THE DAILY APPEAL.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 2, 1857

☞ The Adams Express Company h... our thanks for a file of late papers.

☞ HARTE's Pinorama is still on exhibition at Odd Fellows' Hall, and attracts large and delighted audiences each evening.

☞ Messrs. ALEXANDER & WHITE have laid on our table Putnam's Magazine for September. From a hasty glance, we pronounce it an excellent number.

☞ Professor HERRING, with his splendid brass band, has returned to the city, where he will remain permanently for the future. His services are at the command of the public.

☞ Our friends, L. VEST & Co., are now receiving their large stock of fall and winter dry goods, and will be pleased to exhibit them to their numerous friends and customers. They do both a wholesale and retail business, and their stock will be found varied and complete. Give them a call.

☞ Our friend GREENLAW is now actively engaged in gravelling Main street, and that with a better quality of gravel than we have ever seen used in our city. He will complete Main street to the southern boundary of the corporation, when he will turn his attention to Shelby street below Beal.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—Next Monday, the exercises in the Public Schools will be regularly resumed under the management of LABON POPE, Esq., the Superintendent. In order to secure the best qualifications, the greatest amount of efficiency and to offer a fair compensation for the additional duty expected of the teachers, their salaries have been suitably increased.

It is understood that a morning and afternoon session has been determined on by the Visitors, which it is hoped, will meet the public approbation and promote the progress of pupils committed to the charge of the public school. Nearly all of the teachers having been selected (the unfilled places to be supplied during the current week) the schools will be opened for the reception of pupils at the time designated, of which fact parents and guardians will please take notice.

☞ Judge Fitzgerald says in his letter that he never saw Lake and Harper published in Memphis, and consequently knew nothing of Mr. Bolton or his case. The Judge will likely remain in ignorance on many matters of importance if he does not change his illiberal policy. We recommend our Weekly as a good enlightener—price, only $2 per annum.—Evening News.

Our neighbor publishes a very excellent weekly in many respects, and, no doubt, Judge FITZGERALD would be greatly benefitted by its perusal, but certain it is, the exclusive readers of that journal are not yet aware that such a man as BOLTON or Judge FITZGERALD is in existence. The columns of the News have contained nothing in regard to the Bolton case. In this particular instance, we reckon, our neighbor would prove but a poor "enlightener."

INFORMATION WANTED.—The Bulletin of this city says that a deeply distressed lady, Mrs. J. E. C. BRIAN, writes to a gentleman in this city, from Leak's Store, Arkansas, asking information about her husband, Dr. BRIAN, a dentist, who was to have left Memphis on the 25th of May last, for that point, since when nothing has been heard of him, further than a letter purporting to have been written by one WILLIAM CONNER, from Gaines' Landing saying Dr. B. was drowned on the night of the 29th of May, together with two other men, while landing in a skiff from his (CONNER's) flatboat, one mile above Gaines' Landing. The Postmaster at Gaines' Landing certifies that he does not believe that Dr. A. W. BRIAN, or any one else, was lost or drowned near that place on the 29 h of May. Mrs. BRIAN believes that her husband was killed for his money, and calls upon all brother Masons to aid her in obtaining any information relative to her husband, or who WILLIAM CONNER is. Any information addressed to her at Leak's Store, Arkansas, will be thankfully received.

CRISP'S NEW THEATRE.—The following ladies and gentlemen have been engaged by Mr. CRISP to form the corps dramatique, of the new Gaiety Theatre in this place, of which he is the lessee. They are all new faces here, and we understand have been selected with great care from the principal theatres in the United States. Messrs. John G. Cardilch, stage manager; Conrad Clark, John Davis, Wood Benson, R. F. McClannin, C. Walters, W. Whalley, G. C. Charles, W. W. Allen, T. W. C. Blackburn, J. Gobay, P. M-han, F. L. Keller, F. Roche, S. C. S-blim, J. Rollins, J. Moban, Benedict, W. Hampshire; Misses Ellen Grey, Kate Ludlam, dansense; Emma Blake, E. Courtney, Kate Duckworth, Ellen Fowler, Miss F. Murrell, Mesdames Dyke, Wood Benson, Gobay, Rollins. In addition to these, a regular succession of stars both in the operatic and theatrical profession will be constantly had. The theatre, it is expected will open on the 9th proximo, and from Mr. CRISP's well known ability as a manager, we are persuaded that a most prosperous season is before us. All of the principal people engaged at Mr. CRISP's St. Louis and New Orleans theatres, will also appear here during the season.

☞ Our old friend, Mr. ANDREW TAYLOR, near Collierville, has sent us a bottle of very superior syrup made from the Chinese Sugar Cane. We shall test its qualities at the table, though we feel satisfied that it can be made equal to the best golden syrup. Mr. TAYLOR states to us that the specimen sent was made in a common boiling pot, and that the yield of syrup from the juice is about twenty per cent—five gallons of juice yielding one of syrup. Our cane, he says, of ordinary size, will yield one pint of juice. We have no doubt but that our planters and gardners will very soon manufacture their own molasses, as well as their own sugar. We believe this is the first season that this sugar cane has been tested in this section of the country, and from all we can learn, the experiment is highly satisfactory and encouraging.

We are likewise in receipt of a similar bottle of syrup from our friend and former fellow-citizen, Mr. J. C. RAWLINGS, of Des Arc, Arkansas, for which we tender our thanks. It is of a superior quality and excellent for table use, being, in our judgment, preferable to many qualities of molasses now in general use.

THE FATAL AFFAIR OF SUNDAY NIGHT.—The tragedy of Sunday night had its finish yesterday at 11 o'clock, A. M., in the death of the wounded man SLIMER. Judge HIX night before last, attended upon the wounded man, in an official capacity, for the purpose of receiving his dying testimony, but finding him so low as to be unable of communicating anything intelligibly, he contented himself with taking the statement of his companion, Mr. TEGO, which, upon being related to the dying man, was corroborated by his voluntary assent. TEGO had no knowledge of a former difficulty between the parties. He states that himself and SLIMER were following after from church on Sunday night POLLOCK and the lady with whom he was with, and just before reaching their destination, SLIMER remarked to him not to walk so fast, as he wished to have something to say to the man in advance, so soon as the lady was at home. To this proposition his friend remonstrated and advised him, as it was Sunday night, to defer the matter of dispute until a more appropriate time. They proceeded some thirty feet beyond the gate where POLLOCK and the lady entered, to the corner Trezevant street, and there halted. The lady went round to the back door of the house to get an umbrella left there by POLLOCK when she gave it to him and opened the door, he remarked to her that he expected to have a difficulty with the man in waiting at the corner. If our memory does not betray us, the information is, that the lady begged him not to proceed on uptown without accosting the party approaching the two men at the corner. To this request, POLLOCK assented, and left in that direction the lady, who it appears was apprehensive of the difficulty, remaining still in the door, after parting with POLLOCK. He had not proceeded more than ten or twenty steps when SLIMER called at him to stop, "you d—d son of a b—h," advancing upon him at the same time with a brick in his hand. Said he further to POLLOCK: "You are the man who drew the pistol on me the other evening, when I had given you no occasion?" POLLOCK replied that "if he did not like it he could help himself." SLIMER still advancing, POLLOCK told him to stop, and as he did so, shot him twice, taking effect in his abdomen and left arm above the elbow. SLIMER was taken home by TEGO, to his brother's on the river, in the Overton tract, and after lingering in great agony until 11 o'clock yesterday, he died. The above is substantially correct, as embracing the statements of Mr. TEGO, who was present, and SLIMER, the man killed. SLIMER was a blacksmith, from Mississippi, and in the employ of the Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad. He was buried yesterday evening after the holding of an inquest by Coroner WALDRAN. POLLOCK has thus far eluded the vigilance of the police, who are on his track.
