DAILY LEADER.

THE WILLOW.

O willow, why for ever weep,
Some who mourns on endless wrong?
What hidden woe can lie so deep?
What utter grief can last so long?

The Spring makes haste with step elate
Your life and beauty to renew;
She even bids the rose wait,
And gives her first sweet care to you.

The welcome redbreast folds his wing
To pour for you his freshest strain;
To you the earliest blushes sing,
Till all your light stems thrill again.

The sparrow trills his wedding song
And treats his tender brood to you;
Fair flowering vines, the summer long,
With clasp and kiss your beauty woo.

The sunshine drapes your limbs with light,
The rain braids diamonds in your hair,
The breeze makes love to you at night—
Yet still you droop, and still despair.

Beneath your boughs, at fall of dew,
By lovers' lips is softly told
The tale that all the ages through
Has kept the world from growing old.

But still, though April's buds unfold,
Or Summer sets the earth afloat,
Or Autumn prunes your robes with gold,
You sway and sigh in grateful grief.

Mourn on forever, uncomforted,
And keep your secret, faithful tree!
No heart in all the world can hold
A sweeter grace than constancy.

State Comity and Official Courtesy—Tennessee Thanks Ohio.

The following correspondence between Hon. Wm. Henry Smith and A. J. Fletcher, respective Secretaries of the States of Ohio and Tennessee, with the accompanying resolution passed by the Legislature of the State of Tennessee, will be found peculiarly interesting:

SECRETARY FLETCHER'S LETTER.

STATE OF TENNESSEE, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, NASHVILLE, July 1, 1865.

To Hon. Wm. Henry Smith, Secretary of State of the State of Ohio:

Sir: Have the honor and pleasure of to-day to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 1st inst., transmitting resolutions of the Legislature of the State of Tennessee in response to the action of the General Assembly of this State expressing sympathy for the noble citizens of East Tennessee when suffering under the tyranny of the rebel Confederacy.

You rightly interpret the spirit that prompted such action on the part of our representatives as in keeping with the patriotism that impelled the people of Ohio to volunteer in the defence of a common nationality. We loved and honored the true friend of the country wherever found, and would have been recreant to every obligation of citizenship if we had failed to yield everything demanded for their protection.

With a common interest in holding the great valley of the Mississippi under the control of one glorious American Union of States, Ohio will ever be ready to join hands with Tennessee, in favor of so high and worthy an object.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
WM. HENRY SMITH, Secretary of State.

The Surviving Conspirators.

[Old Point (July 16) Correspondence of a Philadelphia paper.]

The sentenced "conspirators," Mudd, Arnold, O'Laughlin and Spangler, arrived here at four o'clock yesterday afternoon, on the steamer State of Maine. They were in charge of Brevet Brigadier General Dodd, and wore iron on their ankles. When first placed on board at Washington, they had on manacles. These last fetters were removed after the steamer left her wharf at Washington. On the trip down Mudd and Spangler were very cheerful, and employed their time in playing backgammon.—O'Laughlin and Arnold, on the other hand, seemed much depressed in spirits, and were melancholy and reserved. On her arrival in the Roads, the State of Maine anchored, and General Dodd came on shore and communicated with Washington by telegraph. Just at sundown the steam tug Chowan went alongside the State of Maine, and the four conspirators were placed on board of her. The Chowan then steamed alongside of the United States gunboat Florida. The four prisoners were put on the Florida, and that gunboat immediately steamed seaward. The bright golden reflection of the sunny sky faded to dun, and the dun to blackness, as the steamer stood down the bay. The prisoners were taken below, the light fading out of their misdirected lives, even as the light was fading out of sea and sky. Very few people on Old Point knew of the arrival or departure of the notorious prisoners till to-day. The destination of the conspirators was not made known. The knowing ones conjecture it to be the Dry Tortugas, but this is only a conjecture. The only person possessing the coveted bit of information was Captain Budd, of the Florida, but he did not vouchsafe to disclose it to any one. After the Florida has safely delivered the "conspirators" at their lifelong house, its locality and name will doubtless be made known. Till then we have the privilege of speculating.]

Thomas A. Harris, the notorious rebel who was recently provided with free quarters at Washington, by the government, is a Missourian. He was a member of the Claib Jackson Legislature, from Maron county, became a Missouri member of the rebel Congress, and then devoted himself to destroying Northern property by infernal machines.
