DAILY LEADER.

THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.

The Storage of the Cable—Successful Electrical Experiments.

The London Daily News of the 23d ultimo says:

"The end which is to crown the good work of establishing telegraphic communication between England and America rapidly approaches. The electric cable has now all been carefully shipped, and is carefully laid down in three enormous coils in the hold of the huge ship in which it is to perform its important voyage. The mechanicians and the electricians have both completed their work, and handed it over to the custody of Captain Anderson, and the best of expert operators who are carefully to lay it along the bottom of the Atlantic ocean. As the period for the critical portion of the great experiment approaches the interest of the public and the general anxiety for its success become proportionally intensified. The public are full of hope and confidence, and the various parties to whom the laying of the cable is intrusted speak with absolute certainty as to the success of their operations.

"The cable having all been placed in the hold, in the manner described in previous articles in the Daily News, and the great ship having nearly all her stores on board, and being nearly ready for her departure, a very numerous party of share-holders and friends of the undertaking went down yesterday to Sheerness to pay the Great Eastern a farewell visit. To the uninitiated observer everything on board appeared to be in the most sublime confusion. The deck, once so free and spacious, was now covered with round houses for various purposes, and the famous promenade, which formerly extended seven hundred feet in the clear, was obstructed at every second yard.

"It has before been stated that the cable is laid in three coils upon the lower deck, which latter is properly supported from below, but with respect to the 'paying out' some erroneous statements have been published which require rectification. It has been stated that the 'forward coil' would be the first payed out, whereas the fact is that, as common sense would suggest, the stern-most coil will be the first 'delivered,' then the bow coil, and lastly the one in the centre of the ship. By these means the vessel will, with the assistance of the enormous quantity of water and coal on board, be kept in proper trim throughout the voyage. The only glimpse which could be obtained of the great cable was in a small round-house amidships, where the end of one of the coils was passed round a wheel, and experiments were being made as to the continuity of the current.

"We were informed that at that moment the last ten miles of the cable were passing over the wheel which the company were so curiously examining. Even then great care was requisite, and visitors were asked not to press too close, as the slightest contact with iron might impair the electric current throughout the whole length of the coil. The general impression seemed to be one of surprise at the small circumference of the cable, the name of which had previously filled the imaginations of the visitors with exaggerated anticipations of its dimensions. It is believed that the chance of durability and continuity in the current would increase if the size of the cable were increased, but it must be remembered that if the Atlantic cable were made double its present size, the Great Eastern herself would be quite insufficient to accommodate it. As it is, Mr. Field and every one else more immediately interested in the undertaking, are quite confident that it will be quite sufficient for the purpose, and that the Great Eastern will firmly and safely lay it in its ocean bed before many weeks are over. With fine weather twelve days is the time reckoned on for the voyage between Valentia and Newfoundland.

"It is hoped that messages will be delivered in August, for which the company propose (experimentally) to charge £2 per word. A merchant in New York will thus be able for £40 to obtain intelligence of the London markets in about five minutes, but as there are six hours difference in the time between London and New York, he will actually receive intelligence of the closing prices in London in time to regulate his own transactions by them for the same date. Thanks to the difference of latitude, the truly American test will be performed of delivering intelligence in New York six hours in anticipation of its dispatch from London."

The London Times says:

"Two short messages were sent through the cable—one through a section one hundred and five hundred miles long, another through the entire length from end to end. The battery power used was very low, and the signals, though slow, were wonderfully clear and distinct."

Frightful Crime in Sweden—A Clergyman Poisons His Flock at the Communion Table.

The Stockholm correspondent of the London Morning Advertiser gives an account of the depravity of a clergyman, that is shocking in the extreme.

M. Lindback was pastor of Silbrod, a parish in one of the most beautiful valleys of the Province of Wormland. M. Mysen, a retired merchant, boarded at the parsonage, and having suddenly died, suspicion at last was excited, and thirty days after his death he was disinterred, and in his stomach the fatal arsenic was found. It was then remembered that two other persons had died of the same symptoms, one of whom was a widow seventy-four years of age, named Coria Huken. A son of this widow, had long been in bad health, and often taking from Lindback the sacrament, was seized with vomiting, and the contents ejected was found to contain arsenic. He finally recovered, and was a witness in the preliminary investigation. No other motive than to rid the parish of persons could be discovered except in the case of the retired merchant. In this case soon after his death, the pastor produced an agreement, though it was not signed, by which the heirs of Mr. Lysen was to pay him 10,000 six-thalers for his board. This, it was discovered, was not the first crime the pastor had committed, for about thirty years before, being bethrothed to a rich farmer's daughter, he succeeded in getting from him, before payment a receipt for the purchase money of some land he had bought, soon after which the farmer died from poison, and the daughter was thus deprived of her inheritance. While in prison, Lindback attempted to commit suicide, but his purpose was frustrated.

A Wise Child that Knew his own Father.

On the corner of Fifth avenue and Seventh street, while the Highland Regiment was passing an extraordinary crowd, a little fellow of the tender age of four summers rushed up to one of its members, shouting, "Hooray, daddy! hooray! Give me five cents!" The veteran, though he had never seen the urchin before picked him up in his arms and kissed him, when his own wife, whom he had not seen or heard from for over four years, pushed up to him and seized him by the hand. When the greetings natural to the occasion were over, judge of his astonishment to learn that he was indeed the father of the little boy whom he held in his arms, who had been born in his absence, and who now, by a strange and unaccountable instinct, knew his parent, though beholding him for the first time. These circumstances, created a lively interest among sympathetic and gentlemen who were made acquainted with them; the former took the mother, under their protection, gave the little one some peppermint candy, while the gentlemen took "papa" down to Delmonico's, and there did the proper thing.—New York Tribune, July 5.

Major General Hurlbut.

It will be remembered by our readers, says the Memphis Commercial, that a few days since a telegraphic dispatch was published to the effect that General Hurlbut (so long commanding this department) was to be tried by court-martial at New Orleans for alleged malfeasance in office and culpable neglect of duty. We are happy to be able to contradict the statement and to assure the public that there is no foundation whatever for the canard. General Hurlbut is held in deserved repute by his brother officers and the authorities at Washington, and has so deported himself in his high command, as to win upon the people of the Department of the Gulf.

JEFF. DAVIS HAS BEEN CAUGHT.

The war is now about played out,
Great changes have been wrought,
Our gallant boys are coming home;
Jeff Davis has been caught.
Huzza! huzza! now hang your banners out,
Huzza! huzza! let all the people shout.

The way the rebel chief was caught
Is laughable indeed;
He tried to run in petticoats,
But he did not succeed.
Huzza! huzza! hang all your banners out,
Jeff Davis has been caught, let every one now shout.

Our boys did think it very strange,
A woman should a Rebel
With a great hoop-skirt life in hand,
Until they saw his tel.
Huzza! huzza! our boys have got good sense;
'Twixt gaiter shoes and stogy boots they know the difference.

Oh, crinoline, we think you has,
For you would not conceal
The flying rebel President,
When he did show his heel.
Huzza! huzza! there's nothing half so fine
To show a foot and ankle off, like well raised crinoline.

Your days are numbered now, old Jeff,
You surely cannot hope,
Or have a better end in view,
Than the end of a stout rope.
Huzza! huzza! Jeff Davis has no shoe;
In settling up all his accounts, just a cap for crimes in view.

The boys who caught Jeff Davis,
We'll welcome one and all,
And treat them to a fine new suit
At ISAAC'S UNION HALL!
Huzza! huzza! fling the starry banner out,
Our gallant boys are coming home, let all the people shout.
