THE DAILY APPEAL.

FRIDAY MORNING, JANUARY 1, 1858.

NEW YEAR'S GREETING.—In conformity with an immemorial usage, the Carriers of the APPEAL will wait upon their patrons this morning with their usual New Year's Offering. Daily, during the year just passed, in weather foul or fair, they have been welcome visitors to our readers, and they indulge the hope that their visits to-day will meet with such a recompence as will stimulate them to a faithful and prompt discharge of duty in the future.

NO PAPER TO MORROW.—An old and good custom gives editors, printers and other attaches of a newspaper establishment a time of relaxation on New Year's Day. To afford all employed on the APPEAL the usual interregnum from labor, we shall have no paper to-morrow.

☞ We ask the attention of our community to the card of DRS. PITMAN & MARTIN. These gentlemen are as well known in our city as experienced physicians, as to supercede any commendation from us. See their card in another column.

☞ The Campbell Minstrels will give a special entertainment this evening at 7½ o'clock, for the accommodation of families with their children. The inclemency of the weather has been such as to prevent families turning out after night, hence this special entertainment.

THE KELLER TROUPE.—This troupe have made their mark in Memphis. Their excellence is acknowledged, and crowds greet them nightly. We inform our readers that this evening they will fill every crevice in Ash's Theatre, and that it will be desirable to secure seats during the day and be early in the evening, for some of their very finest tableaux will be presented, and the sight should not be missed.

THE CAMPBELLS.—this troupe are entitled to "a first rate notice," and they certainly receive it from our citizens, who are enchanted with their merits. We have not heard a single individual, who has listened to their minstrelsy, who has failed to express himself, or herself, (for the ladies patronize the Campbells, in force,) as more than satisfied, as delighted with their performances. The Odd Fellows' Hall will be crowded to-night and the Minstrels will give one of their best performances.

THE FESTIVITIES.—It is one of the fine customs of olden time that has been handed down to us, to "keep open house" on New Year's Day. We learn that in this city an unusual number of the ladies who preside at the domestic board, will this year spread refreshments and dispense sweet smiles and kind salutations to their visitors. Gentlemen, we are sure, will not be slow to enjoy the opportunity, and we expect the present New Year's day to be a thoroughly festive and enjoyable season.

THE NUMBER THREE'S BALL.—On the 8th of January, a most appropriate time for the occasion, the Liberty Fire Company No. 3 will have a grand ball and supper. The gentlemen of this fire company intend that this ball shall be an occasion to be proud of—to be talked about at a future day. No labor will be spared—no outlay begrudged, that can secure a splendid triumph—and, when the Threes "go to work," they are bound to do it. The citizens have often seen how the Threes can work, let them be in Odd Fellow's Hall on the Eighth, and they will see how they can amuse themselves and also find a large portion of the enjoyment fall to their own share.

BEWARE! AND READ THE NEWSPAPERS.—On Wednesday night, a North Carolinian, who was past middle life, arrived in the city, on his way westward to purchase lands and settle. Having learned that it would be necessary to pay his expenses in solid specie, he was engaged in reconnoitering in front of MOSBY & HUNT's building on Front Row, looking out for a place at which to change his money. He was there accosted by a man of good exterior and address, who entered into conversation with him and learned what he wanted. He then stated that he was a citizen here, and well acquainted with parties who exchanged gold for paper; indeed, so intimate was his acquaintance, and so important were his dealings with moneyed men, that he could get such exchanges made without any expense, whereas a stranger would be charged a heavy percentage. However, he was always pleased to assist strangers visiting the city, and, if the gentleman desired it, he would obtain the required exchange without a cent of expense. North Carolina handed over bills to the amount of fifty dollars. The obliging citizen of Memphis entered the door of a Banking House, but in vain did the stranger wait to see him emerge, and at length he learned that he was "sold."

Last evening the very same kind of trick was repeated upon another party, also from North Carolina. He was proceeding to Arkansas to settle, and on his way to this city had unreservedly spoken of his future prospects and intentions. He was informed that North Carolina money would be useless to him in Arkansas, and that he must buy gold in Memphis. He came up to town for the purpose of obtaining a portion of gold. When he left his boat on landing he was joined by a very courteous fellow passenger, who ascertained what he was in search of. "Sir," said he "I am on intimate terms at the Commercial Bank, and could readily obtain gold for your notes, while one not acquainted would be taxed severely for the accommodation." He was willing to assist a fellow passenger, and the fellow passenger was willing to be assisted, so he handed over fifty-eight dollars. The young man entered the bank, the Carolinian waited outside. After a long trial of patience in waiting, the latter entered the bank and stated the above particulars to President TURNER. On learning that he had been made the victim of a sharper, he burst into tears, for he had with him, in a strange place, his wife and family, and had been cheated out of the only means he had for the completion of his journey.

We have been recently several times called upon to record such cases as the above, we cannot help inquiring when one man after another is victimized precisely in the same manner—do these men read the newspapers? Unquestionably they do not, or they would be too knowing to be plucked and pillaged by such stale tricks as the above. The saved the subscription price of a newspaper, but at what a serious ultimate expense the saving was effected! Such people ought to save their need instead of sowing it, and to lie in bed for fear working should wear out their boots.

A NEW BOOK.—D. APPLETON & Co., New York, have in press, and will publish, as soon as the subscription list has close d, a work called "The Book of the Great Railway Celebrations of 1857."

This volume is intended to supply the want of a full and faithful Record of the Grand Railroad Excursions and Entertainments of 1857, and to preserve therewith the name of every participant in those interesting occasions.

The book has been prepared with much labor and care, and will be found to possess a permanent value to all readers, but especially to the great Railroad Community, and to the numerous guests and others connected in any manner with the late excursions and celebrations.

The title page and table of contents, presented herewith, will exhibit very clearly the scope and character of the work.

It will contain some 400 pages of reading matter, and will be amply illustrated by a reliable general railroad map, and nearly forty beautiful engravings.

As an inducement to secure the immediate disposal of a large edition—the work will be sold at the extremely low price of $1 25 per copy.

The American Railway Times, Boston, December 5, 1857, says:

"We learn from the Baltimore Patriot that the Messrs. Appleton, of New York, have in press, and will issue very shortly, a new and interesting volume, containing some 400 pages, with sundry illustrations, entitled 'The Book of the Great Railway Celebrations of 1857;' embracing histories and descriptions of the several roads between Baltimore and St. Louis. It will also contain a full list of the names of the guests invited by the Ohio and Mississippi, Baltimore and Ohio, Marietta and Cincinnati, and other roads; with a great variety of matters of general interest, forming a work of peculiar value to the great railroad community of the country, and of much interest to all readers. We learn that in order to defray the cost of publication, a limited number of copies will be issued for general disposal, after supplying the orders of the railroad companies. The price of the work will not exceed $1 25 per copy, well bound, and the public has in the character of its chief compiler, (understood to be Mr. Prescott Smith, the assistant master of transportation of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad,) a guaranty that it is no catchpenny, but worthy of public favor. We are further informed that the forthcoming work will contain full and original accounts of the various banquets given on the interesting occasions referred to, in which are embraced complete reports of many of the best speeches delivered by some of the most distinguished men of the country, together with much other highly instructive and interesting matter, which must fail to make it one of the most readable works of the season."

River Matters.

The river yesterday continued falling with considerable rapidity at this point. Business on the landing was tolerably active, the improvement in the weather producing a corresponding change on the condition of the wharf.

The light Little Joe of Ark., which is quite a pet boat with travelers up and down Hatchie river, leaves for Bolivar to-day.

The Eclipse, that leviathan in size and beauty, leaves for New Orleans to-morrow evening. Who, that is bound down the river, will fail to register their names with the clever clerk, JIM PORTER?

The fine boat Belfast, leaves this port for New Orleans to-morrow.

The Southerner, one of the handsomest boats that grace the western waters, starts for Louisville to-morrow evening.

The Kate Frisbee, (that is saucy Kate) is off for Napoleon, connecting with White river to-morrow evening. Let that be remembered by all having business in that direction—if they miss the Kate, they miss a good boat, with courteous and polite officers.

☞ We take pleasure in asking the attention of our community to the advertisement of our young friend STICKS. He has now on hand one of the finest stocks of family groceries ever opened in our city. He is clever and attentive to customers, and can supply them with every article for table use ordinarily found in such establishments. His house is on Shelby street, just below Union.

MEMPHIS, January 1, 1858.

Stolen.

A YOUNG, spare built man, called at our stable on Saturday morning last, and hired a gentle nag, saying he wished to go into the County to see mills, etc. He has not yet made his appearance to take the road leading to Hernando. The mare is a rude Kentucky five years old, dog-throated sorrel, about fourteen and a half hands high, weight 900 pounds, small star in her forehead, and a peculiar hollow place on the left side of her neck near the shoulder, and of spritely movement. The thief will probably attempt to pass himself off as a gentleman teacher; he has a very truthful good-natured mien, is intelligent or genteel. A liberal reward will be given for the arrest and safe delivery of the mare, or for information that may be brought to justice. Also for the recovery of the beast.

Monetary and Financial.

MEMPHIS DAILY APPEAL OFFICE, FRIDAY, January 1, 1858.

NEW ORLEANS.—From the Price Current of December 26: The money market continues tight, and continues to remain in the same stringent condition referred to in our previous review. There has been only a very limited business transacted through the banks of the discount brokers, and that chiefly confined to the most unexceptionable paper. Our merchants have to resort to other channels for money. Good mercantile notes and prime long dated acceptances, in which there is more business done than in other descriptions of paper, continue to be negotiated at from 10@15 p. cent. per annum. The banks are discounting with a fair degree of liberality, all the paper offered, much irregularity has been observable in the Exchange market during the past week, the demand being more active and the supply exceedingly very scanty. Sterling nominally quoted at par of account.

Commercial Matters.

MEMPHIS DAILY APPEAL OFFICE, FRIDAY, January 1, 1858.

COTTON.—There was a slight degree of activity in the market yesterday. Prices remained without important change. The demand remains principally for good Cotton; inferior being neglected, and only to be purchased at a decline of ¼@½c. on the previous day's prices. Middling 9@9½c. At Savannah, on the 30th, the market was irregular—lower grades and middling more—inquiry brisk—Middling 8¾@9c. Advice of extra brought 10c. At Columbia, on the 17th, there was a dull week—business confined to small lots, prices almost nominal at 8@9c. for inferior to ordinary, 9¾@10c. for good middling to strictly fair.

The New Orleans Price Current, of December 26, says:

In our semi weekly report we noticed extra during the first three days of the week of prime 17,000 bales, the market closing on Tuesday a very unsettled and drooping tone as the Adriatic's advices, received on that day, reported a decline of ¼@1-16d to the Liverpool market, and caused a falling off here of ¼@1 per cent. 9 lb. On Wednesday the offers generally were still lower, and having necessarily taken hold by holders, business was transacted to the extent of only 16,800 bales, at very irregular and unsatisfactory rates. On Thursday with unfavorable weather and the Persia's advices fully due, the market again wore a heavy appearance, but negotiations were made and our several quotations of sales amounted to about 12,000 bales, still at very irregular prices, and rather more in favor of buyers. Yesterday being a holiday, and fresh Charleston advices from the Persia being announced at an early hour, the market was brought to a stand, but only 500 bales Factory been disposed of in several small lots. Thus the sales of the past three days sum up 29,600 bales; making a total for the week of 46,000 bales, taken for Great Britain, France, the Continent, the North, &c. So little was done yesterday that the effect of the Persia's advices yet remains to be developed, and our quotations, which indicate a decline within the week of full ¼@1-16d lost 9 lb. are based upon the transactions which took place previous to their receipt.
