LAKE CRAFT FOR THE SEA

"Get Everything That Will Float," Was the Order, and the Fate of the Ghosts Was Sealed—War Causes Increased Demand for Tonnage.

Detroit, Mich.—The ghosts have fled from Belle river. Rude hands have snatched aside hatch covers and allowed the sunlight to violate their sanctuaries in the dark hulls of dead ships.

Rebuilt for Ocean Trade. The majority of the wooden packets will soon leave forever the scene of their former triumphs, for they are being rebuilt, rerigged, and will leave for the Atlantic coast as soon as they can be made ready.

The Gettysburg was built in Cleveland about 40 years ago, and is one of the finest examples of the old shipbuilders' art that can be found anywhere.

It was late in December, and the Gettysburg was the last ship out. The elements were contrary, and the blizzard struck with awful force.

Faithful to Her Trust. Some days later, when it was thought that the Gettysburg had surely foundered with all on board, the proud ship steamed through the Port Huron rapids with booms and logs, fastened together with heavy chains.

temed together with heavy chains. In tow. She had been faithful to her trust. It was a feat that lived long in marine annals and is still fresh in the minds of the few old-timers left along the rivers.

The Gettysburg is destined for the New York-West Indian trade. Heavy oak frames are being stubbed in above her water line, and she is being replanked with four by six white oak timbers.

Accompanying the Gettysburg on the trip to the Atlantic will be the former three-masted schooner Arenac of Duluth and Alex M. Anderson of Detroit.

The Anderson and the Arenac are of the same type, with comfortable cabins and the familiar lumber rig, consisting of head canvas, foresail and mizzen, a large mizzen staysail taking the place of the mainmast and making a safe and easy rig to handle with a small crew.

ort C. Wentz, a steam barge of Detroit, is being pumped out preparatory to being fitted out, the William H. Hazard, another steam barge of Detroit, has been rebuilt and is now in commission on the lakes; the schooner Dittorf is already in commission; the three-master F. H. Knapp has been rerigged and is heading for the coast, while the old three-master Genoa is being rebuilt at McLouth's yard for coast service.

By the end of June the Belle river boneyard will be a thing of the past, for almost every boat will have gone, never to return, and when the draw-bridge closes behind the last one of the old ship carpenters, the veterans of former days, will gather up for the last time the calking, making and dumb irons, the timber clamps, the rigging screws and the hawking beetles, for their work will be done.

GOES TO WAR, DISINHERITED. Young Surgeon Took German Side and is Cut Off by French Mother.

Lebanon, Pa.—Disinherited by his mother on account of his participation in the European war as a surgeon in the German army Dr. Guido Hinkel of Freiberg, Germany, instituted proceedings in the Lebanon county courts to break the will of his mother, the late Rosalie Parant Coleman of Paris, France.

Following the death of Mrs. Coleman at Paris on April 8, 1915, it was found that while originally she had named her son as the principal beneficiary under the will, she had by a codicil on February 23, 1915, disinherited him in the following terse language: "On account of the war I disinherit my son, Guido Hinkel."

GOLD IN EASTERN STATES

With Silver and Other Metals Year's Production is Around $30,000,000.

Not all of the gold of this country comes from Alaska and the Rocky Mountain states. A good-sized lump of it, more than 10,000 ounces, worth $254,250, is dug out of the mountains here in the East, remarks the New York Sun.

The most productive of these are in North Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. The last-named state has not done so well as in some previous years, but both the others have exceeded the production of 1914. The largest placer mine is in Rutherford county, North Carolina, and the most productive deep mine in Montgomery county, in the same state.

Hippopotami Can Run. In spite of its clumsy build, the hippopotamus can trot fast. That is why he was given the name of river-horse. The hippo's feet are kept far apart by the wide body and make paths with a ridge down the middle, so as to be recognizable at once. They swim well, but go at their greatest speed when they can gallop along the bottom in shallow water. They can stay under water a long time, and when they come to the surface they send little jets of spray from their nostrils. The cow is devoted to the calf. The young one stands on her back as the mother swims.

Business. "What's in a name?" "There's money in it. Any man who can think up a good name for a breakfast food can buy sawdust in carload lots and sell it in pound packages at a handsome profit."

Qualifications. Stella—The ostrich doesn't see much and digests everything. Bella—What an ideal husband!

Diplomatic. "I was told that many people think hard of me." "How can they help it when they know you're a brick?"

Their Use. "Is it true that battles are being won in Europe with cigarettes?" asked the reformer. "Oh, no," answered the contributor to a tobacco fund. "Cigarettes are merely used in the trenches to make a policy of 'watchful waiting' more endurable."
