APPEAL.

AUGUST 29, 1857.

SIR,

...remittances for our ...those advertised. This ...as our rates are fixed and will be departed from in no instance. Such remittances are returned in every instance, and to avoid all trouble and hazard of loss hereafter, we desire the especial attention of all concerned to this notice.

☞ All persons are requested not to purchase papers from our regular carriers, as they are not authorized to sell them. An observance of this request will greatly oblige the publishers.

☞ The alarm of fire yesterday was occasioned by the burning of a chimney.

☞ The gentlemanly officers of the steamer Southerner has our thanks for a file of St. Louis papers.

☞ Our friend E. A. Benson, who has just returned from the East, has our thanks for a file of late papers.

☞ The revival at the South Methodist Church still continues. The meeting will perhaps, be prolonged until next week.

☞ The James H. Lucas which left last evening for St. Louis, took from this point for that city 2,400 bags of cotton seed and 2,200 sacks of wheat.

☞ There will be divine service at the Cumberland Presbyterian Church by Rev. C. G. McPherson, on next Sabbath at 11 o'clock, A. M.

☞ Yesterday was clear, and of rather moderate temperature. If we have no more rain for a few weeks, we may expect a pretty fair Cotton crop.

A Luxury.—Let those who would enjoy a luxury be a luxury, call at the store of J. L. Cash & Co., on the Batture, and purchase a lot of those fine, ripe peaches with which they are now supplied from St. Louis. We tested a few of them yesterday and found them delicious.

The New Gayoso.—Among the many substantial and elegant improvements in the way of new buildings which have risen up like magic upon our principal streets within the last few years, many of which have separately received extended notices from the press, there is none which deserves such special or favorable notice as the edifice whose name heads this article, now in course of erection and completion on the east side of Shelby street.

We had the pleasure, a few mornings ago, of going all through this magnificent structure, under the guidance of the architect and superintendent, Mr. Robert Fletcher, to whose fine classic and artistic taste Memphis will soon be able to boast of one of the finest and most splendid hotels in the United States. Indeed, we feel we commit no extravagance in saying, that for beauty of architectural finish and convenience, take it all in all, there is no hotel in our whole country, except, perhaps, the St. Nicholas, which can rival the new Gayoso in splendor, convenience, and healthful arrangements.

It will be recollected by most of our readers that the New Gayoso is built upon and adjoining the site of the old hotel of that name, which for so many years has enjoyed such wide spread popularity. The present building is several times as large as the former one, and covers an area of 250 feet front on Shelby street, by 160 feet back towards Main street. It is four stories high and contains upwards of 250 rooms, every one of which is as well and cheerfully ventilated as if it were a room detached from all connection. They are also large and substantially arranged, and each one is in itself (or will be when finished) a perfect little parlor.

We are not sufficiently versed in the beautiful science of theoretical or practical architecture to elaborate an article containing specific description and illustration of the whole interior of the Gayoso, but from memoranda kindly furnished us by Mr. Fletcher, we here endeavor to give our readers a tolerably just idea of this elegant hotel.

The interior is approached by the grand entrance on Shelby and one on McCall street, the main entrance being under the front portico, and leading directly to the office, from which several minor stairways lead to the various parts of the house, both above and below, the chief of which leads to the second story, and is a grand and beautiful stairway of the most superb and costly construction. Up this stairway we reach the magnificent halls, transepts and corridors, which look like the apartments of those ancient temples of the East dedicated in the early ages to the gods and goddesses. The dining hall is one hundred and seventy-five feet long by forty two feet wide, and is embellished in the highest style of art of the Corinthian order, with elaborately carved cappings over the windows, and supported at each end by massive columns with beautiful capitals, between every two of which is a niche or recess.

At the end of the dining hall is the grand ball room seventy-five feet by forty-two, whose finish, in elegant carving, gilding and fresco, is unrivalled in all the South. These great halls are entered from the grand transept which runs from North to South through the whole building. These transepts are also a pleasing and imposing feature in the third and fourth stories, and are the main thoroughfares of the house. There are six independent stairways running from the first to the second, third and fourth stories, and are conveniently accessible to every portion of the huge edifice.

There are two hollow squares or courts within the walls, in each of which is a reservoir or cistern containing not less than fifty thousand barrels of water, from which the water is carried by steam forcing pumps to every room in the building.

The kitchen, wash-rooms, laundry and all the other laboring apartments of the house are supplied with all the modern improvements and facilities, the whole operation in every department of the hotel being performed by steam. On the second, third and fourth floors there are private bath rooms for the ladies, to be fitted up in the most sumptuous and voluptuous style.

The warming apparatus of the establishment is most complete, furnaces being so arranged that the heat will be conveyed to the ball and public rooms of the building without any apparent medium.

Such is a hurried and brief outline, but faintly descriptive of the magnificence of this costly and superb hotel. Its exterior is not less imposing than its interior, presenting a grand and massive appearance, and the whole front and end on McCall street being lined and ornamented by two graceful and airy balconies, from the latest and most appropriate designs.

We cannot award sufficient commendation to the liberality and public spirit of Mr. Robertson Topp, the principal owner of the building, to whose energy and untiring perseverance this great enterprise was originally set on foot and has been so successfully prosecuted nearly to completion. To Mr Fletcher, the architect, than whom no citizen of Memphis takes more just pride in her success and prosperity, equal praise is due for the perfectness, beauty and convenience with which he has performed his part of the great work. Mr. Fletcher is a finished master of his profession, and besides the large and important proportion which his fine artistic skill and taste have contributed to the substantial beauty of our city, he has secured the means and facilities with manufactures at the North to carry out specifications of all his plans by being early furnished with all the latest improvements in ornamental building material, which able to furnish to builders upon reasonable terms.

We therefore say that the Gayoso, when finished, (which it is expected to be about last of December) will be a beautiful and stupendous monument to the public spirit, energy and liberality of Mr. Robertson Topp, and the finished taste and architectural skill of Mr. Robert Fletcher.

A fine hotel—just such a one as we are soon to have in the Gayoso—has long been a most important disideratum in Memphis. The hotels we already have, have not been able for several years to furnish accommodations for the great number of visitors, who throng our city winter after winter. This disideratum has at length been supplied, and ably supplied, by two of our citizens—Robertson Topp and Robert Fletcher.

Mr. Cockrell, now of the Commercial, has leased this stupendous establishment for ten years, and leaves in a few days for the East to purchase the furniture and other necessary appointments of the establishments. It is useless for us to say a single word in commendation of Mr. Cockrell—he is well known as the popular landlord of the Commercial, and all know that he is peculiarly fitted for the management of such a magnificent establishment. Under his direction he will make the one the finest hotel in the United States.

The Rivers, &c.—The river at this point continues to fall slowly. There is seven feet in the channel hence to Cairo. The upper rivers are about in the same condition as last reported. The Missouri is stationary with four feet in the channel. Arrivals were not numerous yesterday. Business was dull on the levee. The weather was cloudy and cool.

The Monongahela is now at this port undergoing a thorough renovation and repairing for the fall trade in the Missouri. She will be ready to come out about the first of September, and will enter the river again as a packet for St. Louis and Council Bluffs packet. She is an excellent boat for the river, has done well in it, and will continue prosperous while she is so ably managed by Capt. M. A. Cox and Mr. S. Entrekin.

☞ Uncle Sam.—"A new and very elegant boat bearing the above name, made her first appearance at our Levee yesterday morning, with a large cargo from New Orleans. She was built at New Albany, Indiana, by Capt. Tom. Vandusen, the builder of the old Uncle Sam. Capt. Vandusen commands this new boat, which is, by the way, a splendid specimen of steamboat architecture. Her length is 267 feet, breadth of beam 47 feet, depth of hold 8 feet. She has seven boilers, one capacity cylinder, and a freight engine; a doctor, and combines all the latest improvements in machinery, &c. She has great power and is fast. Will carry, loaded down, 2,000 tons. She has a full length cabin, and a very elegant one. The state-rooms are large and supplied with all the needful toilet conveniences. She will accommodate one hundred and fifty cabin passengers, and was over full on her trip up. Messrs. T. J. Moore and R. H. Campbell are the clerks of the boat. We have our thanks for a manifest and files of late New Orleans papers.

Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever CURED BY

SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP.

IS justly celebrated medicine has for many years maintained its superiority over all other remedies, for the safe, certain, speedy, and permanent cure for Ague and Fever or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing; and in no case will it fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out.

This remedy has been extensively used throughout the States of Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana, and has permanently cured over ONE MILLION cases, in the most aggravated form of which had been of from one to three years' standing, and had resisted all the usual remedies known in the country; and in no case did this medicine where the directions were strictly followed. Such is it invariable success, that a large number of regular practitioners of medicine, in various parts of the country, use and prescribe it in preference to Quinine and all other remedies.

The public are assured that it is not only certain in its effects as a Tonic, but being composed entirely of vegetable medicines, is perfectly innocuous in all cases or circumstances, and may safely be given to females, infants, and all persons of debilitated and delicate constitutions, without the least fear who ever of any unpleasant effect.

This medicine is composed of active ingredients of the purest and purest quality, and is always made by the proprietor in person, after two established forms of pharmacy (which combine all the many local preparations of the Western and Southwestern country) and in this respect alone is rendered greatly superior to the remedies usually prepared and sold in the country.

By its superior and powerful diaphoretic properties, added to its tonic qualities, it is rendered eminently superior to Quinine and other remedies as a general and popular tonic, in all cases whatever where tonics are proper to be administered. The proprietor, therefore, respectfully invites practitioners and the public generally to give it but a fair trial, and they will then be convinced of its great superiority over all other remedies now in use for the purposes specified.

Persons living in districts of country subject to Ague and Fever, Chills and Fever, or Bilious Fever, would do well to keep a supply of this valuable remedy always on hand.

The proprietor has now in his possession thousands of certificates of its value, given by persons who have used it, with many letters from merchants who have sold it largely in all parts of the country, and recommended by practitioners who have used it in preference to other remedies, attesting its value.

THE WINE TRADE.

The following from the New York Post, offers but a poor prospect for drinkers of Port and Madeira:

Wine-drinkers will be concerned to learn that "their customary supply of Port this year, unless they wish to be sold out, for our advices from Oporto assure us that very considerable quantities of deteriorated and worthless wine have been sent from England to the latter place, to be converted into "tawny" Port wine. The grape from which what we call Port is made, has been in most entirely failed, and we doubt if a single pipe of really fine wine be sent from Oporto this year.

So much that is genuine of the Madeira, the Island of Madeira, the native wine continues affected with the oidium and the present vintage of the wine is called by the learned, that we fear they can give no decided report; and no wine will be made on the island this year. But we are informed that some of the best growers have already gathered in their grapes with the view to ascertain the wines which the American Consul has transplanted on the island, from Longworth's and Underhill's vineyards, are from their vineyards. We write, that he will have four or five hundred bunches of luscious grapes from them this season.

Advices received by the Arabia state that an extensive wine deal in Paris has been consummated of manufacturing spurious wines. In one of his cellars 431 hectolitres of Bordeaux and 87 hectolitres of Burgundy, 1,000 hectolitres, besides 5 barrels of a drug used in its fabrication. He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, a fine of five hundred francs, and the loss of all adulterated wines found on his premises.

NEW YORK DRY GOODS TRADE.

The New York Independent has the following latest commentary upon the Dry Goods trade:

Business continues increased since our last report, though there is a large amount of goods in market, yet the supply of desirable goods is limited, while the demand for such is active and on the increase. Silks are appearing steady in price, but without any advance to correspond with the increased cost in Europe. The auction sales have become active for the new on, though the sales of French Silks at auction will not exceed the amount for 1st of September.

French Merinos, Delaines and Bombazines, were set up early on Friday by Wilkinson & Moore, and brought good prices, the consumption being active. Staple Linens, in lots of sale, are freely offered and taken up as demanded at steady prices. Rib cords are rather dull of sale. The importations of foreign goods in order are restricted, and semi-trade sales are generally made at 10@15 ℔ ct. at a favorable character, are coming out in consider for the chance of a market, while an inner views that the collection of our wants will be greatly upon hand.

All old stocks in dull and heavy, but fresh desirable goods are firm. In goods of some the manufacture there is a steady business and pretty ready sales, and prices are firm. The Southern and Southwestern traders have been buying freely for Fall. Western buyers are in memory. Prices of Cotton Staples are maintained by the diminution in their manufacture.
