Just what other changes will be made, in order that this room may be spared for the purpose named, is not yet determined. The exhibit, however, is to be placed there, and will be kept on hand for future use, should occasion arise for it.

WILL NOT RESIGN

might have been different, it is predicted. If a delegation of the business men had gone to the senator some time ago, before any agitation had been created, and if these men had suggested that, for the welfare of the state and its future, it was best for Senator Mitchell to step aside, such action might have borne fruit, though this, too, is doubtful in the minds of those who should know.

While the senator expresses no opinion one way or the other, it is argued by those who have been his confidants that the resignation of the senator and the consequent appointment of a democrat by Governor Chamberlain to fill the vacancy would do no good to the state at this time. It is contended that no matter how strong in personality or backed by what power, could go fresh into the senate possessed of influence or strength. And no matter how strong the man, his appointment as a democrat would in a great measure annul his capacity for service.

Senator Mitchell held the office, it is said, to carry his case to its final adjudication before the supreme court. He is not only broken in health but in wealth as well. The expenses of the trial were heavy and the costs of the supreme court are not light. The brief submitted by the defense was a voluminous document of some 800 pages prepared at a cost of virtually $1,000. Added to this are many other expenses all of which drain heavily upon the purse, and to meet these calls requires that Senator Mitchell have an income. Without the salary coming from his office, which he still holds, there would be no funds to meet the expenses of the appeal upon which the senator bases his sole remaining hope.

"But what do Senator Mitchell's friends think of the resignation question?" is the question asked, and the answer comes in a pessimistic spirit.

"Friends?" Where are his friends? Who are they that they did not seek after his welfare while he rested an aged and a sick man in the hospital with a broken rib? If that accident had come before this trouble a special man would have had to be stationed at the hospital door with a basket to take the cards that would have been sent up. There are no friends to think of his resignation."

Through all of the discussion Senator Mitchell goes his way silently. He will neither deny nor affirm. He refuses to make any statement to forecast any future happening. He is uncommunicative and he is unlikely to resign.

Philadelphia, No. 1.—At a meeting of the Geographical Society of Philadelphia tonight, the president, Henry G. Bryant, the well-known explorer, made the announcement that two of the Bryant-Melville casks which were sent adrift several years ago in the Polar Sea have turned up. It was suggested some years ago by Rear-Admiral George W. Melville that valuable data concerning the speed and direction of Arctic currents might be obtained by setting adrift specially constructed casks in the Arctic Ocean. Admiral Melville and Mr. Bryant had 50 casks constructed and thrown overboard by United States revenue cutters and whaling ships.

Mr. Bryant announced that he had just heard from two of the casks. The first was thrown overboard by the revenue cutter Bear on August 21, 1901, about 85 miles northwest of Wrangle Island, and recovered by Captain A. G. Christianson on August 17, 1902, near the mouth of Kolyching Bay on the coast of Siberia. In the course of one year, less four days, it had traveled 386 miles to the southeast, and was probably influenced by local currents.

The other cask was placed on an ice floe northwest of Point Barrow, Alaska, in latitude 71:53 N. and longitude 164:50 W., by the steam whaler Alexander on September 13, 1899. It was recovered one mile east of Cape Bauda Nohr, on the Northern coast of Iceland, June 7, 1905. Mr. Bryant said the position of the second cask proved the existence of a current from Behring Strait around the circumpolar basin to the Arctic Ocean.

Warsaw, Nov. 2.—Poland is aroused again, and another attempt is being made to regain independence. Rioting is now in progress in every section of Russian Poland, and the people are shooting down without mercy soldiers of the czar attempting to interfere with their freedom and speech.

Dozens of processions of socialists and anti-Russians have been passing through the streets during the past 24 hours, and all efforts on the part of the authorities to check them have so far been without avail. There have been a number of collisions between soldiers and the populace, but in nearly every instance the uniformed men have been forced to retreat and leave the mob in possession of the thoroughfare.

Not since the last unsuccessful revolutionary movement was stamped out through the traitorism of members of the committee of freedom has Poland been so inflamed. Funds there are in plenty, thanks to the revolutionary committees of Great Britain and the United States and for weeks arms have been smuggled over the frontier and piled where they are now available. Regular troops now on hand are outnumbered five to one by men able to bear arms in Poland, and the reservists are honeycombed with the doctrine of rebellion, and are likely to aid the people rather than obey the commands of their officers.

Salem, Or., Oct. 31.—"There is no use minding matters any longer," said State Senator Squire Farra, in discussing the resignations of Senator Mitchell and Representatives Williamson and Hermann. "I have stood up for these men until today and have condoned all their offenses, as have the people of this state, but the position taken by the Oregonian today in its leading editorial is exactly right and proper and the three men under a cloud should resign. It is not a question of guilt or innocence. These men can be of no further service to the state as representatives at Washington and they should make way for men who can go there and look after the state's interests. I presume Governor Chamberlain would appoint a democrat to fill the vacancy if one existed. So far as I can see, that would do no harm. It is better for us to have a good democrat for senator than a bad republican. If Mitchell, Williamson and Hermann consider the welfare of the state and of the republican party they will resign."

Cfax, Wash., Oct. 30.—Myrtle Tipton, the 18-year-old girl horse-thief, who stole three horses, a wagon and harness from Lolo, a Coeur d'Alene Indian, for whom she had been working as a boy farmhand, is an Oregon girl, having been born at Roseburg, where she lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tipton, until two years ago. She pleaded guilty today to the charge of bringing stolen property into the state. Judge Chadwick would not accept her plea, but postponed the case, and will appoint an attorney to look after her interests.

Myrtle declared she does not want an attorney, and boasted that she is too old to be sent to the Reform School, but must go to the penitentiary. Strangely enough, although she declares she prefers male to female attire, she spent the entire sum, $225, received from the sale of the team and wagon, for female attire.

Myrtle is the youngest of nine children. She has six sisters and two brothers. Her parents have separated, and she remained with her father, working with him in the lavender fields and on the farms, where he worked as a laborer. Since her arrest, during which she drove a hauled wagon, she had been plowing for Lolo, and an Indian on the Coeur d'Alene reservation with the three horses she stole.

The girl told the Oregonian correspondent, in the presence of several officers, of her theft and flight with the team, and made no effort to conceal anything. Her father is now in Walls Walla, and her mother in North Yakima.

CHOLERA INFANTUM.

Child Not Expected to Live from One Hour to Another, but Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Ruth, the little daughter of E. N. Deery of Agnewville, Va., was seriously ill with cholera infantum last summer. "We gave her up and did not expect her to live from one hour to another," he says. "I happened to think of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and got a bottle of it from the store. In five hours I saw a change for the better. We kept on giving it and before she had taken the half of one small bottle she was well." This remedy is for sale by Graham & Wortham.
