CORN PRICES RISE BEFORE THE CLOSE

September Hits New Record Figure and Other Months Show Advances.

REALIZING CHECKS GAIN

Oats Holds Steady and Provision Market Eases on Profit Taking.

Corn prices strengthened yesterday after a nervous and irregular morning session and shorts covered freely in the advance. September reached a new record price while other months were only slightly under their high figures. Further advances in Argentine corn and hogs and a tight cash position were mainly responsible for the upturn. Hogs reached a new high figure of 23.60c. only to decline later. The decline, however, had no effect on grain prices. Advices from Iowa said that little corn was being shipped to market, the majority of the farmers preferring to feed that cereal to live stock. Industrial demand, which started well, was abated somewhat by the strike in one of the leading companies. Elevator interests, however, bought heavily in the cash product. The scant supply and the predictions of the light receipts for some time to come turned many who had looked favorably on the short side of the market. Cash corn was from 1 to 3 cents higher.

Weather conditions were favorable as was crop news, but these reports were not sufficient to overcome the strong bullish feeling which permeated through the trade. A reaction was expected by some, but there was nothing to sustain the decline except the old adage that a strong Monday brings a reaction on Tuesday and that failed to come true. While Monday was strong, there was no reaction yesterday. Profit taking, however, served to check the advance. In anticipation of the Government crop report to-day there was considerable evening up. Weather and crop news caused selling of December in the morning, but that month followed the others in the later upturn.

Oats were steady. The large visible supply with the reports of beneficial showers in the Northwest caused the selling. Buying orders came on the strength in corn, crop complaints and the relative cheapness of grain. The cheapness of a product holds most of its friends. Provisions were easier, due to selling by packers and realizing sales. Many believed that a reaction in provisions would bring the market back to a healthy condition.

COFFEE MARKET.

The coffee market was active throughout yesterday with values constantly creeping higher. On the call prices were 15 to 44 points above the previous close, due to stronger Brazil markets and the absence of aggressive selling. Bulls bought freely and shorts seemed anxious to cover, which sent July to 22.26, September to 22.20, December to 21.80 and March to 21.75, closing at net gains of 40 to 71 points.

The early cables reported an advance of 450 to 550 reis in Santos futures with a later further gain of 150 to 175 reis.

PRICES FOR COTTON MOVE IRREGULARLY

Undertone of Market, However, Continues Firm During the Session.

LIVERPOOL BUYS HEAVILY

Closing Is Steady, With Values at From 19 to 45 Points Higher for Day.

Irregular fluctuations marked the cotton market yesterday but its undertone throughout the session was firm. There was little fresh outside news except a Washington despatch which stated that the Spanish import duty on American cotton had been reduced about one half to influence the movement of prices. It naturally gave the bull elements considerable pleasure as it is expected that exports will be encouraged. There were rumors of further cut in cotton freights by the Shipping Board.

Brokers operating for Liverpool were again among the largest purchasers and the strength in the British market was favorably commented on by the uptown and the Wall Street bull crowds. In the English centre futures opened steady to firm, but closed sharply higher. There was only a small business in spots, in which prices were up 12 points. Sales were nominal. The decline in sterling did not seem to have much effect on the market in Liverpool, as buying power was present at all times.

The weather undoubtedly to a certain degree offset yesterday many of the bull factors. Conditions in all parts of the belt were favorable for the growth of the crop. Showers were scattered and not heavy, yet it was pointed out that the weather situation would have to remain steadily favorable before having an appreciable effect. The money market was more settled, but would hardly be called a factor although the securities market was carefully observed by cotton traders.

Spot house and Liverpool support boosted values 15 to 23 points at the start, first prices being: July, 33.65; October, 33.60; December, 32.25; January, 32.15; March, 32.83, and May, 32.75B. After the opening there was a good deal of mixed business from many quarters, but activity was not very great. Liverpool seemed to take considerable and the trade was an early buyer. Local realizing was moderately heavy during most of the session, but support usually appeared on recessions.

The later trading brought nothing new to the fore, and the lack of any exports of the day seemed to have no bearing on the market. The outside public was in a waiting position, the general developments not being such as to cause anyone but professionals to trade. At the highest points of the day prices were approximately one-half cent up from the previous ending. The close was steady, 19 to 45 points higher.
