for a commission house.

William F. O'Grady, 80 Jewell street, Brooklyn, wounded in action August 27, wrote his mother September 2: "I am feeling fine. I got through a big battle. We took thousands of prisoners. They are a miserable bunch. All of them are old. Some of them begged for mercy."

Grady enlisted in September, 1917, and went to France with Company D, 106th Infantry. He has a brother in the navy.
