New Instruments.

The correspondent of the London Star gives a fuller account of the new electrical instrument! in use on board the Great Eastern:

Some of the electrical instruments in use on board are of great interest, though it is almost impossible to convey in any limited space such an account of them as would be comprehensible to the ordinary reader. Three times a day has the cable been tested for insulation and conductivity by M. de Sauty, who is in charge of the Telegraphic Construction and Maintenance Company, and who has been present assisting or in charge at no fewer than twenty-seven cables previously laid. Mr. Cromwell F. Varley and Professor W. Thompson, of Glasgow University, professor of natural philosophy, represent the electrical department of the Atlantic Cable Company; and, although it would be idle to conceal that there is on many points a great divergence of opinion among these gentlemen, it says a good deal for their usefulness that they work together willingly for the common object which must be near the hearts of all them.

Some of the instruments used are the invention of Professor Thomson; one, the curb key, constructed, according to his theory, by Mr. Varley and himself, being of peculiar delicacy and of much value. It is a speaking instrument, arranged not only to convey the messages, but to govern and subdue the waves of the electric current. It has been ascertained—indeed the knowledge dates from before the time of the last Atlantic cable—that the electric current running through a wire moves in undulations, which must be diminished if the message through a long wire is to assume an intelligible shape at the distant end. In order to do this it has been found necessary to make each pulsation at that end the product of five distinct currents from this end. Three of these are positive and two negative: the latter controlling and reducing the undulations of the former. It is found by experiment that these five produce only one appreciable signal, the rationale of which may be best demonstrated by calling the positive + (plus) currents, and the negative — (minus) currents. The two minus currents compensate for the two plus currents, leaving one plus current to go on unimpeded, or with only such delay as is due to the natural resistance of the wire.

To obtain these results the curb key is moved by a treadle, which propels a governor of peculiar and delicate construction. This governor, answering roughly to the two balls on a steam engine, maintains a perfectly regular speed, and acts on a shaft furnished with two cams acting on two springs, which are alternately raised and lowered as the fingers move the keys which shape the letters according to the Morse alphabet. By the contact of the springs in connection with the two cams the positive and negative currents from a Daniell battery are produced. I do not know if I have made this intelligible; but the instrument is so delicate, though at the same time so powerful, that I have taken some pains to convey its leading features.

The Daniells battery above mentioned will be in regular use, not perhaps that it is more powerful, but that by it all risk of spilling the acid is avoided. It consists of a chamber in which is placed a copper plate, over this being laid some sulphate of copper (blue vitriol) Then is filled in sawdust, saturated with the proper proportions of acid and water, and last of all is laid the zinc plate. The salt of copper is reduced to a metallic state, while the metallic zinc is precipitated in the form of a salt; and the current is produced which, when conveyed through the curb-key pulsates the message through the two thousand three hundred miles of wire in about a quarter of a second! Professor Thomson has also in use a delicate instrument for ascertaining the amount of electricity in the atmosphere, and he also applies this to test the insulation of cables; but I should fail in any respect to convey a comprehensible description of this little instrument.

The code in use is that of Professor Morse, adapted to the Steinhill telegraphic system, and this for two reasons—(a) the Morse alphabet, one of the most simple and effective of telegraphic codes, and (b) it is in general use on the American continent. When the last cable was made, it was announced that Mr. Whitehouse was getting seven words per minute through the whole length. Sitting in his study in Glasgow, Professor Thomson theoretically doubted the fact; and on trial through the cable, before the attempt to lay it in 1857, the result was that they could not be sure of getting any signal at all through its whole length. For the additional wire, required for the 1858 expedition, Mr. Thomsen's theory was adopted, and this little accident, it may almost be called, led to his prominent association with that cable and the present expedition.

The instruments used on board for determining temperature and the like were some weeks ago placed in the hands of Messrs. Negretie and Zambra for verification and adjustment, and I believe they have, up to the present time, given the utmost satisfaction. The mirror instrument used for receiving messages which pass through the cable has been before the public in a shape not very different from that now approved since 1858, and has been so frequently described that I may spare myself the labor and the Star the space necessary to detail its features.

Portraits of Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Meade for the New York City Hall.

[New York correspondence Cincinnatti Gazette.]

The corporation of New York is about to embellish, not only its green spots, but also its public halls. The City Council have passed a bill appropriating four thousand dollars—one thousand each—for four full length pictures of Grant, Sherman, Meade and Sheridan, for the reception room of the new City Hall. It is proposed that Mr. James Walker shall paint those of Grant and Sherman, but the artist for Sheridan and Meade has not been selected. As they are to be placed beside those of Taylor and Scott, upon the painting of which Billy Bowlegs passed such a high compliment, it is to be hoped that they will be equally as good. When Billy Bowlegs was in New York many years since he was taken to the City Hall and placed in front of the picture of Taylor. He instantly recognized it, and expressed himself with a grunt and said, "Old Taylor." After regarding the picture for a moment, he said, "Me whip him." instantly his eyes caught sight of the portrait of General Scott, and in a voice adapted to the war-whoop style of declamation, he cried, "Old Scott, by God! Me whip him, too." The artists of Sheridan and Meade will have to so far succeed that Lee and Bragg will have no trouble, if they ever get North, to recognize the individuals whom they all "got just where they wanted 'em." Any one who has seen the admirable work of Walker at his studio in this city, can answer for it that Joe Johnston will recognize his old enemies, Grant and Sherman, as painted by him.

An opportunity to purchase a superior class of sound and draft animals, at far less than their true value, is now offered to the public.

Though the majority of them are sound and serviceable, they are no longer required in the army, and must be sold.

Many of the mules were bought in the beginning of the war, when young, accompanied the armies in all their marches and camps, and are thoroughly broken, hardened by exercise, gentle and familiar from being so long surrounded by the soldiers.

Animals will be sold singly.

Sales to commence at 10 A. M.

JEFF DAVIS HAS BEEN CAUGHT.

The war is now about played out,
Great changes have been wrought,
Our valiant boys are coming home;
Jeff Davis has been caught.
Huzza! huzza! now hang your banners out,
Huzza! huzza! let all the people shout.

The way the rebel chief was caught
Is laughable indeed;
He tried to cross in petticoats,
But he did not succeed
Huzza! huzza! hang all your banners out,
Jeff Davis has been caught, let every one now shout.

Our boys did think it very strange,
A woman should retreat
With a great bowie-knife in hand,
Until they saw his feet.
Huzza! huzza! our boys have got good sense;
'Twixt petticoats and stogy boots they know the difference.

Oh, crinoline, we think you fine,
For you would not conceal
The flying rebel President,
When he did steal his heel.
Huzza! huzza! there's nothing half so fine
To show a foot and ankle off, like well raised crinoline.

Your days are numbered now, old Jeff,
You surely cannot hope,
Or have a better end in view,
Than the end of a stout rope.
Huzza! huzza! Jeff Davis has no shoe;
In settling up all his accounts, just keep his crimes in view.

The boys who caught Jeff Davis,
We'll welcome one and all,
And treat them to a fine new suit
At ISAAC'S UNION HALL!
Huzza! huzza! fling the starry banner out,
Our gallant boys are coming home, let all the people shout.

IMPOTENCY CURED,

DR. A. GIBSON,

Formerly of New York City, will pay one hundred dollars for the proof that he ever fails to cure the above-named diseases. He will pay the same sum for the proof that any other Physician in the United States treats the above diseases with equal success.

After many years of laborious study and experience Dr. Gibson is happy in being able to announce to the unfortunate, that he has perfected a system of treatment for

of the above, and also all contagious diseases of the Reproductive Organs, with all bad effects arising therefrom, including General

DEBILITY OR NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

He has succeeded in curing cases in this city, some of whom had expended hundreds of dollars with self-styled physicians, who proves to treat all private maladies with success, and without receiving the least profit or benefit.
