Memory stalks out and nigh;
Gone that are married or buried
Gather around me.

School girls in pantalets romping;
Girls that have grown to be mamas;
Girls that like to be kissed, and
Like to give kisses.

Kisses—well I remember them!
Those in the corner were best at;
Sweet were those "in the sly"; in the Dark were the sweetest.

A Model Speech, Delivered by a Real British Lord and Member of Parliament.

The following magnificent specimen of a British electioneering speech we commend to our Senators, members of Congress, members of the Legislature, chairmen of our various conventions, all future candidates for Congress, &c., as a model to be adopted. There can be no doubt but that this speech has the true and correct style, for, be it remembered, it was delivered by an English nobleman (?), one who boasts that his blood is of a more pure quality, of clay than the rest of mankind. This speech is about equal to that delivered by Lord Russell's hopeful son, somewhere in one of the numerous shires of the land of beer, roast beef, political bribery and election riots:

[From the London Standard.]

The Liberal Committee of Berkshire have sent out a speech purporting to have been delivered by Lord Uffington. Now, every one who was present saw the painful and excessively ludicrous situation of the noble candidate. He was utterly unable to say two sentences, and the following is a correct report of his speech, taken by a short hand writer:

Lord Uffington next rose, and was received with loud cheers. He said: Gentlemen, I am in favor of the government that have governed the country for the last six years, and I am of opinion—I am of opinion—should be upheld. [Here he stopped, and looked steadily into his hat, and, it being observed he was endeavoring to read something, a voice cried out, "You have got more in your hat than you have in your head, guv'nor."] The Conservatives have been opposed for six years to everything which has been for the public good. The foreign policy—[A voice, "Switch it out of your hair," followed by roars of laughter.] Here it is [Then the candidate, taking a piece of paper out of his hat, held it, which was followed by roars of laughter.] It is all very fine; if you think it's an easy thing, you just come up and try. [Roars of laughter.] At all events they maintained peace; but if they had had it their own way this inestimable blessing would have been sacrificed, and—and—(a voice, "Oh, do help the poor young man, pray;" roars of laughter)—at all events they maintained peace. As to America, they evidently wanted to fight with the Southern States. (A voice—"Who's your father?") Who's yours? (Loud laughter.) On these grounds, gentlemen, I shall support the present Parliament. (Roars of laughter.) I hope you will do the same. (Renewed laughter.) Lord Uffington had, during these remarks, been prompted by the Hon. E. Bouverie and Mr. Barrett; and his own party put their hands up to their faces and seemed uncomfortable. After some minutes had passed he said: "I don't care (laughter); I don't want to speak." Shouts of laughter followed. "I move the adjournment of the Governor;" "Send him to school, Barrett;" "Let us have a fellow that's got some little brains") If you had had three conservative members where would have been the treaty with France?—(loud laughter)—one of the best things cut—ever so long, for the last, I should say, hundred years (this sentence was brought out in such a hesitating manner—a word at a time—that it produced roars of laughter), which not only preserved peace with the two nations, but developed—developed (the noble candidate here turned round to those behind him and inquired, "What is it?" which inquiry produced roars of laughter.) Well, gentlemen, I'm not a speaker, but I intend to vote straight. (Cheers and laughter.)

Josh Billings on Shanghais.

The shanghai rooster is a gentile, and speaks in a forin tung. He is bilt on piles, like our Sandy Hill crane. If he had been bilt with legs, he wud resembul the persian lams. He is kut a grim animul, but kuight ophen cuns off sekund best in a ruff and tumbil fite, like the lijins that kant stand civilization, and are fast disappearing. The wrost on the ground, civilizir tew the mud turkel. They ophen go to sleep standin, and sumtimes pitch over; and when the dew tha enter the ground like a pick-axe. Thare feed consists of korn in the ear. Tha kro like a gakas, troubled with bronchesucks. Tha will ete as much to onst as a districk skulmaster, and generally set down right ophen to keep from tippin over. Tha air drediul onhandy tu huk; you hev tew bile one end uv them to a time, yu kant gi them awl into a potesh kittle tu onst.

It kosts az much to board one as it dus a stage hoss, and yu might ez well undertake tew fat a fanning mill by running oats thru it.

The female rooster lays an egg az big as a kokernut, and is sick for a week afterwards; and when she hatches out a litter of young shanghais, she has to brood over them standing, and then kant kiver but 4 uv them, the rest stand round on the outside like boys around a cirkus tent, gittin a peep under the kanvass whenever tha kan. The man who fust brought the breed into this country ought to own them awl, and be compelled to feed them twenty times a day with grasshoppers, caught bi hand. I never owned but one, and he got chocked to death by a kink in a clothes line, but not till he had swallowed 18 fest uv it. Not any shanghai fur me if you please. I would rather board a travelling colporter, and ez fur eatin one, give me a biled owl rare dun, or a turkee buzzard, rosted hole, stuffed with a pair of injun rubber boots, but not any Shanghai for me, not a Shanghai.

Gladstone in the Same Boat with John Brown.

At a speech in Liverpool on the 19th ult., the Chancellor of the Exchequer said: "I don't know whether any among you have happened to see a remarkable song that has been used in the late deadly struggle in America—now happily closed—and which relates to the rebellion—of one whose name will long be remembered in that country. I mean Captain John Brown. But the song runs thus, and it was used to animate the armies:

"Old John Brown is dead,
But his soul is marching on."

(Cheers, and cries of 'bravo.') Well, gentlemen, I lie dead in Oxford—(laughter and cries of 'shame') but in some manner or other, I believe that in South Lancaster I am marching on."

Max Maretzek, who is in Europe, has made preparations for opening an opera in New York in the fall. His company includes Zucchi, Mazzoleni and Bellini as the leading singers, with a new basso and contralto, which he expects to bring with him from Europe. He will also bring with him about 30 new chorus singers, male and female.

Walter, son of the Senator Moses Norris, of New Hampshire, returned to Manchester, on Tuesday, having been for the last four years in the rebel army. He was among the prisoners in Lee's army who were paroled by General Grant.

JEFF DAVIS HAS BEEN CAUGHT.

The war is now about played out,
Great changes have been wrought,
Our sailor boys are coming home;
Jeff Davis has been caught.
Hurrah! hurrah! now hang your banners out,
Hurrah! hurrah! let all the people shout.

The way the rebel chief was caught
Is laughable indeed;
He tried to run in petticoats,
But he did not succeed
Hurrah! hurrah! hang all your banners out,
Jeff Davis has been caught, let every one now shout.

Our boys did think it very strange,
A woman should defeat
With a great bowie-knife in hand,
Until they saw his feet
Hurrah! hurrah! our boys have got good sense;
Women did show him a lot of
Tricks quite obvious and soggy boots they know the difference.

Oh, crinoline, we think you fine,
For you could not conceal
The flying rebel President,
When he did show his heel
Hurrah! hurrah! there's nothing half so fine
To show a foot and ankle off, like well raised crinoline.

Your days are numbered now, old Jeff,
You surely cannot hope,
Or have a better end in view,
Than the end of a stout rope.
Hurrah! hurrah! Jeff Davis has no shoe;
In settling up all his accounts, just keep his crime in view.

The boys who caught Jeff's wife,
We'll welcome one and all,
And treat them to a fine new suit
At AMASA'S HOUSE HALL.
Amasa's hall is big enough to hold every dancer out,
Our sailor boys are coming home, let all the people shout.
